THE "THE YEARLY DIGEST" OF I—INDIAN DECISIONS.

ABADI.

ABADI—House in—If can be sold when leaving.

The owners of houses constructed in abadi cannot on leaving the village sell their houses and the right of residence therein preparatory to their leaving. The rights of such person in Oudh is the same as in U P, as set out in 20 All 248. (Kendall, A. J. C.) PARAG DIN v. SHEO MANGAL.

9 O, & A. L. R. 309

ABATEMENT—See C. P. CODE, O 22; Rr. 4 and 6.

ACCOMPLICE — Evidence of—Corroboration—Difference between one to whom pardon tendered and one against whom prosecution withdrawn—Dacoity case See CR. P. C, S 494.

ACCOUNTS—Re opening of—When allowed.

Where accounts are impeached on the ground of fraud, two or three instances of particular items, which can be taken as false and fraudulent, must be brought to the notice of the Court before it can be called upon to order the accounts to be re-opened from the first. But before the defendant could ask the Court to re-open the account, he is bound to allege fraud, (Macleod, C. J. and Coyajee, J.) SANKAL CHAND v. CHIMANLAL.

70 I. C. 839 : 1923 Bom. 16 (1).

———Settled—Re-opening of—Mistake.

A person is always entitled to prove, if he can that there was a mistake in the accounts and that he signed them as correct by mistake. On such mistake being proved the account will be re-opened. (Batten, J. C.) BHOJRAJ v. SHANKER NATH.

71 I. C. 45 (2).

———Suit for—Omission by plaintiff to produce accounts—Effect of.

In a suit by a manager or agent against his employer for settlement of accounts, the plaintiff must produce all accounts and documents admitted or proved to be with him. On his refusal to do so, his suit is liable to be dismissed. (Shadi Lal, C. J. and Wilberforce, J.) MOHAN LAL v. NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY CO-OPERATIVE STORES ASSN., LTD.

ADMIRALTY COURTS ACT (1861), Ss. 5 and 35—(Act of 1840), S 6—Interpretation Act 1889, S. 18 (2)—Claim for necessities supplied to ship—Suit in rem and in personam—Jurisdiction.

ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION.

Claim for necessities can be enforced in a Colonial Court of Admiralty by a suit in rem, and such a suit can presumably be instituted in any Admiralty Court within whose jurisdiction the ship happens to be at the time when the suit is instituted. Before there can be an action In rem there must be a personal liability on the part of the owner. Though necessities supplied to a ship are prima facie presumed to have been supplied on the credit of the ship, this prima facie presumption may be rebutted by evidence of facts going to show that the person who has supplied or paid for the necessities looked for payment to the person at whose instance he furnished the supplies or advanced monies, and not to the owner of the ship. Under the English Admiralty Law (which is the law applicable to such a case) a party who supplied necessities to a foreign ship acquires a lien on the ship for the amount disbursed. The Magleff (1921) P. 236; Fong Tai v. Buch Heister. (1908) A. C. 458, The Heinrich Bjorn 11 A. C. 276 Ref. (Heist and Play Oung, JJ) HEIWA MARU v. BIRD AND CO 1 R. 78 : 1923 Rang. 163.

ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION — Bombay High Court—Service on ship—Writ of summons—Warrant of arrest

It is not essential under the Admiralty Rules to issue a writ of summons, in addition to issuing a warrant for arrest. Not that a writ can never be issued in an Admiralty suit, but it is unnecessary if a warrant of arrest is issued' (Maiten, J.) FREEMAN v. SS. CALANDA. 1923 Bom. 51.

ADMISSION—Reliance on—Scope of. See (1922) DIG. COL. 4. MAUNG SHWE MYIN v. MA NAING 70 I. C. 911 : 1923 Rang. 24.

ADVERSE POSSESSION—Acquisition of title—Interruption of adverse possession—What constitutes.

Where a person has acquired title to certain property by adverse possession he is entitled to eject any person seeking to retain possession of it against his will. The mere fact that a person against whom prescription is running comes and stays as a guest now and then with the person in adverse possession will not constitute an interruption of the adverse possession (Coutts Trotter and Ramsay, JJ.) AMMAKANNUAMMAL v. NARA YANASWAMI MUDALIAR. 72 I. C. 635 : 17 L. W. 629 : 1923 Mad. 633

—Acts necessary—Vacant site.

Where land consists of a vacant site desultory acts of possession such as storing cow dung cakes and tying cattle are insufficient to constitute adverse possession. (William and Harrison, JJ.) WAZIRI MAL v. GANGA RAM. 69 I. C. 573

—Acts necessary to constitute — Tying cattle.

A place for the tying of cattle is one of the necessary adjuncts of an agricultural occupation and residence in the village. The user of land for tying cattle and maintaining cattle troughs is not a temporary user and gives the right to occupy the land, if continued for a sufficiently long time. 16 B. 338 dist. (Kanhaya Lal, J.) KALAPAT DUBEY v. RAM RAJ. L. R. 4 A. 378.

ADVERSE POSSESSION

—Animus possidendi—Adopted son in possession—Invalid adoption—Effect of.

The statute of joint ownership with rights of survivorship cannot be acquired by prescription. (Ayling and Odgers, JJ.) RAJAMBAL AMMAL v. SHANMUGA MUDALIAR 70 I. C. 653 : 1923 Mad. 11.

—Burden of proof. See LIM. ACT. ART. 142. 1923 All. 565.

—Claim petition—Rejection of—Effect. See C. P. CODE, O. 21, RR. 101, 103. (1923) M. W. N. 633.

—Co-heirs—Possession of one on behalf of all.

Where there are co-heirs possession of one heir is on behalf of all and not adverse to the others (Fremantle, S. M.) MAHOMED ZAHID ALI v. MAHOMED HUSAIN. L. R. 4 A. 211 (Rev.).

—Common land—Shamilat—Occupation by one tenant.

An occupancy tenant who occupies a portion of the shamilat land with the consent or acquiescence of the proprietors for agricultural purposes cannot be disturbed in his possession so long as he remains a tenant in the village and uses the site for the purpose for which it was given, but if he diverts the site to other purposes as for instance to build upon, and disclaiming the title of the proprietors sets up an adverse title in himself, he forfeits his rights of user and is liable to ejectment at the instance of the proprietors. Where there is no overt act as for instance by the erection of a building, the possession of the occupant is not adverse to the proprietors. (Harrison, J.) BHAG SINGH v. KUSHAL SINGH. 71 I. C. 618.

—Co-mortgagors — Redemption by one See. LIM. ACT. ARTS. 148 &amp; 144 1923 P. 98.

—Co-owners—Nature of at inception—Receiver—Appointment of—Effect.

The possession of a co-owner is not ordinarily adverse to the other co-owners. But where a person originally entered not as a co-owner but asserting a hostile title and then became a co-owner and exercised his possession to the exclusion of the other co-owners, his possession continues to be adverse. The appointment of a receiver does not stop limitation running. (Chatterjee and Pant, JJ.) PANKAJ MOHAN BAL v. BIPIN BEHARY CHAKLADAR. 38 C. L. J. 220.

—Co-owners—Ouster—Exclusive possession See 72 I. C. 680 : 1923 Cal. 18

—Co-owners—Sale by one of specific portion. See (1922) DIG. COL. 6 ANWAR v. KISHEN SINGH. 71 I. C. 171.

—Co-sharers.

The possession of one co-sharer cannot become adverse to that of other co-sharers except where one party asserts an exclusive title as against others, (Pisbon, C.) GHULAM HAIDAR KHAN v. ALI KHAN. 73 I. C. 748.

ADVERSE POSSESSION.

— Co-sharers—Adnamaliks and Alamaliks—Non-payment of dues—Effect of. See LANDLORD AND TENANT LEKHU RAM v. MT. RAMZAN.
5 Lah. L. J. 198 : 19.3 Lah. 122.

— Co-sharers—Exclusive possession—Ouster. See (1922) DIG. COL. 7 CHAITANYA KRISHNA MANDAL v. SANDHYAMANI DAS.

27 C. W. N. 624.

— Co-sharers—Long silence and inaction—Effect of.

The mere silence and inaction of one of the co-sharers coupled with the uninterrupted enjoyment of the common property by the other co-sharers does not constitute an adverse possession on the part of the latter or an abandonment of possession by the former. (Leslie Jones and Dundas, JJ.) MANGAL SINGH v. MAKHAN SINGH.
5 Lah. L. J. 17.

— Co-sharer—Possession by some of them—Mortgage—Redemption—Effect of.

The question of adverse possession is a mixed question of law and fact. As between co-sharers unless there was some act to the knowledge of the plaintiffs by which their title was denied or repudiated, the mere fact of the plaintiffs not being in actual possession would not amount to ouster such as would extinguish their right. Similarly the fact that some of the co-sharers mortgage the property and give possession thereof to the mortgagee would not make the possession of the mortgagee adverse to the other co-sharer. (Mears, C. J. and Banerji, J.) HAFIZ ABDULLAH v. ALLI.
21 A. L. J. 204 :
71 I. C. 640. L. R. 4 A. 139. 1923 A. 291 (1).

— Co-sharers—Shamilat land—Partition.

Where under a partition entered into by co-sharers, the shamilat land was divided and it was agreed that the lands should remain joint till Kharif 1905, the fact that some took possession of parts even before will not make it adverse. (Le Rossignol and Harrison, JJ.) HADAYAT KHAN v. SHAHAMAND.
73 I. C. 665.

— Co-sharers—Stranger in possession on behalf of co-sharer—Effect of.

Where two sisters succeeded as co-heirs to certain properties of their deceased father and the husband of one sister was in possession and management of the land for over 40 years after which the other sister (plaintiff) sued for a declaration of her title to  $\frac{1}{2}$  of the properties: Held that the fact that the husband of one of the sisters was looking after the land would not make his possession adverse unless it was found that he was in possession of the land asserting his own right and not as a manager of his wife's property. If he was in possession openly asserting his own right and not that of his wife for a period of 12 years in such a manner as to amount to what is called notorious exclusion, then the plaintiffs' case would fail. But if he merely possessed the land without any such assertion of title in himself and the facts were such that the plaintiff could not be expected to know that he was not in possession on behalf of the plaintiff's sister then the plaintiff's suit would not be barred. (Newbould, J.) JOYTUN BIBI v. SOLIMUDDIN CHOWKIDAR.
72 I. C. 33.

ADVERSE POSSESSION.

— Co-sharers—Withholding of share of collections—Effect of.

If there is joint collection of rents at the time when any failure to deliver to the plaintiffs their share of the rent can hardly be held to amount to assertion of adverse title or to dispossession until it is shown that the plaintiff's title was definitely denied (Coutts and Das, JJ.) KULDIP SINGH v. RAM SEWAK SINGH.
1923 P. 183.

— Easement—Permanent tenancy—Prescription by one tenant against another.

In India, unlike in England a tenant with permanent rights can acquire an easement by prescription against another tenant having the same rights. The incidents of a permanent tenancy in his country are different from the incidents of a tenant for years as they obtain in England. 19 C. W. N. 1211 followed. (C. C. Ghose and B. B. Ghose, JJ.) KALIPADA BOSE v. FANI BHUSAN ROY.

— Easement right—User. See (1921) DIG. COL. 6 KANNIAH SIVANANJIAH v. SITHAY GOUNDAR.
70 I. C. 367.

— Essentials of waste land.

Where the plot in suit was waste land which was of no immediate use to its owner the mere fact that the tenants have been enclosing it and tying their cattle upon it would not constitute adverse possession so as to deprive the owner of his ownership. Such temporary user which might be unnoticed or permitted would not amount to adverse possession. (Gokul Prasad, J.) LAKHU v. LAL SINGH.
71 I. C. 265. (1923) A. 399.

71 I. C. 885.

— Formal possession with another—Effect.

The fact that formal possession was given by decree against a stranger does not affect the position of the adverse possessor. (Abdul Raouf, J.) MAHOMMED RAMZAN v. THE MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, ALIPUR DT.
1923 Lah. 534.

— Gramanatham—Rights in—User by villagers—Effect of.

Natham Putamboke in a village vests in the government and the latter can grant portions for building purposes. The fact that the villagers have been using portions as a threshing floor or for storing hay, paddy, manure, etc. does not create a right adverse to Government. The enjoyment is too fugitive and patently permissive to support a right by custom or prescription. (Ayling and Odgers, JJ.) TALUK BOARD, DINDIGUL v. VENKATARAMA AIYAR. 46 Mad. 866 : 45 M. L. J. 333 : 18 L. W. 366 : 33 M. L. T. 40 (H C.) : 75 I. C. 38.

— Hindu family—Partial partition—Effect. See HINDU LAW—PARTITION.

(1923) M. W. N. 636.

— Hindu joint family—Widow in possession—Effect.

ADVERSE POSSESSION.

Where the widow of a member of a joint family is in possession of properties for more than 12 years, unless it is shown that when she took possession she claimed only a limited interest, she acquires full title by adverse possession. The onus is on the persons who claim against her title (Lindsay and Sulaiman, JJ) UMA SHANKAR v. MT. AISHA KHATUN 74 I C 869

—Hindu widow—Family arrangement—Possession under, if adverse to other members of the family.

Where a minor widow claims and retains possession under a family arrangement, her possession is not adverse to the other members of the family. 29 Cal 664, 34 All 8 All 644 Foll. Stuart and Sulaiman, JJ) RADHA DULIYA v. RASHIK LAL AND ANOTHER 75 I. C. 14. 45 A. 1 : 1923 A. 25

—Interruption of—Delivery of symbolical possession. See LIM. ACT ART. 144. 1923 Cal. 82

—Interruption—Declaratory judgment—No interruption of possession.

The judgement of a Court declaring that one of the parties has no legal title to the properties in suit cannot have the effect of causing his possession to cease to be adverse to the opposite party from the moment of its pronouncement so long as possession remains undisturbed. (Spencer and Venkatasubba Row, JJ.) SINGARAVELU MUDLIAR v. CHOKKA MUDALIAR.

146 Mad. 525. 70 I. C. 994 : 1923 Mad. 88 (2).

—Interruption—Symbolical delivery of possession.

Symbolical delivery of possession operates to interrupt adverse possession on the part of the judgment-debtor. 34 M. L. J. 97 followed. (Pradeaux, A. J. C.) SAWATRAM v. GANESHILAL.

—Khoti Kashgi lands—Division among branches—Effect.

Members of branches of a family holding Khoti Kashgi lands in specific portions for the sake of convenience and before a general partition has taken place, do not hold adversely to one another. (Macleod, C. J. and Crump, J.) MOHIDDIN v. IBRAHIM.

74 I. C. 161.

—Khoti lands—Title defective—Effect of long possession.

The occupancy rights in some khoti lands were sold in execution of the decree obtained by a khoti sharer and the property sold in auction. Some time after the purchaser surrendered the lands to the decree holder-sharer, who remained in possession thereafter for 15 years and was then dispossessed by a person who claimed to be the occupancy tenant. Held even assuming the auction sale was in contravention of the Khoti Settlement Act S. 9 which made the tenure inalienable the decree holder had obtained title by adverse possession after the surrender to him. —Landlord and tenant.

Where a tenant wants to plead adverse possession, there must be a clear, positive and continued disclaimer and disavowal of the landlord's title; the latter must have had actual notice of the claim or the acts of ownership must be open, hostile and notorious. Non-payment of rent will not do. (Mookerjee and Walmsley, JJ) GIRIS CHANDRA GANGOPADHYAYA v. SRI KRISHNA DE NAG.

—Landlord and tenant—Occupancy right payment of rent.

Where a squatter has been in possession of a plot of land without the consent of the landlord his occupation for any number of 12 years would not vest him with the rights of an occupancy tenant, but that occupancy rights would commence to accrue only from the date the squatter commences to pay rent. The question as to when a presumption arises that the possession of the tenant is without the consent of the landlord, depends upon the particular facts of each case and it is not a question capable of a uniform answer. (Gokul Prasad, J.) CHHAJU v. JHABBA.

L R. 4 A. 221 (Rev) : 74 I. C. 681.

—Landlord and tenant—Onus on tenant to prove nature of title. See BURDEN OF PROOF. 69 I. C. 373.

—Landlord and tenant—Repudiation of tenancy.

The possession of a tenant does not become adverse to the landlord by the mere fact of his repudiating the tenancy unless the repudiation is accepted by the landlord. Where waste land as well as cultivated land form part of one tenancy adverse possession of the cultivated land also constitutes adverse possession of the waste land. (Martineau, J.) MAHOMED HUSSAIN v. SOHARA

—Limited interest—Assertion of higher interest—Lapse of time—No acquisition of title.

It is not correct as a general proposition of law that a person who is, in fact, in possession of land under a tenancy or occupancy title can, by a mere assertion in a judicial proceeding and the ———Mortgagor and mortgagee.

Adverse possession against the mortgagor would not operate to the prejudice of the mortgagee, if the mortgage is simple. When after a simple mortgage has been granted a third person commences to acquire title by adverse possession against the mortgagor, the period of adverse possession against the mortgagor cannot operate against the mortgagee while he is not entitled to possession. Adverse possession operates against a mortgagee only when the mortgagee is entitled to possession and time runs against him from the date when he is entitled to enter upon the land. In the case of the grant of a mortgage by a person previously dispossessed the adverse possession which had commenced to operate against the mortgagor would not by the grant of the mortgage be arrested but would operate equally against the mortgagee. —Landlord and Tenant—Perpetual rent free tenant of a grove building thereon a house. Whether Landlord entitled to eject him.

AGRA TENANCY ACT.

Where the special provisions of the Agra Tenancy Act permitting landlords to resume rent free grants have no application the tenant cannot be ejected so long as the land has not lost the characteristic of a grove. (Stuart, J.) MOLVI AHMAD HUSAIN V. SIRAJUDDIN. 70 I. C. 616: 1923 A. 372.

—Landlord and Tenant—Tenant grove holder dying without heirs but indebted—When their landlord responsible for the debts of the land holder.

The right of a tenant to reside in a house in the inhabited site of an agricultural village and the right of a tenant grove holder in certain villages are both limited estates. When the last holder of such a house dies without heirs, the house reverts to the landlord and in the case of certain villages, the trees and land also. The landlord however does not succeed as heir and hence he cannot be held responsible for the debts of the last holder. (Stuart, J.) MT. RAMMAN BIBI V. MATHRA PRASAD. 75 I. C. 621: 1923 A. 374.

—Lease for 7 years—Validity.

Provisions against subletting and for re entry in case of non-payment of rent do not affect the validity of a 7 years lease. (Burn, J. M.) NEK RAM V. CHATTAR SINGH. L. R. 4 All. 447 (Rev.)

Where it is found that trees were planted presumably with the consent of the Zamindar on the occupancy holding by the tenant, the tenant acquires no transferable right. 13 A. L. J. Foll. 34 All. 545 Dist. (Sulaiman, J.) ABDUL RAUF V. RAJU MUHAMMAD SHAH. 75 I. C. 655: 1923 A. 340.

—Occupancy rights—Acquisition of—Khudkash cultivation—Period if can be counted.

In calculating the period of cultivation for the purpose of acquiring occupancy rights, the time for which land was cultivated as Khudkash tenant cannot be added to the period of cultivation as ordinary tenant. (Fremantle, S. M. and Burn, J. M.) HAZARI V. RAJA RAM. L. R. 4 All. 428 (Rev.)

—Occupancy rights—Acquisition of Period of joint cultivation.

Where a holding is cultivated by a person jointly with another for a certain period and thereafter singly, the former period cannot be counted for the acquisition of occupancy rights (Fremantle S. M.) GAURI DAYAL V. GOPAL. L. R. 4 A. 347 (Rev.)

—Occupancy right—Acquisition—Period of mortgage if counts.

When a tenant becomes mortgagee of the share in which his land is situated the rights of tenancy are merged in the proprietary rights and he cannot count for continuous occupation the time during which he was mortgagee. (Fremantle, S. M. and Burn J. M.) GANGA PRASAD V. JAGESHAR RAM. L. R. 4 All. 429 (Rev.)

—Occupancy rights—Lessee under mortgage—Period of occupation under lease.

AGRA TENANCY ACT.

Where a lessee was holding under a mortgagee and after the period of the mortgage continued to remain in possession he can count only the latter period for the acquisition of occupancy rights (Fremantle, S. M. and Burn, J. M.) BOHRA JAGRAM v. MT KORILA L. R. 4 A. 366 (Rev.)

—Occupancy rights—Payment of rent—Effect.

The mere casual payment of a sum purporting to be rent in one year to one co-sharer does not justify the conclusion that occupancy rights were acquired. (Pearson, J. M.) GULAL v. GHASITA 90 & A. L. R. 409.

—Relinquishment of expropriatory tenancy—Validity—Delivery of possession necessary.

Mere execution of a deed of relinquishment by an expropriatory tenant cannot amount to constructive fraud on behalf of the landlord. In order that the registered deed of relinquishment should operate as a valid surrender it is necessary that actual possession should be made over by the expropriatory tenant to the landlord. [7 All. 847 (F. B.), 20 All. 219 (F. B.) 27 I. C. 586; 31 I. C. 794 followed.]

Where according to the plaintiff's case itself as put forward in the plaint, the defendants were actually in possession but as sub-tenants and where the fact that they were in actual possession when the deed of relinquishment was executed, was now denied, held there is no necessity for delivery of possession because the landlords were already in actual physical possession.

Where the Revenue Court passed a decree for ejectment in favour of the plaintiff after failure of defendants to file a suit for declaration of right as proprietors and the plaintiff was put in possession: Held, the decision of the question of sub-tenancy against the defendants by the Revenue Court bars the defendant from contending that they have been in possession as landlords. The mere fact of the removal of the plaintiff's name from the revenue papers as an expropriatory tenant does not affect the question. The delivery of possession whether actual or formal to the plaintiff amounted to the plaintiff's getting possession as expropriatory tenant (the title which he had claimed) and a suit for actual possession within six months from that date, is not barred. (Gokul Prasad, J.) BHAGWAN v. MARE. 72 I. C. 1024: 1923 All. 113.

—Resumption—Rent free grant—Occupancy rights.

The right of a tenant who has held for 12 years under a rent free grantee cannot be disturbed by any subsequent order in a resumption suit. (Fremantle, S. M.) GAJADAR PRASAD v. DWARKA PRASAD. L. R. 4 All. 355 (Rev.)

—Revision—Period for

Generally 4 months is considered to be the term beyond which applications in revision are not accepted—But in special cases the period may be extended. (Fremantle S. M.) BASHIR KHAN v. MT. ZAIB-UN-NISSA. L. R. 4 All. 393 (Rev.)

—S. 3—Applicability of—Mortgages and leases.

AGRA TENANCY ACT (1901), S. 9.

S. 3 of the Agra Tenancy Act was meant to protect tenants against their landlords and it does not affect mortgages or Zaripeshgi leases executed between April 1901 and January 1902. (Burn, S. M.) BHAWANI v. ZAHRIA. L. R. 4 A. 34 (Rev.)

—S. 4—Grove—Transferability

A plot of land which is neither let nor held for agricultural purposes but for planting a grove is not a holding within the meaning of the Act and there is no bar to transferring the rights thereunder (Sulaiman, J.) GULAB v. BHAGWAN DAS. 21 A. L. J. 907.

—S. 6—Construction.

Owing to the too rigid classification of tenants in section 6 all lessees including Thekadars have to be included in the class of non-occupancy tenants. No adequate provision has been made for lessees holding under a sub-contract and in such cases the intention of the parties is liable to be frustrated. (Daniels, J.) INDER DEO RAI v. RAM CHARITTER RAI 74 I. C. 971: 1923 A. 560.

—S. 8—Fixed rate tenancy—

A fixed rate tenancy cannot be created by contract, because a fixed rate tenant is defined in S. 8 of the Act and no person can be classed as a fixed rate tenant who does not come within the definition. (28 All. 747 Ret.) Daniels, J.) INDER DEO RAI v. RAM CHARITTER RAI. 74 I. C. 971: 1923 A. 560.

—S. 9—Fixed—rate tenancy—Acquisition of Where a holding was recorded as occupancy in the last revision of records which took place before 1901 and there was no judicial decision declaring it to be a fixed rate tenancy between the date and the passing of the Agra Tenancy Act, S. 9 bars the acquisition of the status of a fixed-rate tenant. (Fremantle, S. M.) MT. AMDANI BIBI v. RAM CHANDRA NAIK KALIA L. R. 4 All. 306 (Rev.)

—Ss. 9 and 20—Scope of—Landlord and tenant—Disputes between—Jurisdiction—Fixed rate tenancy.

S. 9 of the Agra. Ten. Act is very limited in scope and applies only where the dispute is between a landlord and his tenant and relates to the nature of the tenancy. A dispute may arise in proceedings to which the landlord is not at all a party. Under S. 20(1) of the Tenancy Act the interest of a permanent tenure-holder or of a fixed-rate tenant is heritable according to his personal law. Whereas other tenancies devolve according to the rule laid down in section 22. A dispute may very well arise between the rival heirs of a deceased tenant and the question of the true nature of the tenancy may have to be decided in a litigation to which the landlord is not a party. It is not open to either set of these heirs to go behind the entry at the last revision of records and adduce evidence to the contrary. The presumption under S. 9 is conclusive.

There are many ways in which fixed rate tenancies may come to an end, e. g., by surrender, ejectment, express agreement with the landlord, or as in this case, by merger. I cannot therefore see how one can shut out evidence directed to show that a new position has arisen since the settlements (Lindsay and Sulaiman, JJ.) SHEO NANDAN v. BALGOBIND MISRA 21 A. L. J. 697. L. R. 4 A. 333 (Rev.) 74 I. C. 647.

S. 10—Proprietor—Right to Khudkasht—Possession.

Khudkasht can only be held by a proprietor who is in possession. When a proprietor makes a transfer, he loses his sir and khudkasht rights under S. 10 of the Tenancy Act even in the land which he has been cultivating for 12 years and becomes an exproprietary tenant. He obviously cannot claim khudkasht rights in land which he only begins to cultivate at the time when he loses his possession. (Ryves and Daniels, JJ.) GULAB SINGH v. SHIB LAL. 21 A. L. J. 331: L. R. 4 A. 206 (Rev.) 74 I. C. 286.

S. 11—Acquisition of occupancy rights—Joint tenants—Relinquishment by one—Grant of 7 years' lease to the other—Effect.

When a father and son cultivated jointly, but before acquiring occupancy rights, the father relinquished the holding and the son took under 7 years' lease, the terms of the tenancy are altered and the period cannot be counted for acquisition of occupancy rights. (Fremantle, S. M. and Burn, J. M.) SOTI HARNAM KUAR v. DILLA. L. R. 4 All. 445 (Rev.)

S. 11—Acquisition of occupancy rights—Partition of holding—Breach of continuous possession.

A holding held jointly by two persons was partitioned by them and each entered into separate possession of his portion. Held that the question whether any of them was entitled to count the period before partition towards the acquisition of occupancy rights depended upon whether the partition had been recognised by the zamindar. If it had not been recognised then the tenants would remain jointly liable for the arrears of rent and the continuity of possession would not be broken by the partition. In the other case the zamindar would be debarred from suing jointly for arrears of rent and the tenant before partition would be deemed to be different from the tenant after partition and the period before partition would not be counted towards the acquisition of occupancy rights. (Fremantle, S. M.) ANUP RAI v. BISHAN MOHAN. L. R. 4 A. 263 (Rev.)

S. 11—Nominal ejectment—Effect.

A merely nominal ejectment does not cause a break in the tenancy. (Fremantle, S. M.) MAULVI ASAD ULLAH v. BALDEO PATAKWAR

S. 11—Occupancy Rights—Continuous possession—Entry in records—Burden of proof

Where a tenant has been in possession of a holding for 12 years but the revenue papers show that for one year of this period some other person was in possession, the entry is not sufficient proof of relinquishment. The party who sets up relinquishment must prove it by evidence. (Fremantle, S. M. and Burn, J. M.) DWARAKA PRASAD v. JWALA PRASAD. L. R. 4 All. 356 (Rev.)

AGRA TENANCY ACT (1901), S. 14.

S. 11—Occupancy right—Creation of—Assertion of title. See (1922) Dig. COL. 21 PRAG NARAIN v. ANGAD 70 I. C. 495.

S. 11—Occupancy rights—Fallow land. Where it is found that before the defendant took it up for cultivation the land was fallow for many years if not for ever. Held, that occupancy rights cannot accrue in such land. (Fremantle, S. M.) MITTHO PANDEY v. CHATURJI PANDEY. L. R. 4 A. 251 (Rev.)

S. 11. PROVISIO (a)—Ejectment—Tenant continuing in possession—Delay in execution—Lease for 7 years.

If occupancy rights have accrued, a subsequent execution of a lease does not destroy them. Where possession, in spite of formal ejectments, was continuous it is for the plaintiff, to show that the re-admission was in consequence of an agreement to hold under a registered lease for 7 years. (Fremantle, S. M. and Burn, J. M.) RAOTI v. RAJA SURAJ PAL SINGH. L. R. 4 A. 116 (Rev.)

S. 11 (a)—Entry of tenant as holding under a lease—Occupancy rights—Bar of.

The mere entry of a tenant as holding under a lease in the revenue papers is not sufficient evidence to prove the lease as a bar to the accrual of occupancy rights. (Fremantle, S. M. and Burn, J. M.) SH. JAN MAHOMED v. RAJA INDERJIT PARTAB. L. R. 4 All. 408 (Rev.)

Ss. 13 and 95—Decree for ejectment—Formal delivery of possession—Effect of—Subsequent suit for declaration of occupancy rights.

Where in execution of a decree for ejectment formal possession of the property is delivered, it is sufficient to destroy the judgment debtor's possession as a tenant. The tenant cannot after delivery of such possession maintain a suit under S. 95 of the Tenancy Act for a declaration of his occupancy right. (Burn, J. M.) FATEH SINGH v. PRAN SINGH. L. R. 4 A. 59 (Rev.)

Ss. 14, 10—Applicability—Grant of fresh holding—Burden of proof.

S. 14 of the Agra Tenancy Act applies only to cases in which occupancy rights have not already been acquired. It does not apply to cases under S. 17 where the tenant has already acquired occupancy rights.

If a landlord moves a tenant who has already acquired occupancy rights, the onus lies on him to show which part of the new holding is given in exchange and which part constitutes fresh tenancy. (Fremantle, S. M.) BHAYIA DURGA PD. SINGH v. JUMMAN MUSALMAN.

S. 14—Exchange—Determination of minimum area.

The land which a tenant has cultivated jointly with others cannot be taken into account for the purpose of determining the minimum area received by him in exchange. (Fremantle, S. M. and Burn, J. M.) NAINOON v. MP. HAFIZUNNISA. L. R. 4 A. 290 (Rev.)

S. 14—Exchange—Meaning of.

Where an adoption is proved and the father and son are cultivating together, that would seem a good cause for holding that a genuine exchange had taken place. (Burn, S. M. and Pearson J. M.) BHARTOO v. JAMBOO PRASAD.

—Ss 14 and 17—Exchange of occupancy holding—Applicability of the section—Burden of proof.

Per Pearson J. M. S. 14 of the Agra Tenancy Act lays down generally the principles on which land may be considered to have been received in exchange for other land, where a tenant has lost possession on agreement to take other land and has actually received such other land within the year. It applies to all tenants generally and not only to those dealt with under S. 11. S. 14 applies to exchange generally both before and after the acquisition of occupancy rights.

Per Burn J. M. If a landlord removes a tenant from a holding in which he has acquired occupancy rights and gives him a new holding in its place the onus lies on the landlord to show which part of the holding is given in exchange and which part constitutes a fresh tenancy. (Burn, J. M. and Pearson J. M.) HARDON SINGH v. TODAR.

—S. 14—Exchange—Period of occupation

A tenant who was already in possession of certain plots was given certain other plots by the Zamindar.

Held, that it was immaterial whether the tenant had surrendered the old plots or continued in possession of them, the question to be decided being whether he would be considered to have received the new plots in exchange. (Fremantle, S. M. and Burn, J. M.) BHAGELU v. PARSHOTAM DAS.

—S. 14—Occupancy rights—Acquisition of change in the name of tenant

If there is only a nominal ejectment, followed by a change of name, the tenant remaining the same, the tenancy as a whole is not altered and the periods of continuous cultivation can be taken into consideration for the acquisition of occupancy rights. (Fremantle S. M. and Burn, J. M.) TULLA v. HANWANT SINGH.

—S. 14—Occupancy rights—Acquisition of Exchange of plots.

—S. 14—Letting value—Calculation of.

Under S. 14 (3), Agra Tenancy Act, in determining the letting value, the increase of rent should be taken into consideration. In making the calculation of the letting value, all that is necessary is to calculate the valuation on the previous holding at settlement rates and to decree as occupancy a portion of the present holding carrying the same valuation at the same rates. (Fremantle, S. M. and Burn, J. M.) BHUPAL v. SUJAN SINGH.

—S. 18—Ejectment—Claim as tenant—Extension of occupancy rights.

In a suit in ejectment the defendant proved he was recorded as sub-tenant for 7 years, and afterwards as qabiz and payment of rent all along. Held, his claim cannot succeed till he proves how the rights of the occupancy tenant have disappeared under S. 18. (Fremantle, S. M. and Burn, J. M.) NARAIN DHOBI v. KISHEN KUMAR RAM TEWARI.

—S. 20—Occupancy holding—Mortgage—Estoppel

No mortgage of either occupancy or non-occupancy rights can be valid in view of S. 20 Agra Tenancy Act. Courts will not help such a mortgagee to recover his money but on the other hand they will not permit him to deny a transaction which he has entered into. (Burn, S. M.) CHAUDHURI KUNDAN LAL v. JAI SINGH.

—S. 22—Cultivation by tenant—Death of tenant—Continuation of cultivation by widow—Occupancy rights—Acquisition.

A tenant died after holding certain land for 10 years. His widow afterwards continued to hold the land for two years more and then remarried. Held, that the widow had acquired occupancy rights, not in her own right, but as an heir to her deceased husband consequently she forfeited them on her re-marriage. (Fremantle, S. M. and Burn J. M.) MT. NAWAB SULTAN v. MT. KISHAN DEI.

—S. 22—'Devolve', meaning of—Widow.

A widow who succeeds to an occupancy holding on the death of her husband may not have anything more than a life-interest therein; but she would be an occupancy tenant for the time being and the succession would open out on her death to the heirs of the last male holder and would go to the persons entitled under S. 22 of the Agra Tenancy Act and then in existence, provided that if those persons are the daughter's sons or collateral male relatives in the male line of descent, they must be co-sharers in the cultivation of the holding at the time when the last occupant died. Case-law discussed. (Kanhaya Lal, J.) BHAWANI BHIKH v. SIDH NARAIN.

70 I. C. 820 : 1923 A. 18.

—S. 22—Distant collateral sharing in cultivation—Right of succession

In the presence of a nearer collateral, a distant collateral even if he shared in the cultivation with the deceased cannot succeed. (Fremantle, S. M. and Burn, J. M.) MT. UMMULFAKIS BIBI v. ASHGAR.

—S. 22—Joint holding—Mortgage of portion—Right to redeem.

Where two persons are in joint cultivation and a portion of the holding is mortgaged by one, the other is entitled to redeem. (Kanhaya Lal, J.) GANESH DIN v. LACHMAN SINGH.

74 I. C. 755.

—S. 22—Sir land—Succession chela—Rights of.

S. 22 of the Tenancy Act makes special provision for succession to tenancies. Before the Act was passed succession to tenancies was governed by Hindu Law and if there were no such provision as S. 22 it would be still governed by Hindu Law. There is certainly no ground for thinking that S. 22 can apply to succession to sir rights.

AGRA TENANCY ACT (1901), S. 22.

This must still be governed by Hindu Law and chelas therefore succeed to sir rights as they do to Zemindari rights. (Fremantle, S. M.) DEBI N. ABDUL KHALIQ. L. R. 4 A. 210 (Rev).

—S. 22—Succession—Collaterals.

Distant collaterals cannot succeed under S. 22 Agra Tenancy Act; nor can the nearer collaterals who did not share in the cultivation. (Fremantle, S. M. and Burn, J. M.) LALJI RAI v. BINDESHAR RAI. L. R. 4 A. 181 (Rev); 9 O. & A. L. R. 1009.

—S. 22—Succession of collaterals—Co-sharing with widow.

Co-sharing with widow who has only a life tenure is not sufficient for purposes of S. 22 of the Tenancy Act. Joint living and cultivation with the last male owner must be proved before collaterals can claim the holding. (Fremantle, S. M. and Burn, J. M.) KOLHU BARAI v. SITAL CHAUBE. L. R. 4 A. 234 (Rev).

—S. 22—Succession—Rights of illegitimate sons—Sudras—Kayasthas.

An illegitimate son of a Kayastha, who is a Sudra, can succeed under S. 22 of the Agra Ten. Act. (Fremantle, S. M. and Burn, J. M.) BAIJ NATH PRASAD v. GUR PRASAD. L. R. 4 A. 141 (Rev).

—S. 22 (a)—Stepson—If inherits to step mother—Occupancy rights—Acquisition.

The step son cannot succeed to his step mother's holding under S. 22 Agra Tenancy Act. Nor can mere sharing in the cultivation along with his step mother give him occupancy rights until he is recognised by the Zamindar. (Fremantle S. M.) PASUPAT PARTAP SINGH v. LAL RUPENDRA NARAIN SINGH. L. R. 4 All. 407 (Rev).

—S. 22 (e)—Managing cultivation of minor—Pooling of agricultural stock—If amounts to sharing.

A collateral cannot succeed by merely showing that he managed the cultivation of the deceased minor, as this does not amount to sharing in the cultivation. If however there is evidence to show that agricultural stock of both were pooled or profits divided it amounts to sharing in the cultivation. (Fremantle, S. M. and Burn, J. M.) SHEO SARUP TEWARI v. SAHEBZADA MAL. L. R. 4 All. 417 (Rev); 9 O. A. L. R. 965.

—Ss. 23 to 30—Thekadars—Position of.

Thekadars are tenants for the purpose of applying the provisions of the Tenancy Act and the provisions of Ss. 23 to 30 regarding the right of sub-leasing are applicable to them. 6 A. L. J. 619 Ref. (Daniels, J.) INDER DEO RAI v. RAM CHARITTER RAI. 74 I. C. 971. 1923 A. 560.

—S. 25—Sub-lease in contravention of—If can be enforced.

Where a sub-lease is made in contravention of S. 25 of the Agra Tenancy Act, by not being made under a registered instrument, the agreement is unenforceable and cannot be given effect to by a court of law. (Lindsay, J.) OHAJMAN v. SUKHL. 73 I. C. 98. 1923 A. 453.

AGRA TENANCY ACT (1901), S. 34.

—S. 25—Sub-lease for more than 5 years—Rights of parties.

The legality of the one letting of an occupancy holding for more than 5 years does not affect a suit between the occupancy tenant and his shikmi. It is a matter solely between the occupancy tenant and the zemindar. (Fremantle, S. M. and Burn, J. M.) RAGHUNANDAN v. SARJU PRASAD. L. R. 4 A. 340 (Rev).

—S. 25—'Sub-let'—Meaning of—If may be oral See AGRA TENANCY ACT Ss. 31, 25 ETC. L. R. 4 A. 182 (Rev).

—S. 28—Occupancy tenant granting perpetual lease—Surrender to landlord—Effect.

Where an occupancy tenant after granting a perpetual and heritable lease surrenders the holding to the Zemindar, the lessee and his heirs are entitled to hold as occupancy tenants or lessees so long as there are heirs of the original occupancy tenant alive on whom the estate would have devolved under S. 22 of the Agra Tenancy Act. (Burn S. M. and Pearsall J. M.) JAGDAMBIKA PRASAD v. NAUBAT RAI. 9 O. & A. L. R. 469.

—Ss. 31 25 and 57 (d)—Applicability

S. 31 of the Agra Tenancy Act applies not only to written leases but even to sub-letting in contravention of the Act. The word 'sub-lease' is the correlative of 'sub-let' in S. 25 and a sub-letting may be oral or written. The entry in Sch. IV regarding suits under S. 31 (2) covers suits under S. 57 (d). (Fremantle, S. M.) KUAR JANG BAHADUR SINGH v. NOHAR KOELI. L. R. 4 A. 182 (Rev).

—S. 31—Inaction of landlord in getting a sub-lease declared void—Effect.

A landholder might accept and recognize a transfer but if he wishes to repudiate it he must do so at an early date and bring his suit within one year of the transfer. Where the landlord was found to be the sub-tenant of a trustee under an invalid lease from the expropriatory tenant, he is liable to be ejected at the instance of the expropriatory tenant. (Gokul Prasad, J.) MARHAN LAL v. DEBI PRASAD. 1923 A. 401 (2).

—S. 32—Applicability.

S. 32, Agra Tenancy Act does not apply to a suit to recover a fractional share in a holding against a person in lawful possession. (Daniels, J.) RAM KISHAN RAI v. SHEO SAGAR PANDEY. 73 I. C. 462.

—S. 32—Suit for ejectment—Parties.

A genuine division of a holding, though it may not bind the Zemindar, it may confer on a co-sharer right to collect rents and a suit by him in ejectment cannot be dismissed merely because all the co-shares have not been joined. (Fremantle S. M.) SYED JAWAD HUSAIN KHAN v. RAGHUNATH SINGH. L. R. 4 A. 195 (Rev).

—S. 34—Ejectment—Encroachment by tenant—Fixed rate holding

Are added by encroachment to lands under a fixed rate holding can only be regarded as land held without the consent of the Zemindar and the tenant is liable to ejectment therefrom.

AGRA TENANCY ACT (1901), S. 34

—S. 34—Person in possession for more than 12 years.

Under S. 34 of the Tenancy Act a person who has cultivated land without the consent of the landholder becomes a tenant when the landholder chooses to acknowledge him to be so, either by suing for rent or by suing for ejectment. It is at the option of the landlord to treat such a person either as a trespasser and sue him in the civil courts or as a person liable to pay rent and sue him in the Revenue courts, but until the landlord has exercised this option such a person cannot be considered to be a tenant. (Gokul Prasad, J.) TARIF v. ASA RAM

73 I. C. 212 : 1923 A. 419.

—Ss. 34, 58—Person recorded as sub-tenant—No payment of rent—Presumption of tenancy by sufferance when arises.

In a suit in ejectment of a sub-tenant of an occupancy holding, the sub-tenant put in an extra. to show he was recorded as sub-tenant for the past 17 years without rent. There was no evidence to prove an ancestral claim. Held, he must be deemed to be a person holding on sufferance and as soon as the sufferance is withdrawn, he is liable in ejectment under Ss. 34 and 58 of the Tenancy Act. (Fremantle, S. M. and Burn, J. M.) JANKI v. RAM SAHAI L. R. 4 All. 398 (Rev.)

—S. 34—Sub-tenant — Zemindar—Ejectment.

The Zemindar could not be allowed to get rid of the sub-tenant by means of a nominal ejectment of the tenant in chief.

The proper remedy of the Zemindar was to proceed against the sub-tenant under S. 34 of the Tenancy Act. (Fremantle, S. M.) RAGHUBIR PRASAD v. RAMJIWAN. L. R. 4 A. 212 (Rev.)

—S. 34—Suit for rent under—When tenable.

A Thekadar of a village from the Zemindar sued the defendant for rent under S. 34 of the Agra Tenancy Act. in the Small Cause Court claiming the value of the fruits wrongfully appropriated. The defence was that the suit was cognisable only by the Revenue Court being a suit contemplated by S. 36 of the Tenancy Act, and that, therefore, the jurisdiction of the Civil Court was ousted by S. 167 of the Same Act. Held that the intention of the framers of the Tenancy Act was to include such a case as the present within the jurisdiction of the Civil Court, and if S. 36, as framed, does not cover it, it is merely because the possibility that such a case was not thought of at that time when the section was drafted. It is not illegal for a zemindar to realise more than the rent formerly payable if the tenant pays it willingly.

—S. 47 A—Record of Rights—Preparation of—Slips supplied to tenants—Value of—Enhancement of rent.

The preparation of a Record of Rights is not equivalent to execution of an instrument within the meaning of S. 47-A of the Agra Tenancy Act. During the record operations, which are a preliminary part of settlement proceedings, slips containing extracts from the record, are supplied to tenants who are then called on to attest these. It is a stretch of language to describe such a slip as an instrument evidencing an agreement between a landholder and a tenant such as is contemplated by S. 47. The oral agreement proved by the settlement record is not sufficient to protect the tenant under S. 47. (Burn, J. M.) RAM SARUP v. AJODHIYA PRASAD. L. R. 4 A. 151 (Rev.)

A Hindu widow's estate is not a life estate and it is not an estate held in trust for reversioners. She represents the estate and has power to make alienations subject to the rights of reversioners to have those alienations set aside if they are found to be either not for legal necessity or not for the benefit of the estate. They do not cease to be operative. A reversioner therefore cannot institute a suit for ejection in the Revenue Court without setting aside the alienation. (Stuart, J.) KANDHYA v. RAJ KUNWAR.

The suit was in effect an attempt to evade the provisions of the Agra Tenancy Act. The Civil Court cannot investigate, much less find on the allegations of the plaintiff that he is for one reason or other an occupancy tenant. Nor can it for the same reason decide whether the defendants are permanent lessees. —S. 87—Object and scope of—Abandonment—Failure of landholder to proceed under the section.

It has ever been held that there is absolutely no other way of establishing abandonment by an occupancy tenant except by proceeding under S. 87. Obviously this section is not meant to provide the only means for establishing this fact as it can only be brought into operation when the tenant has left the neighbourhood. When the tenant has done so it must, of course, be held that if the landholder fails to avail himself of this procedure. He will be considered to have neglected to take advantage of the means provided for him by law for establishing his claim definitely, and the burden must lie heavily on him; but cases do arise where it is positively to the advantage of the Zemindar to allow an absconding tenant's name to remain on the papers as a means of preventing the acquisition of occupancy rights by the sub-tenant. APPEAL—Agreement by parties to be bound by the decisions of a Court on local inspection—Whether excludes right of appeal—Right of appeal not taken away, unless parties agree expressly or by necessary implication.

Where the parties to a suit agreed to the matter being decided by the Court according to the opinion which it may entertain upon a local inspection without going into any further evidence in the suit such an agreement does not preclude any party from appealing against any decree that the Court may pass after such local inspection, excepting on the points of fact decided by the Court on its local inspection.

It is only in cases where an agreement between the parties results in the Court assuming jurisdiction which otherwise it would not have or involves the Court in going so far outside its ordinary course of procedure that it is impossible for the appellate Court properly to review its decision, that parties are not entitled to appeal against the decision of that court.

The right of appeal is a very important right and the Court will not imply a term to give up that right unless it is driven to that conclusion.

The right of appeal will not be taken away when the parties agreed to mere deviations from the ordinary procedure of Courts. L. R. 5. P. C. 516; (1896) A. C. 136 followed. 26 Mad. 76; 37 M. L. J. 100 dissented from (Schwabe, C.J. and Wallace, J.) SANKARANARAYANA PILLAI v RAMASWAMI PILLAI.

Plffs. brought a suit to recover a certain sum of money alleged to be due in respect of a contract which was entered into on 12-9-1915 on the delivery by 18-11-1918 of a bale of dhories at a certain rate. The date fixed for payment was 27-11-1918. The goods were delivered to the defendant on the date in question but the price therefor was not paid on the due date. After this latter date, inasmuch as there had been much speculation in this class of goods, a committee of the cloth merchants of Jhansi assembled and brought out a plan by which claims for breach of contract of delivery of these goods or for failure to pay the price due in respect of these goods were to be settled. The plaintiffs and the defendant submitted to what might be called the award of the arbitrators and agreed that the claim which the plaintiffs had against the defendant should be settled on this basis. ## ARBITRATION.

——— Award—Contract—Arbitration clause—Reference to arbitration before commencement of suit—Effect.

Where an action has been commenced upon a contract which contains a provision for reference to arbitration then even if a reference to arbitration has taken place before the suit is instituted and if no application is made to stay the suit pending the arbitration, the award is of no effect.

The law will not enforce the specific performance of an agreement to refer to arbitration but if duly appealed to, it has the power, in its discretion, to refuse to a party the alternative of having the dispute settled by a Court of law and thus to leave him in the position of having no other remedy than to proceed by arbitration. If the Court has refused to stay an action or if the defendant has abstained from asking it to do so, the Court has seisin of the dispute and it is by its decision and by its decision alone, that the rights of the parties are settled. It follows that in the latter case, the private tribunal, if it has ever come into existence, is functus officio unless the parties agree de novo that the dispute shall be tried by arbitration, and that the action itself shall be referred. There cannot be two tribunals each with jurisdiction to insist on deciding the rights of the parties and to compel them to accept its decision. This is clearly involved in the proposition that the Courts will not allow their jurisdiction to be ousted. (Mookerjee and Fletcher, JJ.) RAM PRASAD SURAJMULL v. MOHAN LAL LUCHMINARAIN.

——— Award—Legality of—Ministerial act—Notice to parties—Necessity for—Statement of arbitrators as to what transpires before them—Conclusiveness of.

In case the parties are at variance on the question as to what took place before the arbitrators, the proper course is to take the statement of the arbitrators as to the facts as prima facie representing the true state of affairs as to what took place at the time of the enquiry unless there is very strong reason for doubting the accuracy of the statement of the arbitrators as regards the facts which took place before them and within their competence. Where an act judicial in its character is to be performed, the arbitrators are bound by the same rules as bind the courts. The arbitrators are not entitled to decide or to give their award in the absence of one or more parties to the arbitration and without notice to them. But when an act done is not of a judicial nature but merely ministerial in character it is competent to one of the arbitrators or all the arbitrators to have the act performed in the absence of one or more parties. On an application to set aside an award on the ground of misconduct on the part of the arbitrators the facts found were that both the parties did not turn up together, the petitioner turned up and the arbitrators asked him to state his case and file his documents and he gave a written statement stating what his case was and filed such documents as he had in his possession. While he was doing this the counter-petitioner turned up and the arbitrators sent for him, asked the petitioner to remain outside, and took from the counter-petitioner a written statement setting out his case and received his exhibits. Then the arbitrators having gone through these statements and exhibits called in both the parties and began the enquiry. Held that the acts performed by the arbitrators before the enquiry were ministerial in character and that the absence of one of the parties at the time did not vitiate the award of the arbitrators. ————— Award—Legality of—Misconduct—Arbitrators not acting together.

An agreement or reference to arbitration provided for the settlement of disputes by 4 arbitrators and an umpire acting together. There was no provision that in case of difference of opinion amongst the arbitrators the opinion of the majority was to prevail. All the 5 arbitrators entered into the reference but the award made was signed by only 4 of them. The 5th man did not sign because he did not concur in the award. Held that the award as filed, was invalid. On a reference to several arbitrators together when there is no clause provided for an award made by less than all being valid, each of them must act personally in performance of the duties of his office, as if he were the sole arbitrator; for as the office is joint, if one refuse or omit to act, the others can make no award. The question whether the arbitrator acts within his jurisdiction or not depends solely upon the clause of reference and is to be decided by the court. An arbitrator is constituted the sole and final judge of all questions of law and fact referred to him and the only exceptions are cases where there is corruption, fraud, or an error of law apparent on the face of the award. In the latter case the award must have been based upon some erroneous legal proposition. Hodkinson v. Fernie 3 C. B. N. S. 189; *British Westinghouse Co. v. ————— Award—Validity of—Ex parte procedure of arbitrators—Prejudice—Interest on amount found due Arbitrators should give notice of their intention to proceed ex parte if one of the parties should not appear. Where the arbitrators are alleged to have proceeded ex parte without giving special notice of their intention to do so and the award is attacked on that ground the true test is, has the complainant who has taken exception to the validity of the award been in fact, prejudiced by the omission of the arbitrators to serve the special notice on him? If it is established that notwithstanding such warning, he would not have appeared before the arbitrators, he has really no grievance and cannot invite the Court to set aside the award on the ground of the alleged defect in procedure.

Arbitrators do not exceed their authority when they allow interest after the date of the award. The arbitrators have authority to make a decree for such damages as might have been assessed by the Court. (Mookerjee and Fletcher, JJ.) BHOWANIDAS RAMGOBIND v. HARSUK DAS BALKISHEN DAS. 27 C. W. N. 933.

————— Award—Validity of—Parties to reference—Subject-matter—Parties interested in—Award—Partly valid—Enforcement of.

Where there were a number of matters in difference between the Plaintiffs and the various defendants to the suit it can hardly be suggested that the submission to arbitration is bad on the ground that it does not refer to arbitration all the matters that may be in dispute between the parties. Sch. II para. 1, C. P. Code in terms provides that where all the parties interested agree that any matter in difference between them shall be referred to arbitration, they may apply to the Court for a reference, and sub-cl (2) provides that the application shall state the matter sought to be referred. It may well be that some of the parties are interested in certain of the matters in dispute only, whilst others are interested in other matters and there is no reason why all the parties interested in one or other of the matters in difference between them should not agree to refer their disputes, if there are other matters still to be determined in the suit.

Where the arbitrators, however, made an award not only in respect to the matters properly referred but in respect to the matters in dispute between the plaintiffs and the two minors which were not validly referred at all, it cannot be said then that the whole award is bad merely because the arbitrators have dealt with matters outside the terms of the reference; the award is valid in so far as the reference was legal and binding.

The rules in the schedule clearly contemplate a case where the arbitrators in making their award have gone outside the legitimate subject-matter of the reference. If that part of the award which deals with matters outside the reference can be separated from the other part, without affecting the decision on the matters referred, the Court may in such a case modify or correct the award. (Miller, C. J. and Kulwant Sahay, J.) RAGHUNATH SIKUL v. RAM KUP RAUT. 2 Pat 777; (1923) Pat. 225.

———Award—Validity of—Pendency of probate proceedings—Disputes regarding division of testator's property.

Disputes as regards the division of a testator's property were referred to arbitration without the intervention of the Court when proceedings for obtaining a probate of the will were pending. The arbitrators made an award giving each of the parties certain portions of the estate and on that award being filed in court a decree was passed thereon. On a question arising as to the validity of the award Held that the arbitrators did not in any way oust the jurisdiction of the Court in which the probate proceedings were pending and that the award and decree thereon were perfectly valid. There was nothing whatever to prevent the parties going to arbitration with regard to the division of the estate, leaving the Court to decide whether or not probate should be granted of the will. That was a question entirely outside the functions of the arbitrators, while the actual questions regarding the division of properties in dispute between the parties could be properly referred to them. The test would be to consider what would have happened if the parties had waited until probate had been issued to refer to arbitration the question how the properties of the deceased should be divided. It could not possibly be said then that the submission to arbitration would be illegal. The mere fact that it was entered upon before the probate proceedings had come to an end cannot possibly affect the question of its legality. (MacLeod, C. J. and Crump, J.) SHANKAR RAMCHANDRA v. RAMCHANDRA ANNALI. 25 Bom. L. R. 437; 73 I. C. 415; 1923 Bom. 365.

———Award—Validity of—Proceedings not taken to enforce award—Effect of.

As between the parties and their privies an award is entitled to that respect which is due to the decision of a Court of last resort. The award is in fact a final adjudication by the Court of the party's own choice, and until impeached upon sufficient grounds in an appropriate proceeding, an award which is, on the face of it regular is binding. If an award is valid, it is operative, even though neither party has sought to enforce it by a regular suit or by the summary procedure. (Mukherjee and Choizner, JJ.) BAIDYANATH CHOTTOPADYA v. ———Court's power to limit time for objections—Waiver and estoppel.

A court has no power to cut short the period of limitation provided by statute for filing objections against an award. Even if the agreed to the award it does not amount to a waiver of the right to file objections nor does it amount to an estoppel.

———Decision beyond terms—Objections disallowed by Court—Revision.

Plaintiff filed a suit against the defendant for recovery of land in the Court of a Munsiff who referred the matter to an arbitrator. The arbitrator decreed the claim in favour of the plaintiff in his capacity as a trustee of the temple. The plaintiff objected on the ground that the arbitrator had travelled beyond the terms of the reference. The Munsiff overruled the objection.

Held, as the Munsiff had jurisdiction to decide the objections, the High Court has no power to interfere, even if the Munsiff has come to a wrong conclusion on a question of law or fact if he cannot be said to have acted illegally or with material irregularity. (Abdul Raoof, J.) SHEO NATH v. BEG RAJ. 73 I. C. 558; 1923 Lah. 194 (1).

———Delegation of powers—Deciding matters not referred—Failure to decide matters referred.

Acts of a ministerial nature can be delegated to arbitrators e.g. valuing properties.

There is a presumption in favour of the validity of an award. Where matters not referred to arbitration are also decided, but they are easily severable, the award is not invalid. So also failure to decide some matters referred, if it is not a serious omission. (Chandrasekhara Aiyar, C. J. and Subbanna, J.) MUNIAPPA v. SANJEEVAPPA. 1 Mys. L. J. 50.

———Evidence improperly admitted—Effect.

Where arbitrators improperly admit evidence which ought not to have been admitted, but the same has not any material bearing, the award is not vitiated. (Viscount Birkenhead) GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY COMPANY OF CANADA v. THE KING. 33 M. L. T. 246 (P. C.)

———Guardian and ward—Agreement by guardian to refer disputes to an arbitrator to decide on his own information or other information or by examining witnesses or otherwise—Whether agreement binding on the minor—Award by an arbitrator on information in the absence of parties—Award invalid—Legal misconduct—Gross negligence of guardian—Parties sui juris can bind themselves by such reference.

An agreement by the guardian of a minor to refer disputes to be settled by an arbitrator and to be bound by and act according to the decision the arbitrator might give either on his own information or other information known in the village or by examining the witnesses of both parties, should he think it necessary, is an unreasonable and improvident act on the part of the guardian and therefore not binding upon the minor.

A guardian is not entitled to waive his ward's right to object to irregular procedure. Such conduct on the part of the guardian is gross negligence and such gross negligence of a next friend or guardian would entitle the minor to impeach an award or a judgment passed against him.

ARBITRATION.

An award passed on such reference by a guardian, when the arbitrator acted upon information received in the absence of parties or on his own knowledge of facts is vitiated by legal misconduct and would therefore be invalid.

Ordinarily an award based on information received in the absence of the parties or on the arbitrator's own knowledge of the facts in regard to the matters in issue between the parties would be invalid. But it is open to parties who are sui juris to agree to a reference that the arbitrator shall decide the dispute on his own knowledge or that there is no need for him to take any evidence; and they will be bound by such a reference and no legal misconduct can be imputed to the arbitrator, if he based his award on such materials. 42 A. 185 followed. Minor—Misapprehension of rights—Effect.

The principles under which the validity of an arbitration should be judged are more rigid than those which apply to a case of family agreement. Where the parties to it were under a misapprehension as to their legal position and right the award is bad. (Bucknill and Ross, JJ.) RAM BAHADUR SEN v. GANESHI BHAGAT. 73 I. C. 542 : 2 Pat. 554.

Minor—Setting aside—Duty of Courts.

A suit by some minors was referred to arbitration which ended in an award in their favour. Before the objections of the defendant were taken up for consideration, on an oral request of the parties the court set aside the award and referred the matter to the counsel of the parties for fresh arbitration. Held, the award was valid and binding unless set aside for one of the reasons mentioned in the C. P. Code. The Court ought to have addressed itself to the question whether the next friend of the minors could so compromise the disputes as to the validity of the award as to give the court no option but to accept the compromise and therefore to preclude the court from considering if it was to the benefit of the minors.

Jurisdiction of equity courts over the interests of minors adverted to. (Piggott and Walsh, JJ.) JHINKU SINGH v. SITAL SINGH. 45 A. 263 : 21 A. L. J. 81 : L. R. 4 A. 329 : 74 I. C. 133 : 1923 A. 267 (2).

Powers of arbitrator—Partition—Provision for maintenance.

If the arbitrators have authority to make a partition they have authority to determine everything incidental or consequential with reference to the mode in which the partition is to be effected and the rights of the female members of the family cannot be disregarded. Where in an award provision for the maintenance of the female ladies of the family was made with the consent of the parties it is not open to them to rescind from the arrangement to which they had agreed when the award was made. Ss. 7 and 11 to 15—Scope.

There is no express provision in the English law as to what is to happen to an award, when it is made, with the single exception of the section which enables the party to enforce it as though it were a judgment. The reason for that is that the machinery is so familiar and habitual that no provision on the subject is necessary. Either party, on receiving notice from the arbitrator that the award has been made, can take it up from him. Once the arbitrator has parted with it, he is functus officio and he cannot exercise the power given to him by S. 7 of Act IX of 1899, none the less the Court is able to remit to him if satisfied that an honest mistake has been made. There are express provisions to be found in S. 11 of the Act as to what is to be done by an arbitrator, if he has made his award. When the question when an arbitrator in India becomes functus officio comes to be decided, the line will have to be drawn somewhere in the procedure which is laid down in S. 11 for getting the award into Court. It is difficult to hold that an arbitrator is functus officio, while there are still express statutory duties laid upon him by the Act. The procedure laid down by the Act seems to be that the various stages to be found in Ss. 11 to 15 are to be followed in the same chronological order as the numerical order of the sections and that an application to set aside is not as a rule within the jurisdiction of the Court, until some application or attempt has been made to file the award or some other similar step is taken to enforce it. BENAMI—Evidence of—Source of purchase money—Old transaction—Evidence of possession.

Benami transactions are familiar in India and even a slight quantity of evidence to show that a transaction is benami may suffice. But the person who impugns the apparent character of a transaction must not rely solely on probabilities, but must show something definite to establish that it was a sham transaction, on the principle that the burden of proof lies on the person who claims contrary to the tenor of a deed and alleges that the apparent is not the real state of things. The most important test in these cases is the source whence the consideration came. Where however from the lapse of time, direct evidence of a conclusive or reliable character is not forthcoming, as to the payment of consideration, the case must be dealt with on the reasonable probabilities and legal inferences arising from proved or admitted facts. *PROMODE KUMAR ROY v. —Test of—Evidence—probabilities.

Benami transactions being common in India slight evidence may show a transaction was of that nature. A conclusion however cannot be based on mere probabilities. The burden is on the person who claims contrary to the tenor of the deed and the source of the consideration is always an important test. If from lapse of time, direct evidence is not forthcoming, reasonable probabilities as are deducible from surrounding circumstances can be made the basis of decision. — — — Test of—Omnis of proof.

A court's decision as to the benami character of a transaction must rest not upon suspicion but upon legal grounds established by legal testimony. The court must consider circumstances such as source of purchase money, possession of property, custody of title deeds, adequacy of consideration and like facts. The burden of proof in such cases lies on the person who claims against the tenor of the deed. (Mookerjee and Rankin, JJ.) ABDUL LATIF KAZI v. ABDUL HUG KAZI. 28 C. W. N. 62.

The rules that guide the Court in the matter of fraudulent conveyances are as follows.—

(1) When recovery of property is claimed by the fraudulent grantor from the grantee, the modern rule is that although where intended fraud has been carried into effect, the Court will not help the owner to recover the property which he has once cast off in order to defraud others, yet if he has not defrauded any one, the Court will not punish his intention by giving his estate away to another whose retention of it is an act of gross fraud. Jaylore v Bowers 1 Q. B. D. 291 Ref.

(2) Where recovery of property is sought by the fraudulent grantee against the grantor, the rule is:—If a Benamidar, who has used a fraudulent transfer to defeat an execution levied by his ostensible transferor, were to seek the assistance of Court to obtain possession from the latter, the Court might well allow the transferor to plead the real facts, even though the plea involved a declaration by the defendant of his own turpitude (20 Mad. 326, p. 332) This is allowed, not for his own sake but on grounds of public policy 31 Bom 405; 37 Bom. 217 not followed. BENGAL ALLUVION AND DILUVION ACT (IX of 1847) Ss. 3 and 6—Survey maps—Any such new map meaning—Comparison—Evidence—Accretion—Onus.

The expression "any such new map" plainly refers to the "new map" made according to "new survey" as contemplated in section 3. The section provides for periodical surveys at intervals of not less than ten years, after a revenue survey had been completed and approved. The object of the "new survey" is to ascertain the "changes" that may have taken place since the date of the last previous survey,—that is, changes by alluvion or dereliction (not changes by possession). Section 6 then imposes upon the revenue authorities the duty to assess what may be called added land, whenever on inspection of the new map it appears that land has been added to an estate paying revenue directly to Government. There must consequently be a comparison between two maps, made at an interval of not less than ten years and each showing the revenue paying estate concerned. That estate must accordingly be in existence as a revenue paying estate if not before at least on the date of the first of the two maps taken as the basis for comparison.

The true position is that the revenue survey map is taken as the basis of comparison; but the comparison of the map is not conclusive. The comparison sets the revenue authorities in motion, and they may, then, on the best materials they can procure, proceed to assess what land they deem to be assessable.

What is liable to be assessed with revenue is land not previously assessed not land which has been formed since the revenue survey map. In the determination of the question, whether the land sought to be assessed is added land, we have to determine the land included in the estate at the time of its creation as a permanently settled estate. For this purpose, the revenue survey map is valuable but not conclusive evidence. (Mookerjee and Rankin, JJ.) SAUDAMINI DASSYA v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA

The object of Bengal Act IX of 1847 was to enable the Crown to impose assessment on lands gained from the sea or by alluvion or dereliction from the rivers. The expression "any such new map" in S. 6 of the Act refers to the new map according to the new survey contemplated by S. 3. The object of the new survey is to ascertain the change that may have taken place since the date of the last previous survey that is changes by alluvion or derelict on (not changes by possession) 5 Pat. L. J. 681 Ref. An order for apportionment was made by the Collector as between the proprietors on the one hand and the tenure-holders on the other. This order was made after due service of notice on the tenure-holders. The order was defective inasmuch as it specified merely the amount payable by the tenure-holder and the proprietors, but did not specify the instalments and the dates on which the sum included in each instalment was to be made payable. This final order was served upon the tenure-holder. No exception was taken to this order, though it was manifestly erroneous, whether by the proprietors or by the tenure-holders. The proprietors paid the amount due to the Collector in one instalment in accordance with that order. They then instituted the present suit for recovery of the amount from the tenure-holders. The tenure holders objected that they were not liable to pay the entire amount in one instalment. The courts below have made a decree in favour of the plaintiffs, only in respect of such sums as would have been payable by the tenure holders if an order of payment by instalments had been correctly made by the Collector under section 68. BENGAL ESTATES PARTITION ACT, Ss. 5 (3) 30 and 115—Applicability of—Mode of partition—Right to share in entire estate and in specified mauzas.

Sub-clause (3) of section 5 applies only to cases where a proprietor has an undivided share held in common tenancy in specific mauzas forming part of the parent estate but where he has no interest which extends over the whole estate; in other words, it applies to proprietors who have an interest in some out of the total number of villages constituting the estate. If he has a share in the remainder also, then it follows that he has a fractional interest in the entire estate as well as a fractional interest in a part, the latter fractional interest being the difference between the larger and the smaller interest, that is to say, if, he has a halfshare in twenty mauzas, and a one-sixth share in fifty-four mauzas, it must be held that he has a one-sixth share in the entire estate and in the twenty mauzas a fractional interest represented by the difference of one-half and one-sixth.

A Proprietor of a mahal which is composed of two mauzas and who is in possession of a fractional interest in each is not entitled to claim an allotment in each mauza representing his assets in that mauza; such a construction would defeat the entire principle of compactness where there are many villages and when the proprietor holds a different fractional interest in each. ## BENGAL ESTATES PARTITION ACT, S. 99.

—S. 25—Scope of—Suit for declaration of prior valid private partition—If maintainable.

In proceedings before the collector for partition, objection was taken that a prior private partition had taken place, but this was disallowed. The objectors filed a suit for a declaration that as prior private partition had taken place, it was not open to a Revenue Court to grant the same. Held, the suit was not barred under S. 25 Estates Partition Act, (Das and Kulwant Sahay, JJ) KULDIP SAHAY v. RAJKUMAR SINGH. 1 Pat. L. R. 386 : 4 Pat. L. T. 633.

In view of considerable difficulty and uncertainty in realising Sairat rent, the value of Sairat rent is not equivalent to the assets of ordinary rent. The fact that a co-sharer accepted the system of valuation before the papers were adopted under S. 49 does not debar him from objecting Equity could only be ensured by a reasonably approximate distribution of the risk. (Morshead I. C. S.) MEGHRAJ MARWARI v. MUNSHI KALI SAHAL. 1 Pat. L. R. 259 (Cr.).

—S. 57—Evidence of partition.

Where it is shown that the parties have acquiesced in the result of a partition it must be presumed that they or their predecessors in interest were parties to the partition. Where the parties have been holding their estates in separate shares from time immemorial, the fact that the original partition proceedings were lost in antiquity is no reason for disturbing divisions which existed for a long period. Although no deed of partition can be produced and from lapse of time no direct evidence of partition could be given, yet very long possession and acquiescence in the separate holding of the lands in the estate are sufficient to prove that there was a complete partition. 3. —S. 99—Applicability of—Hindu Joint family—Mortgage of—Specific immoveable property—T. P. Act S. 68 (c).

BENGAL ESTATES PARTITION ACT, S. 119.

The mortgage granted in this case was a mortgage not of the mortgagor's share in the entire estate belonging to a joint Hindu family but of specific lands of which the mortgagors were in possession by an agreement with their co-sharers. Held that the provisions S. 99 of the Estates Partition Act had no application to such a case. The section which governs the case is S. 68 clause (c) of the Transfer of Property Act which provides that where the mortgagee being entitled to possession of the property the mortgagor fails to deliver the same to him or to secure possession thereof to him without disturbance by the mortgagor or any other person then in such a case the mortgagee has a right to sue the mortgagor for the mortgage money. Where after the partition the plaintiff's mortgagees were dispossessed of the property of which they were in possession under the Zarpeshgi. They, could resist that dispossession, and therefore they were bound to give up possession, and the result is that the mortgagors have failed to secure the possession of the property to the mortgagees and in such a case the statute expressly provides that the mortgagees have a right to sue for the mortgage money. —Ch. 6—Zerai land—Holders paying neither rent nor revenue to Government—Record of rights—Rent fixed in—Liability for.

The land in question in the suit belonged to an estate owned by two individuals. One of them mortgaged his zemindari rights to certain persons keeping his possession over 141 bighas of zerai land. Subsequently the mortgagees came to purchase the mortgage interest of their mortgagor and the 141 bighas of zerai land also came to be held by different persons by transfer. The defendants came to hold 4 bighas of the zerai land. The Government revenue of the entire estate used to be paid by the transferees of the zemindari interest, inasmuch as they got their names in register D of the Collectorate. The holders of the zerai land including the defendants did not pay any Government revenue or rent to the proprietors whose names were registered in the Collectorate. The entire revenue was used to be paid by the recorded proprietors, some of whom sued under the Estates Partition Act. Held that the holders of the zerai land were liable to pay the same rent as was payable for lands of similar nature in the neighbourhood. The presumption raised by the Record of Rights in favour of the proprietor entitles him to claim a share and equitable rent. (Jwala Prasad, J.) BHOLA PANDEY V. RAM BILAS PANDEY

BENGAL LAND REGISTRATION ACT, (VII of 1876) S. 28—Alteration of entries by Collector—When justifiable

The father of the applicant gifted a 6-Anna share of Tauzi No. 13350 in 1905 and the donee got himself registered as proprietor. The applicant applied for correction of Register D on the ground that the gift did not cover all the three villages of which the estate had consisted. Held, that no change had occurred so as to justify the Collector in altering the entries made in 1915. —S. 29—Applicability.

S. 29 of the Land Registration Act only applies to a case in which a person whose name is recorded is no longer in possession of an interest and in which other persons' names have been recorded for every portion of the interest in which such person's name was borne on the register. —Ss. 51 and 72—Finding of District Judge—Validity of Kutola—Revision.

The Land Registration Act gives no power to any Civil Court to amend or alter the entry made by the Collector in his books in pursuance of the Civil Court's orders not to interfere with the possession of the successful party. As a matter of first impression it seems that S. 62 of the Land Registration Act means that there is no right of appeal or review under any enactment whatsoever against the order of the Civil Court. —S. 52—Jurisdiction of Revenue court—Determination of title under civil court sale.

When a registration has long been completed and has become final, it is not the province of the Revenue authorities to enter into the validity of the right of another person by purchase at a civil court sale. The matter is one for the determination of the civil court. (Morshead, M. C.) JANARDHAN PRASAD V. MT. SANJHARI KUER.

—Ss. 52 and 55—Person in possession—Mutation of names—Right to.

S. 52 of the Land Registration Act contemplates two classes of cases (1) the case in which the applicant's possession exists and (2) cases in which succession or transfer has taken place.

BENGAL LAND REGISTRATION ACT, S. 78.

The first class includes cases in which the applicant claims to have assumed charge as joint proprietor on behalf of his cosharer or manager. In such a case the Collector need satisfy himself only on the point of the possession of the applicant. Claims to joint ownership should not be indiscriminately accepted. But where the case of the applicant is that he had been in joint possession prior to the death of the deceased and has continued since, he cannot be refused registration. (Morhead, M C) BHOGRAJ SAHAY v DULHIN RAMKUMARI KUER. 1 Pat. L. R. (Cr.) 71

Ss 78, 79 and 81—Ijaradar—Proprietor

An ijaradar is merely a lessee and S. 81 has no application to a person who is not himself a proprietor but who has an interest subordinate to that of a proprietor.

S. 81 seems to be a rider to Ss. 78 to 80 and as those sections deal with the case of proprietors there is no reason to think that S. 81 refers to cases of persons other than a proprietor. (Chatterjee and Sukrawardy, JJ.) PROBODH CHANDRA MITTER v. HARISH CHANDRA NASCAR. 27 C. W. N. 888

S. 85—Identity of applicant—Revision

Where several years after the registration of a person's name in the records an application is made by a rival claimant on the ground that he is the person preferentially entitled and there is a dispute as regards his identity, the Revenue Court may well leave the claimant to establish his claim in the Civil Court. It is largely a matter of opinion as to the circumstances in which a Commissioner's powers of revision should be exercised. (Morhead M C) MT. MADHURANI KUER v. RAJLILA SINGH. 1 Pat. L. R. 261 Cr.

S. 85—Revisional powers of Commissioner.

S. 85 confers Revisional jurisdiction on the commissioner over orders passed by all officers subordinate to him. The power ought to be exercised when there has been a failure of jurisdiction or a signal failure of duty or it is necessary to prevent gross abuse or injustice. Where the aggrieved party has a right of appeal or a remedy by way of suit in the civil court the revisional powers should not be exercised. (Mr. Morhead) TULSI RAM v. MT. SHAYAMPEARI KUER. 1 Pat. The expression "signed" in S. 37 of the Beng. Mun. But if the name occurs in a document, not as authenticating the whole, but only for a particular purpose or only with reference to a part, it is not an effective signature. Ss. 34, 43, and 44—Lease by Municipality—Proof of—Statutory formalities—Onus.

A lease of Municipal property would be void unless the lease had been sanctioned by the commissioners at a meeting. The burden clearly lies upon the defendant lessee to establish that the requirements of the statute were fulfilled. In the normal course of events, the resolution adopted at a meeting of the commissioners must be recorded; and section 43 provides that minutes of the proceedings of a meeting of the commissioners shall be entered in a book to be kept for the purpose and shall be signed by the president of the meeting, and such book shall be open to the inspection of the tax-payers. Under sub-section 5 of S. 78 of the Evidence Act, proceedings of a municipal body in British India may be proved by a copy of such proceeding certified by the keeper thereof. Where the minute book has been produced, and there is no trace of a resolution on the subject, the position is that there is no valid lease.

— Ss. 209 and 353—Agreement with Municipality—Imposition of conditions.

It is open to a Municipality by a requisition under S. 209 of the Bengal Municipal Act, to compel a person to erect a fence by the side of a tank. The person so bound can validly transfer to the Municipality the duty by conditions entered into by the latter with the former.

The language of S. 209 of the Beng. Mun Act, is only indicative of this, that there is power in the Municipality to require a person to cause a fence to be erected by the side of a tank. But, because the power is existent in the Municipality by virtue of statutory provisions, it does not follow that the Municipality cannot accept conditions imposed by a person when he made a free gift of certain land to the Municipality. There is nothing in the Municipal Act itself which can remotely suggest that the Municipality is incompetent to enter into a binding engagement of this description. If that is so, the Municipality was held in the circumstances of the particular case, not competent to require him to cause a fencing to be erected at his own cost. BENGAL AND NORTH-WEST PROVINCES AND ASSAM CIVIL COURTS ACT—(XII OF 1887)—Valuation of suit—Valuation by plaintiff not challenged by defendant—Effect of.

Although or mainly the valuation as made by the plaintiff is to be accepted, the plaintiff is not at liberty to make an arbitrary valuation with a view to alter the forum, either of the trial or the suit or the adjudication of the appeal. The valuation as made by the plaintiff may be challenged either by the Court of its own motion or by the defendant. In either event, there is a determination of the question of valuation. If, on such investigation, it transpires that the subject-matter of the suit has been undervalued or overvalued the Court may call upon the plaintiff to amend the valuation of the suit. If the plaintiff does not carry out the order of the Court, the consequence described in O. 7, R. 11 followed. This is the penalty for persistence in under valuation. If the order of the Court is carried out, the statement of valuation for purposes of jurisdiction or court-fees are both amended, and the amended valuation thereupon becomes the valuation of the suit. When S. 31 of the Bengal Civil Courts Act refers to the value of the original suit, the reference is to the valuation as made by the plaintiff subject to such amendment as may have been made under order of the Trial Court. The Legislature did not mean by the expression "the value of the original suit" in S. 21 the real value of the subject-matter of the original suit regardless of what may have happened in the Trial Court. Where the plaintiff stated the value of the subject-matter of the suit for purposes of jurisdiction as also of court-fees, at Rs. 3,600 and the defendant did not challenge this statement and the trial proceeded on the assumption that the valuation made by the plaintiffs was correct held that it was not competent to the defendant after they had been defeated in two successive courts to change the forum of appeal by the assertion that the value of the subject-matter of the suit exceeds Rs. 10,000—in other words, that if the suit had been properly valued that appeal would have lain to this court and not to the court of the District Judge. 34 C. 954 ; 23 C. 536 ; 18 A. Regn. XXIX of 1814 does not apply to Kharagpur Ghatwalis. One of the main distinctions between Ghatwalis and the Birbhum and of the Kharagpur type is that the former are inalienable except with the consent of Government by whom the settlements were made and to whom revenue is paid direct, whereas the latter are alienable subject to the consent of the landlord to whom the rent or revenue is paid. The Regulation of 1814 applies to the former only. The incidents attaching to a Ghatwali of the Kharagpur type as evidenced in the case are: (1) that it is impartible, and permanent (2) that it descends by lineal primogeniture and (3) that it is alienable at least with the consent of the Zemindar. Unless there be some peculiar feature inherent in Ghatwali tenure which prevents the operation of the Mirakshare rule of succession in the case of impartible property, the same rule would apply. In a Mirakshare family being in commensality the inheritance even of impartible estates is confined to male members to the exclusion of females, unless the estate is the separate or self-acquired property and normally in the course of succession to a male property is not different from that which regulates succession to other impartible property. ## BENGAL TENANCY ACT.

—Immediate payment not necessary to create tenancy—Waste land.

The immediate payment of rent is not an essential attribute in the creation of a tenancy. It is by no means unusual for waste lands to be granted to a tenant by his landlord with a stipulation that no rent shall be payable until they are brought under cultivation. There is nothing in the Bengal Tenancy Act which prevents such an arrangement. (Dawson Miller, C. J., and Mukherjee, J.) CHARTER KUMARI DEBI v. PRATAPDAJ SINGH AND OTHERS. (1923) Pat. 176.

So far as tenures are concerned, the Bengal Tenancy Act makes it obligatory upon the tenants to have their names recorded in the landlord's sherista whenever they become entitled to them by succession. In the case of a tenure, where only one tenant takes the trouble to have his name recorded in the landlord's sherista and the others, either by design or negligence, fail to do so, it may be presumed that the tenants who failed to have their names recorded in the landlord's sherista consented to the tenant who had his name recorded representing them both in transactions and in suits affecting the landlord and the tenants. 10 C. 896; 26 C. 677 Ret.

But other principles arise where the Court has to deal with the case of the sale of a holding, as to which there is nothing in the Bengal Tenancy Act compelling rayats to have their names recorded in the landlord's sherista. No presumption as to representation can be drawn by a Court where only one of the co-rayats has his name recorded in the landlord's sherista, and the others failed or neglected to do so. 9 C. W. N. 843 Ret.

It is a question of fact in each case whether the recorded tenant does in fact represent the holding in dispute and the fact that only one tenant is registered is an item in the evidence upon the question whether he is or is not the representative tenant qua the landlord. —S. 3—Successive leases—Rights of lessee—Liability to pay rent.

Under the Bengal Tenancy Act the question of the status of a tenant is not without importance and it would introduce confusion into the administration of the Act to say that a holding be leased by the landlord for the purpose of cultivation first to one ryot and then to another the second ryot would be entitled to collect the rent payable by the first. The plaintiff claimed rent from the defendants in possession as bargadars, and he rested his claim on oral settlement from the superior landlord. It was found as a fact that the relationship of landlord and tenant did not exist between him and the defendant and there was no proof that the superior landlord had assigned to the plaintiff the right to collect rent from the defendants. Held that the plaintiff's suit for rent was not maintainable even though the superior landlord who was impleaded as a party to the suit did not contest it. —Ss. 3 and 50—Tenancy—Proof of—Tenancy before the T. P. Act.

When a landlord sues a person on the allegation that he is a trespasser and that person sets up a transfer from a tenant, it is for the defendant to prove both the tenancy and validity of the transfer and, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, homes and land comprised in a tenancy created before the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 was passed, must be presumed to be non-transferable.

Where the defendants deny the fact that the present holding came into existence before the Transfer of Property Act it is for the plaintiff to prove that the tenancy came into existence before the Transfer of Property Act. (Kurwant Sahay, J.) MAHADEO SARAN v. DHAKAMNATH SAHAY. 72 I. C. 662.

—S. 3 cl. 5—Suit by co sharer landlord for damages for use and occupation—Not a suit for rent.

Where a cosharer landlord brings a suit for that which is payable to him by a tenant for the use and occupation of his share of the land the suit is not a suit for rent as defined in S 3 cl. 5 of the B. T. Act. Consequently a decree passed in the suit is not a decree under the B. T. Act and must be executed under the C. P. Code and not as a decree for rent under the B. T. Act. —S. 6 (a)—Tenure holder—Enhancement of rent.

S. 6 (a) of the B. T. Act prescribes that where a tenure has been held from the time of the permanent settlement, its rent shall not be liable to enhancement, except upon proof that the rent is enhanceable either by local custom or by the conditions under which the tenure is held. Where there is no proof of local custom, the court has to determine, first, whether the tenures have been held from the time of the Permanent Settlement, and secondly, what are the conditions under which the tenure is held. —S. 7—Liability to enhanced rent.

A stipulation that the tenure holder is to pay rent for lands besides those mentioned in the Kabulyat which may be under his cultivation or which may be found in excess upon measurement indicates that rent is not fixed in perpetuity and hence the same is enhanceable. —S. 16—Patni tenure—Interest acquired by succession—Registration.

It is incumbent on persons, who acquire an interest in a patni tenure by succession, to get themselves registered in the books of the landlord, under S. 15 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. If they fail to take the necessary steps and at the same time make default in the payment of rent, they cannot very well be heard to assail the legality of a sale under the Patoi Regulation on the ground that their names were not mentioned in the application to the Collector. —S. 20—Settled raiyat—Status of—Proof of holding—Cultivation—Necessity.

If a person is alleged to have been a settled raiyat it must be proved that he continuously held, as a raiyat, land situated in the village, although the land need not be identical throughout the period of 12 years. The holding of land is to be continuous, and, further, the holding is to be in the character of a raiyat. This becomes obvious when regard is had to the definition of the term 'raiya' given in S. 5, cl. (2). Raiyat means primarily a person who has acquired a right to hold land for the purpose of cultivating by himself, or by members of his family or by hired servants, or with the aid of partners and includes also to the successors in-interest of persons who have acquired such right. (Mookerjee and Rankin, JJ.) MAHARAJA BAHADUR SIR PRODYOT KUMAR TAGORE v. UMESH CHANDRA SAHA. 72 I. C. 640.

—S. 22—Acquire meaning of—Accrual of Tenancy rights.

The word "acquire" in respect of occupancy rights is really used in the Act, but in the preceding S. 21, sub section (2), the expression occurs "shall be deemed to have a right of occupancy under law then in force." But it appears to be carefully avoided in S. 22, sub section (2) in the sentence commencing "If the occupancy right in land is transferred to a person," It would appear then, from the context, that the word "acquire" implies the accrual to a raiyat tenancy of rights conferred by the Statute rather than the transfer of rights by another tenant. —S. 20—Zerai land—Tenant from lessee—Occupancy rights.

A tenant from the lessee of Zerai lands is a raiyat within the meaning of S. 10 B. T. Act and can acquire occupancy rights by holding for 12 years. (Mullick and Bucknill JJ.) SHEGOBIND RAM SAHU v. MAHIPAT DUSADH. 2 Pat. 913.

The disputed lands were comprised in a revenue paying estate which was purchased by the plaintiffs on the 6th March 1916 at a sale for arrears of revenue. On the 11th february 1918 the plaintiffs commenced this action to eject the defendant as a trespasser. The defendant was a cultivator who had acquired the right of occupancy raiyat in the Record of Rights finally published in 1895. On the 10th July 1901 he took from the then proprietors a permanent lease under what was described as a Taluki Potah. The plaintiffs contended that the effect of the permanent lease granted to him by the proprietors on the 11th July 1901 was to extinguish the rights of occupancy which he then possessed and that thereafter he must be deemed to have held as a tenure holder. Held that the occupancy right has not been affected by the subsequent acquisition of the tenure 26 C. W. N. 565 (P. C.) Foll. (Mookerjee and Chotner, JJ.) *JOGENDRA KRISHNA ROY v. —Ss 22 (1) and 120—Private land—Proof of—Evidence of letting as zerai—Occupancy rights—Citation of—Purchase of holding by landlord.

Regard should be had to any declaration made before the 2nd day of March 1883 by the landlord and communicated to the tenants in respect to the reservation of the proprietor's right over the land as his private land. The words in S. 120 (2) of the B. T. Act 'any other evidence that may be produced' must mean any other evidence tending in the same direction that may be produced to show the assertion of any title on the part of the proprietor, and communicated to the tenant before that date.

There is nothing in S. 120 itself to cut down the generality of the expression "any other evidence that may be produced" used by the Legislature in S. 120, paragraph (2) of the Bengal Tenancy Act. If it were the intention of the Legislature to exclude such evidence as may be furnished by the dealings between the landlords and tenants subsequent to the 2nd day of March, 1883, it should have expressed that intention in more clear terms. As S. 120 stood at the time when the Act was passed, it allowed the Court to consider "any other evidence that may be produced" in connection with the question whether the land claimed as zamil was in fact zamil. The Evidence Act deals with the question what evidence is relevant evidence and there is no power in the Court to reject any evidence as irrelevant evidence if the landlord offers that evidence and the Evidence Act says that it is relevant evidence.

A demise on the footing that the land demised is the proprietor's private land is hardly an agreement or compromise within the meaning of the terms as used in paragraph (2a) of the section but quite apart from any other consideration, the agreement or compromise which the Revenue Officer is not to regard is an agreement or compromise made before the Revenue Officer in a proceeding connected with the record-of-rights. —S. 22, Cl. 2—Non-transferable occupancy holding—Purchase by co-sharer landlord—Status of purchaser.

Where a co-sharer landlord purchases a non-transferable occupancy holding he does not acquire title in the holding as a raiyat under Sec. 22 Cl. 2 of the B. T. Act before its amendment by Act I of 1907. Consequently a person to whom he let out the holding would be a raiyat and not under-raiyat. 27 C. W. N. 759. (Walmesley and Ghose, JJ.) ROSHANALI v. —S. 22 Sub. S. (2)—Occupancy holding—Purchase by part proprietor—Effect of.

The effect of section 22 B. T. Act as amended by the Eastern Bengal Assam Council Act is that the occupancy holding disappears and the purchaser enjoys the land in his character of proprietor or teuare holder and not as a raiyat. But as upon the disappearance of the tenant right all the holders of the superior interest would prima facie be entitled to possession, that one amongst them who is allowed to keep exclusive possession of the land is made to pay his co-sharers a fair and equitable sum for such use and occupation. The co-sharers, who are deprived of the rent they had previously realised from the occupancy raiyat, are in this manner compensated for their loss. —S. 23—Right to trees—Custom—Record of rights.

In a suit by a landlord against his tenant for recovery of the price of two mango trees alleged to have been cut and appropriated by the defendants who were his tenants, the defendants pleaded that in pursuance of a custom in the village they were entitled to cut and appropriate the trees standing on their kasht lands. The Court below found in favour of the custom set up by the defendants relying in support on an entry in the Record of Rights which showed that the names of the tenants had been recorded against their holdings with a note "Bakabza Raiyat". Held that on the evidence the custom had been made out. (Jwala Prasad, J.) MAHARAJA SIR RAMESWAR SINGH BAHADUR v. SONDHARI RAI. 1 Pat. L. R. 105.

—S. 29—Enhanced rent—Claim for.

The true effect of S. 29 B. T. Act is that there is no permanent enhancement when there is an attempt to increase rent without writing registered. But still the legislature allows the landlord to realise the rent at the increased rate provided rent at that rate has been actually paid for a continuous period of not less than 3 years immediately preceding the period for which rent is claimed. If the landlords do not bring themselves within the precise language of the clause, they are not entitled to the benefit. (Mookerjee and Chotzner, JJ.) JANAKI BALLAV ROY v. ENAT MONDAL. 37 C. L. Although S. 40 of the B. T. The object of the application for commutation is to secure an alteration of the most essential element of the tenancy, namely, the rent. It is of the utmost importance to the party whether the rent is to be paid in kind or in cash and if the rent is to be paid in cash, what sum should be taken as the proper amount payable in lieu of rent previously paid in kind. An order for commutation cannot be made without notice to the party affected and where it is so made by the Revenue Court it acts without jurisdiction and its order is ultra vires. ## BENGAL TENANCY ACT, S. 40

On an application by the transferee of an occupancy holding for commutation of rent under S. 40 of the B. T. Act it was held that the onus lay on the applicant to establish his status as occupancy tenant which status was challenged. The applicant can establish his right by proving that occupancy holdings are transferable by custom without the consent of the landlord or that the landlord has in fact recognised the transfer. It is not incumbent on the Revenue officer to decide the question of the custom of transferability in entertaining an application for commutation. It is a question for the Civil Court and the Revenue Court need only enquire whether the transferee has been recognised as a tenant. (Morshead, M. C.) KULDIP NARAIN SINGH v. MT. JASODA KOER 1 Pat. — S. 40 (4) (b)—Commutation of rent—Preceding ten years—Meaning of

The natural interpretation of S. 40 of the B. T. Act is that in commutation proceedings the average should be taken for the years preceding the time at which is had regard to this factor. Where an appeal is pending against a decree for rent at the time of commutation proceedings, the decree rents ought not to be included in the average, especially if the decretal amount far exceeds the actual realisations of the previous years. the plaintiff brought a suit for fash 1325 and part of fash 1326. The defendants pleaded that during the revisional survey the rent was recorded at Rs. 24 8-0 and that the plaintiff was not entitled to pay more. The trial Court decreed the suit at a rental of Rs. 24-7 0. The appellate Court held that the tenancy created by the kabuliat was a new tenancy and that the defendant while executing the zarpesgi lease did not lose his original status of a raiyat and decreed the suit in full. Held that the transactions of mortgage and lease were independent of each other and the rent recoverable by the plaintiff was regulated by S. 48 of the B. T. Act and the plaintiff was not entitled to a greater rent than that to which he was entitled under the section. (Ross, J.) CHATURGUN BIND v. TILAKDHARI SINGH. 71 I. C. 470 : 1923 P. 402.

On the 26th December, 1914 a notice was served by the plaintiffs upon the defendant. This notice was described as a notice under S. 49 Bengal Tenancy Act. It stated in the first place that the plaintiffs did not admit that the defendants were under-rayats. But it was added that if they were under-rayats, they should vacate the land. There was no specification of the date when the defendants were required to vacate the land. The suit in ejectment was not instituted till the 7th January 1918. On a question arising as to the validity of the notice, Held, that technicalities of the English Law relating to the form and contents of a notice to quit should not be introduced in connection with the provisions of S. 49, Bengal Tenancy Act. There was sufficient compliance with the requirements of S. 49 if what was served upon the tenant gave notice to quit the land at the end of the agricultural year next following and the suit was instituted after the lapse thereof. — S. 50—Applicability to suits or proceedings under the Act—Suit in ejectment.

S. 50 (2) is, by its terms, limited in its application to suits or proceedings under the Bengal Tenancy Act. A suit for ejectment does not all within that description. But it has been ruled that even in cases where S. 50 is not directly applicable, the Court may act on a presumption similar to the one arising under the section, if the facts justify the necessary inference. The same principle plainly applies to suits or proceedings where the rule embodied in S. 50 is extended by analogy. (Mookerjee and Rankin, JJ.) MANMATHA NATH KAR v. PROBODH CHANDRA. 37 C. L. BENG. TENANCY ACT, S. 50.

—S. 50—Continuity of tenure—Variation of rent—Sub-division—Effect of.

A Sub-division of a tenure does not deprive the tenant of the benefit of S. 50 of the B. T. Act, nor does it affect the continuity of the tenure. A slight variation in rent, though unexplained, does not deprive the tenant of the benefit of the presumption under S. 50 of the B. T. Act. (Mookerjee and Chotzner, JJ.) TARAKUMAR GHOSE v. KUMAR ARUN CHANDRA SINGH.

74 I. C. 383 : 1923 C. 261.

—Ss. 50 and 29—Distinction between.

S. 50 of the B. T. Act contemplates a case where a tenancy has been held at a certain rate, while S. 29 applies only to a case where rent has been actually paid for a period of three years. (Mookerjee and Chotzner, JJ.) JANAKI BALLAV ROY v. ENAT MANDAL.

72 I. C. 136 : 1923 Cal. 600.

—S. 50—Presumption—Rebuttal—Contract of tenancy subsequently entered into between the parties.

Where there is a uniform payment of rent for 20 years, it is open to the landlords to rebut the presumption arising in favour of the tenants by a contract of new tenancy entered into subsequently which entitles the landlords to claim rent from the tenants after the expiry of the term of the lease at the rate of rent payable for the cultivated lands of the village. —Ss. 50 and 104 (h)—Presumption of fixity of rent—Origin of tenancy known—Suit under S. 104 (h)—Maintainability.

The presumption as to the fixity of rent laid down in S. 50 of the B. T. Act does not apply where the origin of a tenancy is known. It is not competent to a Civil Court to revise the rent fixed in the Settlement Rent Roll Where a person is not really affected by an entry of rent in the Record of Rights he would not be entitled to claim a revision of rent under S. 104 (h) Cl. 4 of the B. T. Act even though his case may fall under Cl. 3 of the Section (Woodroffe and Suhrawardy, JJ.) SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA v. RAM CHARAN ACHARJYA, 70 I. C. 207.

—S. 50—Rent—Partly payable in kind and partly in cash—Fixed rent—Produce rent.

Raiyats who pay their rent in kind partially or entirely are not disentitled to the benefit of the statutory presumption corresponding to the rule now embodied in S. 50. In S. 50 the term 'rent' cannot be restricted to 'money rent' and it bears the meaning attributed to it in S. 3, Cl. (5). (37 C. 626 Doubtful), (Mookerjee and Chotzner, JJ.) DINA NATH PAL v. RAJA SATI PRASAD GARGA BAHADUR. 72 I. C. 663 : 1923 C. 74.

—S. 50—Settlement of fair and equitable rent—Enhancement—Plea that defendant is a fixed rate raiyat—Evidence.

BENG. TENANCY ACT, S. 50.

Under S. 50 sub s (1) where a raiyat and his predecessors in interest have held at a rent or rate of rent which has not been changed from the time of the permanent settlement, the rent or rate of rent shall not be liable to be increased except on the ground of alteration in the area of the holding. This embodies a substantive rule of law. Sub. S. (2) lays down that if it is proved in any suit or other proceeding under the B. T. Act that a raiyat and his predecessors in interest have held at a rent or rate of rent which has not been changed during the twenty years immediately before the institution of the suit or proceeding, it shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, that they have held at that rent or rate of rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement. This deals with the mode of proof and raises a rebuttable presumption. There is no reason why an occupancy raiyat should be excluded from the category of a raiyat for the purposes of this section. A raiyat at a fixed rate is not created by S. 50 which merely furnishes a rule of evidence to enable a person to prove with facility that he is a raiyat at a fixed rate. S. 115 of the B. T. Act does not come into operation at all until all possible proceedings under Ch. X have been exhausted. If discontinuous receipts for rent produced by the tenant show that rent has been paid at the same rate for the years covered thereby, the court may, by an application of the principle of continuity, infer that there has been no change in the intervening periods. 36 C. —S. 50 (1 and 2)—Applicability of—Permanent Settlement—Presumption.

The word settlement refers to permanent settlement of 1793 and not to any other settlement. To gain the advantage of S. 50, it is necessary to show that the rate of rent has not been changed from the time of the Permanent Settlement of 1793. (Greaves and Panton, JJ.) OSMAN MANDAL v. —S. 50 (2)—Presumption under.

In view of the provisions of S. 115 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the tenants are not entitled to the benefit of the presumption which arises under S. 50 Cl. (2) of the B. T. Act. In order to establish that they are entitled to their holding on payment of a fixed rent in perpetuity, they must prove by evidence that they have held the land at a rate of rent which has not been changed since the change of the Permanent Settlement

—S. 50 (2)—Proof of payment of uniform rate of rent—Procedure.

What has to be established to raise the presumption under S 50 (2) B. T. Act is, not that rent has been actually paid at a uniform rate during 20 years, but that the tenant has held at a rent or rate of rent which has not been changed during 20 years. Such holding at a uniform rent may be established, even if it is not proved that rent has actually been paid during a portion of the 20 years (Mookerjee and Rankin JJ.) SATIS CHANDRA BISWAS v. ## —Ss. 52 and 105—Claim for excess rent for additional area—Enhancement of rent—Question as to.

Where a landlord applied for excess of rent for excess area and also for enhancement of rent, and gave up his claim to the latter but a decree for enhancement of rent was passed held the Special Judge should not have considered the question of enhancement but should have confined himself to the question of fair and equitable rent having regard to the provisions of S 52 of the Act. (N. R. Chatterjee and Pearson, JJ.) RAM RENU ROY v. MIDNAPUR ZEMINDARI CO. LTD. 1923 Cal. 111.

—S. 52—Enhancement of rent—Excess area—Proof of—Nature of the suit.

If the landlord can show that since the creation of the tenancy, rent had been assessed, and that when rent was last assessed, the assessment was on the basis of a certain area and that the defendants are in possession of land in which no rent was assessed at the time then the landlord is entitled to increase of rent. (Newbould and Pantou, JJ.) RAJA JOGENDRA KISHORE ROY CHOUDHURY v. AKTAR. 1923 Cal. 278.

—S. 52—Rent claimed on basis of excess in area—Burden of proof.

In a suit for additional rent on the basis of excess in area the landlord has to prove the excess and this implies he has also to prove what area of land was originally let. The section is concerned with cases of alteration of area and not miscalculation of area.

As the mere proof that a tenant's rent has been calculated at some date in the past upon the supposition that his holding is of a certain size, a contract cannot be inferred that he is liable at any time to re assessment upon the actual area.

When a letting as the basis of management is proved the tenant has to show that the rent was consolidated rent for all land within specific boundaries, but if the landlord fails to prove the original area his suit must fail. (Rankin and Buckland, JJ.) MANINDRA CHANDRA NANDI v. KAULAT SHAIK. 50 Cal 957, 28 C. W. N. 264.

—S. 52—Suit for enhanced rent—Increased area—Proof

If a landlord can prove what was the area upon which rent has been paid and what is the increased area upon which he claims, the Court will give him a decree in respect of the excess. (Mullick and Bucknill, JJ.) RADHIKA RAMAN v. SATNARAIN KOERI. 74 I. C. 961.

Where a co-sharer landlord under an arrangement with the other co-sharer landlords and the tenants brings a suit for recovery of his share of the rent separately the tenants are entitled to apply for the reduction of rent on account of reduction in area, 27 C. 417, 21 C. ## —Ss. 53 and 57—Rent—Provision for payment by monthly instalments—Interest how calculated—Tender, validity of—Part satisfaction.

A contract to pay rent in monthly instalments and in default to pay interest at 12½ per cent per annum, entered into before the enactment of Ss. 53 and 67 of the B. T. Act is valid. It is competent to the parties to enter into an agreement for payment of money rent in modification of the provision of four instalments. 18 C. L. J. 175 followed. (Mookerjee and Rankin JJ.) BEHARI LAL BISWAS v. NASIMUNNESSA BIBI. 37 C. L. J. 222 : 73 I. C. 482 : 1923 Cal. 527.

—S. 55—Arrears of rent—Interest—Tender of smaller sum—Acceptance by landlord—Appropriation.

S. 55 of the B. T. Act does not abrogate the rule that a creditor cannot be compelled to accept any sum in part satisfaction of his dues. That section treats not of tender but of appropriation. Where a tenant tendered the amount of arrears of rent due without the interest thereon the landlord is not bound to accept even the principal amount of rent. The principal and interest constitute one indivisible and entire claim.

BENG. TENANCY ACT, S. 60.

A tender must be unconditional or, at all events, free from any condition to which the creditor may rightfully object (Bookerjee and Rankin, JJ.) BEHARI LAL BISWAS v. NASIMUNNESSA BIBI

—S. 60—Applicability of—Fractional proprietor—Lease—Suit by ijaradar of lessor for rent—Plea of discharge—Bengal Land Registration Act, Ss. 78, 79 and 81.

S. 60 of the B. T. Act deals with cases where rent is due to the proprietor of an estate. Where the rent is not due to the proprietor the plaintiff being not a proprietor but an ijaradar, and as ijaradar, the plaintiff could not get his name registered under the Land Registration Act, S. 60 has no application. No doubt "proprietor" is defined in S. 3, Cl. (2) of the B. T. Act as a person owning an estate or part of an estate. But S. 60 lays down that the receipt of the person registered under the Land Registration Act "as proprietor of that estate" shall be a sufficient discharge, so that although a proprietor may be the owner of an estate or a part of an estate the section merely speaks of the proprietor of that estate which indicates an entire estate.

The case where rents payable to two or more proprietors the extent of whose interest is required to be registered under the Land Registration Act, and which is dealt in the second part of S. 78 of that Act, is not dealt with by Sec. 60 of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

The object of sec. 60 of the Bengal Tenancy Act appears to be to afford indemnity to tenants who pay rents to the person whose name is registered under the Act, and to debar them from pleading in defence to a claim for rent by such person that the rent is due to a third person but the section does not appear to have provided for cases where the names of all the part proprietors have been registered under the Land Registration Act. —S. 60—Fixed rates tenancy—Entry in Record of Rights—Payment at uniform rate.

Where the Record of Rights is against them, the tenants are not entitled to the benefit of the presumption afforded by S. 50, Cl. 2 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. Where the tenants could not have the benefit of the presumption of S. 50 (2) of the Bengal Tenancy Act he has to establish by evidence that the rate of rent has not been changed from the time of Permanent Settlement; in other words once the Record of Rights shows that the tenant is not a tenant at a fixed rate of rent, it is for the tenant to establish by cogent evidence that his rent or rate of rent has not been changed from the time of the Permanent Settlement. —S. 87—Arrears of rent—Interest due on—Kabuliyat before the passing of the Act—Rent sale—Effect of.

Where a kabuliyat has been executed prior to the B. T. Act the provisions of S. 67 of the Act are not applicable to the case and the interest on arrears of rent must be calculated as provided in the contract. But where the holding has been sold in execution of a rent decree, the purchaser takes the holding with the ordinary incidents of a tenancy. A stipulation for the payment of interest at an exorbitant rate cannot be supposed to be an incident of a tenancy which would attach to it even after a sale for arrears of rent. The distinction between usual and unusual terms of a contract of tenancy is a distinction which should be taken into consideration in determining whether the incident in question continues to attach to the tenancy notwithstanding its sale for arrears of rent. 26 C. 315, 24 C. 37 Rel. road cess returns to prove that the rents had been unchanged for over 20 years. Held the road cess returns were inadmissible in evidence having regard to the provisions of the Bengal Cess Act. To start with, there was a presumption in favour of the defts from an entry under S. 103 B of the B. T. Act. Therefore the onus of proof rested entirely on the plaintiffs landlords to negative the effect of the said presumption. Assuming the entries in the quinquennial register were admissible in evidence they were not sufficient to negative the presumption under S. 103 B of the B. T. Act. It is not necessary to sue for a declaration that an entry in the Record of Rights that the defendants were raiyats at fixed rates is wrong before instituting a proceeding for enhancement of rent under the Bengal Tenancy Act.

If a suit is substantially such a declaratory suit as is contemplated in the proviso to section 111-A of the Bengal Tenancy Act, then the plaintiff cannot, by adding a prayer for confirmation of possession, escape the six years' rule. In order to attract the operation of S. 109, of Bengal Tenancy Act, which contemplates creating a bar to the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts under certain circumstances, it is essential to establish that the Civil suit had for its subject a matter which had already formed the subject of an application under S. 105 of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

The introduction of S. 105 (a) has not altered the scope of S. 109 which has to be construed on the same line as before introduction of that subsection. (Bucknill, J.) SHEOPRATAP DUBEY v. SHEOGULAM LAL. 72 I. C. 781.

Where the tenant claimed abatement of rent under S. 52 but no such question was raised or investigated in the proceeding under S. 105, on a plain and literal reading of S. 109, the position could not be maintained that the suit concerned a matter which had already been the subject of an application under S. 105. The appellant, urged a wider construction to be put upon S. 11. Where it was contended that as in a case where S. 11, C. P. C. is applicable, a question which might and should have been raised is deemed to have been raised and decided the High Court should hold under S. 109 that a matter has been the subject of an application under S. 105 whenever it might, if the defendant had so chosen, have been raised and decided under S. 105 read with S. 105 A. Held that this contention was unsound. If the construction put forward by the appellant were accepted words which are not found there would have to be read into S. 109. It would be held on the analogy of the doctrine of constructive res judicata, that the jurisdiction of the Civil Court had been constructively excluded even when a point had been neither raised and decided under S. 105 A, (Das, J.) MAHARAJAH BAHADUR KESHO PRASAD SINGH v. In every case where the provisions of S. 109 (c) of the Bengal Tenancy Act are invoked there should be a strict compliance with its requirements. The Settlement officer has to determine, in the first place whether the terms of the agreement are really such that if they were embodied in a contract, they would not be enforced under the Act. If the conclusion is in the affirmative he is to satisfy himself that the rent agreed upon is fair and equitable. It is only in the event of his being so satisfied, but not otherwise that he can settle such rents as fair and equitable. Where the Revenue Officer instead of complying with the terms of S. 109 (c) passed an order in these terms "The tenant agrees. Though the increase is rather large, the attested compromised rent may be settled as fair and equitable". Held that S. 109 (c) did not contemplate settlement of fair and equitable rent on the basis of such an ambiguous order and in accordance with a contract, which contravenes the provisions of the B. T. Act (Mookerjee and Chotzner, JJ.) MOYDHANNESSA BIBI v. SATIS CHANDRA GIPi.

—Ss. 115 and 50—Scope and effect of—Presumptions as to fixity of rent—Entry in record of rights.

S. 115, Bengal Tenancy Act, provides against clashing of presumptions. It will not permit the presumption under S. 50 of the Act to override that raised from the record of the particulars under Chap. X. It will not be reasonable to suppose that the Legislature intended by enacting S. 115 to preclude evidence of uniform payment of rent for the statutory period in support of the entry of fixity of rent in the record of rights where such entry is presumably based on the evidence of such uniform payment. It will be shutting out a very valuable piece of evidence in favour of a comparatively weak one. If the tenant succeeds in proving a uniform payment of rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement, the rent shall not be liable to be increased whereas the presumption of the correctness of an entry in the record of rights though based on such uniform payment is only a rebuttable one, (Richardson and Suhrawardy, JJ.) RASH BEHARI GUHA v. 27 C. W. N. 936 : 1923 Cal. 365.

The Bengal Tenancy Act does not pretend to enumerate the different modes by which rights of occupancy could be acquired at the time when the Act came into force; it merely saves such rights as had already been acquired. The acquisition of occupancy rights by grant was, up to the passing of the B. T. Act, foreign to the law of Bengal. There is nothing in either S. 20 or S. 21 or in any other section of the B. T. Act which provides that a right of occupancy can be acquired either by grant or by contract. An occupancy right is inherent in the status of the raiyat and is not the landlord's to grant. If a landlord confers occupancy right on a tenant in zerai land that does convert the zerai into raiyati land for all time. If a question arises as to the character of the land purchased by the landlord from the tenant there must be an enquiry as to the original character of the land. If it was originally raiyati land the landlord cannot by getting khas possession treat it as zerai. But if it is proved that the land was zerai land within the meaning of S. 120 of the B. T. Act, the land regains its character as such if it comes into the possession of the landlord. The tenant with whom the land is settled subsequently cannot acquire the rights of occupancy in it. When a question arises as to whether land which is claimed to be zerait land is in fact zerait land, an assertion of title on the part of the landlord and communicated to the tenant before 23-1883 will be conclusive evidence in his favour. Assertions after that date though not conclusive may be taken into consideration as evidence in favour of the landlord (Das and Kulwant Sahay, JJ.) MAHARAJA KASHO PRASAD SINGH v. PARMESHWRI PRASAD SINGH

—S. 120, 2 (a)—Object and scope of the amendment—Zerai land—Agreements and compromises between landlord and tenant—Admissibility.

The object of the new sub-section was, as the report of the Select Committee on the Bill of 1907 makes clear, to assert the principle that agreements or compromises made before a revenue officer should not be held to affect the rights of third parties. It was thought that the question whether the land is proprietor's private land affects not merely a tenant for the time being but also all future occupants of the lands and the Legislature considered it desirable to safeguard their interests as far as possible. But it is one thing to frame rules for the guidance of revenue officers, it is another thing to tell the Civil Courts that they are not to regard as evidence that which is evidence under the Evidence Act. The last paragraph of S. 120 undoubtedly says that the Civil Court is to have regard to the rules laid down in S. 120 of the Bengal Tenancy Act for the guidance of the revenue officer whenever any question arises in a Civil Court as to whether land is or is not a proprietor's private land, but there is nothing in S. 120 which tells the Civil Courts definitely and clearly that they are to exclude from their consideration that which is relevant evidence under the Evidence Act, and when they are bound to regard under S. 120 paragraph (2), of the Act. The landlord is entitled to rely upon any evidence that may be produced to show the assertion of any title on his part and communicated to the tenant whether before the 2nd day of March, 1883, or after that date. All such evidence is relevant evidence under the Evidence Act and is admissible as such, though it may be that such evidence standing by itself will be of small value and will not induce the Courts to hold that the land claimed as proprietor's private land is in fact the proprietor's private land. If there is any evidence of an assertion of a title on the part of the landlord and communicated to the tenant before the 2nd day of March, 1883, the matter is conclusive under the Bengal Tenancy Act, but if the evidence is to the effect that there was an assertion of a title communicated to the tenant after the 2nd day of March, 1883, that evidence will not be conclusive on the question whether the land claimed as zerait is in fact zerait land: it is open to the Court to take that evidence although into consideration in coming to the conclusion whether the land claimed as zerait is in fact zerait land. (Das and Kulwant Sahay, JJ.) MAHARAJA KASHO PRASAD SINGH v. PARMESHWRI PRASAD SINGH

The procedure under S. 148, Bengal Tenancy Act is not a special but a summary one. There is no rigid rule of law that in a rent suit properly so called and filed under S. 148, a question of title may not be determined if it arises. Even if a claim which is not for rent is included in a suit tried under that section, there is no lack of jurisdiction on the part of the judge to deal with the claim. Where a tenant makes a contract by which he is liable to pay rent to several cosharers jointly, one cosharer cannot maintain a suit for the whole rent. S. 188 of the B. T. Act demands that landlords shall do jointly anything which they are under the Acts required or authorised to do, but there is nothing to prevent one cosharer from bringing a suit for the whole rent after making the co-sharers who refuse to join as plaintiffs, defendants in the suit 35 Cal. 331 Ref. Again if a co-sharer can prove that there is a contract express or implied by which a tenant is liable to pay him his share of the rent separately then he may bring a suit for that part of the rent without joining his co-sharers as defendants, but the decree obtained by him is to be executed as money and not a rent decree. On the other hand, notwithstanding such arrangement for separate collection all the co-sharers may sue jointly for the whole rent.

To further facilitate the recovery of arrears of rent due to a co-sharer who is in dispute with his tenants or with his fellow landlords, the legislature enacted S. 148 A of the Bengal Tenancy Act. The section requires firstly, that the co-sharer shall sue to recover the rent due to all the co-sharer landlords in respect of the entire holding, secondly that he must make all the remaining co-sharers parties to the suit, and thirdly that he must state that he is able to ascertain what rent is due for the whole tenure or holding or whether the rent due to other co-sharer landlords has been paid, owing to the refusal or neglect of the tenant or of the co-sharer landlords, defendants in the suit, to furnish him with direct information on these points or on either of them. In such a case the plaintiff co-sharer will be entitled to proceed with the suit for his share only of the rent and a decree obtained in a suit so framed shall be as effectual as a decree obtained by the Sole landlord in a suit brought for the rent due to all the landlords. If in the suit it is found that the co-sharer landlords have realised rent in excess of their shares, then they will be liable to reimburse the plaintiff to the extent of the excess realised by them. 4 Pat. The landlords subsequently instituted a suit against the defendant claiming compensation for occupation of the same land and a determination of the annual rent payable by the defendant. Held that an application under S. 158 of the B. T. A judgment debtor who was permitted to deposit the decretal amount with costs and compensation, went to the execution moharrir who drew up an account and showed that the amount paid in by the judgment-debtor petitioner was correct and on the basis of that account he deposited the sums specified. It was found that no order had been passed by the Court as to what the costs were and the judgment-debtor came well within the time allowed for the deposit and obtained the permission of the Court to deposit the amount. He also obtained an order in the order sheet from the Court that he had deposited the full decree amount with costs and compensation. He was therefore permitted to believe that he had paid the full amount until after the time allowed for the deposit had elapsed, when the decreeholder came forward and pointed out that the amount was not sufficient. Held that the judgment-debtor having been misled by an honest mistake ought to be allowed to deposit the deficiency in the amount and that the sale should be set aside on such deposit being made. An executing Court is lacking in the due discharge of its duty in entertaining an application to set aside a sale until it has satisfied itself that the statutory condition provided by S. 174 of the B. T. Act have been fulfilled. It is the duty of the executing Court, before entering in the order sheet that the full decretal amount with costs and compensation had been deposited, to satisfy itself what were the costs to be paid by the judgment-debtor and where owing to this neglect of duty on the part of the Court, the petitioner was lulled into security, and the amount of shortage was not very great the judgment debtor should not be prejudiced on account of the default on the part of the Court. ## BENG TENANCY ACT, S. 182.

S. 182 is not applicable unless the land is held homestead, in other words, it is not sufficient for a rayat that the character of land is such as would justify its use as a homestead, and must be established that the land is used by the rayat as his homestead. (Mookerjee and Rankin, JJ) MAHARAJAH BAHADUR SIR PRODYOT KUMAR TAGORE v. UMESH CHANDRA SAHA. 72 I. C. 640.

—S. 182—Homestead—User for keeping agricultural cattle—Ejectment.

The debt. was found to be a settled rayat of the village where the disputed land was situated. He was also found to have lands under cultivation; he got these lands cultivated by hired labourers whom he supplied with his own cattle and ploughs. He had also his granary and khamar within his own homestead. Held on these circumstances it was plain that as the defendant was a rayat, the disputed land was governed by either S. 182 or by the other provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

It cannot be maintained that because a settled rayat takes settlement of a piece of land, adjacent to his homestead though for purposes not agricultural, the tenancy of the new plot of land is governed by S. 182 of the Bengal Tenancy Act (Mookerjee and Chotzner, JJ) GIRIS CHANDRA BHATTACHARYA v. BHABATARAN SHAKARI.

—S. 188—Suit for rent—Mitakshara joint family—Suit by managing member without impleading junior members—Maintainability of.

S. 128 of the B. T. Act has no application to the institution of a suit for rent and it is competent to the managing member of a Mitakshara joint Hindu Family to sue for rent without impleading the junior members either as plaintiffs or as defendants. The tendency of modern decisions, especially those of the Judicial Committee is in favour of recognition of the representative character of the manager, though, no doubt, the question must be decided in each individual case or special class of cases, subject to the operation of relevant statutory provisions. ## BERAR—Is not British India but not foreign territory

Berar is not British India and the Limitation Act as such does not apply to those territories though it has been separately applied to that Province. A Berar Court can hardly be said to be a foreign Court but it is not a Court contemplated by S. 14 of the Limitation Act, namely a Court in British India. (*Burton J. C. and Prideaux, A. J. The sum payable by antejagir holder in respect of alienated land is land revenue and is a paramount charge on the holding under S. 56 of the Berar Land Revenue Code. There is nothing in Ss. 49 to 56 to show that S. 56 gives no charge in respect of land revenue which is not a payment

Where it is clear that the tenancy could not have commenced before 1868 it cannot be said that the origin of the tenancy was unknown. If it can be proved with certainty that the tenancy did not commence till after a certain point of time then it cannot be said of such a tenancy that evidence of its commencement has been lost by reason of its antiquity. A tenant of such holding is not protected by S. 78 (2). 14 N. L. R. 111 foll. In a suit for redemption by the plaintiffs in 1918 treating the transaction of 1892 as a mortgage, the defendants pleaded that the alienation was void in view of the Bombay Bhagdari Act and that their possession had been adverse for over 12 years. Held, that the transaction of 1892 was not an out and out sale but a lease for a long term and that as the alienation was void, the defendants had acquired by prescription a leasehold interest. —S. 36.—*Municipal Corporation—Meeting—
 Right to vote—Disqualification by reason of interest—What constitutes—Validity of votes—Decision by Civil Court—Suit by Councillor.*

The interest contemplated by S. 36 (p) and S. 16 Sub S. (1), (1) of Bombay Act III of 1888 must not be too speculative and remote. Again it must not be a mere sentimental interest. It must be a pecuniary or at least a material interest. Where there is a pecuniary advantage or a reasonable expectation of a pecuniary advantage, it must be regarded as an interest within S. 36. If the interest in a contract is pecuniary it is immaterial that the amount involved is trifling. The object of the provision imposing the disqualification is to prevent the conflict between interest and duty that might otherwise inevitably arise.

It is clear on the language of S. 36, cl. (p), that a Councillor, whose name stands as a shareholder on the register of the said company, and who has a beneficial interest in the shares, is disqualified from voting or taking part in the discussion of any matter pertaining to the said company. It is also clear that if the shares stand, not in his name but in the name of a nominee of his, the beneficial interest being in him, he is similarly disqualified. The shares again may stand in the name of a Councillor who holds them not in his own right but as a trustee for another. Where the shares stand in the name of a person who has no beneficial interest in them but is a mere trustee, he cannot it seems vote at meetings of the company in which he holds the shares in a manner inconsistent with the interest of the beneficiaries. The reason is that he derives the position which he holds as a member of the Company from the legal ownership of the shares. But if such person is also a member of the Corporation, he is not, disqualified from voting or taking part in the discussions of any matter relating to the Company at meetings of the Corporation. He is under no obligations to vote at such meetings in a manner beneficial to the interests of the cestui-que trust, for he does not owe the membership of the Corporation to the fact that he is a shareholder of that Company. He commits no breach of the trust, if he votes at meetings of the Corporation in contravention of the interests of his beneficiary. It is no part of his duty as a trustee to vote at meetings of the Corporation in matters affecting the company as the beneficiary would have him to do. If no such duty is imposed upon him by law, it cannot be a case of conflict between two duties. Nor can it be a case of conflict between interest and duty, the interest which he has in the beneficiary being no higher than what a father has in the prosperity of his son. The question of the validity of the vote is a question of law and a court of law has jurisdiction to entertain it. Questions relating to the validity of votes are not questions relating to the internal management of a Corporation,

BOMBAY CIVIL COURTS ACT, S. 32

They are questions that can be disposed of only by a Court of law. If councillors disqualified from voting at a meeting of the Corporation vote at the meeting and by so voting create a majority, has a remedy in a court of law. The question of the validity or invalidity of the votes could only be disposed of by a court of law.

When the question is one of the validity of the votes, it is open to the members of the corporation to bring an action in their own names. It is open to one or more councillors to bring a suit in their own name without filing a representative suit under O. 1, R. 8 C. 1, Code. (Mulla, J.) NARIMAN v. —S. 147—*Landlord—Taxes and rates—
 Liability to pay—Increase of assessment on the basis of rents obtained by sub-letting of members.*

S. 147 of the City of Bombay Municipal Act is an involved section, but it means this, that the lessor from whom taxes are leviable under S. 146 has a claim against a tenant if the rateable value of the premises exceeds the amount of rent payable by the tenant. The only question in any particular case is whether the lessor has contracted himself out of the protection afforded by S. 147. Held on a construction of the lease in question that the lessor was entitled to the protection afforded by S. 147. Ordinarily when the lease was granted, it would be intended that the lessor should be liable to pay the taxes which would be based on the rent payable under lease and it is difficult to suppose that the parties contemplated that in case of an increase in the assessment, the responsibility for paying the tax in accordance with that increased assessment should fall on the landlord and not on the tenant. A magistrate acting under S. 515 of Bombay City Municipal Act can direct the Municipal Commissioner not to issue a license, if the effect of the grant would be to cause nuisance to residents in the locality.

S. 515 gives the power in case of such nuisance to any resident to complain to the court about such nuisance. In such proceedings, the owner of the premises ought to be made a party. (Shah A. J. C. and Crump, J.) THE MUNICIPAL CORPORATION, BOMBAY v. MALLANDINE.

BOMBAY DISTRICT MUNICIPAL ACT.

BOMBAY DISTRICT MUNICIPAL ACT—Octroi Schedule—Construction—Ad valorem duty.

The Municipality claimed to charge on the plaintiff's goods, which were bales of cloth, an ad valorem rate on the value of the maunds according to their present value and not according to the value, appearing in the schedule of rates. The octroi Schedule was divided into three columns; in the 1st column were the names of various articles; in the 2nd column was the rate percent load, in the 3rd column was the weight in maunds or price. For cloth the rate percent load was 12 annas per every Rs. 100 or part of it. In the 3rd column the price was to be taken at Rs. 500 per cent load of 16 maunds.

Held, that Rs. 500 was the limit value of a full cart load of cloth of all sorts and articles made of cotton, silk, etc., upon which the rate of 12 annas per cent was to be levied, otherwise the amount of Rs. 500 in the third column has no meaning. If it is considered desirable in the interests of the Municipality that certain articles should be charged on their actual value ad valorem, it would certainly be necessary to add to the schedule, rules prescribing how the real value of these goods was to be ascertained. It would also be necessary to set up the proper machinery for arriving at such valuation. (Mackoad, C. J. and Crump, J.) LAXMI CHAND JAVERMAL v. Bye-laws 4 and 5 framed under S. 48 (b) of the Bom. Dt. Mun. Act are not ultra vires. Under that Act read with the rules framed by the Local Govt. under that Act it is obligatory upon the Municipality to keep a register of the children of school going age; and with a view to fulfil that obligation it is open to the Municipality to frame a by-law which would enable them to take a census of such children within the municipal area. with, namely, the case where the Municipality proposes to impose a tax. The main provision in the rules under S. 46 (1) and S. 71 (1) is that Municipality will supply water to private persons on certain terms and this clearly makes an offer to such private persons to supply them with water on the terms laid down and the water rate revised is a contractual charge. Where an accused constructs an otla and is asked by a notice under S. 122 of the Bom. Dt. Mun. The accused cannot be convicted under S. 155 of the Act of having disobeyed a lawful order. S. 122 of the Act gives no power to a municipality to issue a notice to a person alleged to have effected an encroachment to remove it, although the municipality may send such a notice, it is not a notice under the section, such a notice might be sent as a matter of courtesy, preliminary to the Municipality taking action under the powers given them by the section to remove the encroachment themselves. BOM. HEREDITARY OFFICES ACT, S. 18.

The two necessary conditions of a valid conviction under S. 10 are: (1) there must be an order passed by the School Committee under S. 9 i.e., an order passed in strict compliance with the procedure laid down in that section (2) the parent must be shown to have failed to comply with the provisions of S. 7 on and after the date specified in such order.

The powers conferred under the Act on the School Committee are wide. They are in curtailment of the right of the parent to give efficient instruction to his child according to his own ideas. It is therefore essential that an attendance order passed by the Committee must be shown to have been passed in strict compliance with the procedure therein prescribed, namely "after giving the parent an opportunity of being heard" and after such enquiry as it considers necessary. The second requirement of S. 10 is that it must be shown that the parent has failed to comply with the provisions of S. 7 on or after the date specified in the attendance order passed by the Committee. The defendants, predecessor-in-title alienated his vatan land to plaintiff and died subsequently. The defendants applied to the Collector to take proceedings for the protection of the vatan. Acting under S. 11 of the Bombay Hereditary Offices Act the Collector made a declaration on 5-10-1904, that the alienation was null and void. The collector resolved to assess the land at a full rent and on 6-7-1908, the Collector held further proceedings and assessed the land at a rental of Rs. 75 per annum. On 15-3-1915, the Collector ordered forfeiture of the land owing to the default of the plaintiff in payment of arrears of rent then due. The plaintiff sued for a declaration that the order of forfeiture was invalid on the ground that the rent was due from 6-7-1908 when the assessment was fixed and on that footing, no arrears of rent had become due. Held that the assessment of land was an alternative to the summary resumption of possession and the order that the land was liable to assessment, means assessment from the date of the order; that S. 9 Cl. 1 of the Act provided that an order giving the vatandars profits of the vatan should have effect from the date of the Collector's order, and there was nothing in S. 11A of the Act to the contrary; and that the plaintiff's suit was barred by limitation under Art. 14 of the Limitation Act. When it has been proved that a tenant has been in occupation of certain land for so long that one cannot ascertain the commencement of the tenancy, the mere fact that during the currency of his holding he has signed a Kabulyat which purports to be in terms an agreement for an annual tenancy, may not be sufficient to displace the advantage he has obtained from his long holding, if he continues in possession for many years after he had signed the kabulyat, on the same rent. But each case of this class must stand entirely on its own facts. At first, the tenant claiming to hold as a permanent tenant must establish the facts which would entitle him to the presumption of S. 83. But that can be rebutted by the landlord by the production of a kabulyat. Again the effect of the kabulyat can be destroyed by further evidence on the part of the tenant. The fact of the signing of the kabulyat as merely an isolated instance in the midst of a long holding at the same rent, will not necessarily prevent the tenant from succeeding (*Macleod, C. S. 14 of Bombay Regulation V of 1827 provides that, if a debtor can prove that he has tendered to a creditor the whole or any portion of the amount due, all further interest shall cease on the amount tendered. The word "debtor" in S. 14 is certainly wide enough to cover a debtor who has given security by way of mortgage, and this is in fact, shown by S. 15 of the same Regulation, which deals with the case of an usufructuary mortgage or pledge and speaks of a creditor of the debt. Similarly in Act No. XXVIII of 1855, providing for the Repeal of the Usury Laws, S. 6 speaks of the lender and borrower of money upon any mortgage, so that there is no reason to suppose that S. 14 (literally construed) would not cover the case of a mortgagor and mortgagee.

S. 14 of Bombay Regulation of 1827 is still in force in the Presidency town of Bombay, as well as the rest of the Bombay Presidency. In the case of a mortgagor seeking to redeem the entire mortgage and tendering only a part of the mortgage debt really due S. 14, so far as it relates to a tender of part of a debt can be held to apply to a case of that kind. The distinction between a lease and license is that in the former case there is an exclusive right to possession on the part of the tenant while in the case of a license, the licensee has not got such a right. Plaintiffs owned a stable in which there were open spaces for keeping carriages as they came in and stalls for horses. There were open spaces for motor cars as well as cubicles large and small. Defendant hired stabling accommodation for the horses, carriage and three motor cars. The carriage was kept in the open space and the horse in the stalls. One of the motor cars was kept in the open space, another in the large cubicle along with other cars and the third in a small cubicle separately. The owner of the stables wanted an enhanced rent.

The object of the sub-section is to prevent a statutory tenancy being used as a source of profit by a tenant who does not require the premises for his own occupation. The first part refers to a tenant who holds over under S. 9 (1) and the second part to a tenant who sublets beyond his term in expectation of statutory tenancy. (Pratt, C. J.) *MADHAVJI VIRJI v. Consequently where a landlord brings a suit to eject a tenant whose rent is in arrears for a long time, the tenant cannot, by paying the arrears of rent into court, resist the suit in ejectment. The plaintiffs were mirasi class of permanent tenants holding under the Inamdars under comparatively recent Miraspotra of 1859 and 1864. Survey settlement was introduced into the village at the request of the inamdars and a revised assessment of agricultural land came into effect under S. 217 of the Bom. Land Rev. Code, all holders of land in the village became liable in respect of such lands to the provisions of the Land Revenue Code. The Collector under rules framed by the Government and at the request of the inamdar purported to levy building fines for the benefit of the inamdar assignees of the land revenue. The pliffs sued for a declaration of their rights to hold the land free from building fines and for an injunction restraining the inamdars from levying such fines. The Inamdars pleaded that the suit was barred under S. 4 (b) of the Bom. Rev. Jurisdiction Act. Held that the suit was not barred by S. 4 of the Bom. Rev. Jurisdiction Act. There is a difference between a broker and an agent for sale. Under the custom of the Calcutta Jute Market brokers are liable to both buyers and sellers in the case of what are called "principal contracts" as distinguished from "direct contracts." Under the custom of the market there is a liability for the performance of the contract resting upon the brokers and a right in them to enforce the contract. It makes no difference whether at the time of the making of the contract buyers are informed of the name of the sellers and sellers of the name of the buyers. In the case of such contracts the only person to whom the sellers can really be giving credit—the only person mentioned in the contract—is the broker. Either the sellers do not know the name of the other party, or if they do and still prefer a "principal contract" they prefer the broker's credit. —Burmese Marriage—Polygamy—Rights of junior wives—Presumption—Proof

Polygamy is undoubtedly lawful under the Burmese Buddhist Law and a man may have at the same time two or more wives who are on equal footing.

When a claim to inheritance is made by a junior wife courts must examine closely the relations that subsisted between her and her spouse, in order to determine her true status. Wives may under the law occupy identical positions or the junior wife may not be endowed with proprietary as well as personal rights. The junior wife has to prove that she was endowed with such rights before she can succeed to her claim.

No ceremony of any kind is essential for the purpose of lawful wedlock. Although there may not be sufficient evidence of actual giving and taking the conduct of the parties subsequent to their coming together may raise a strong presumption of marriage, especially when the union has lasted for a long period. —Burmese—Monk—Effect of becoming—Remuneration—Effect—

By becoming a monk, a person divests himself of all earthly ties of relationship and property and dies a civil death. If he afterward renounces the monastic life, he does not ipso facto occupy the same position as he did before with regard to his property and his relationship. The old status can be gained only by overt acts recognised by law. (Duckworth, J.) MA SHWE THE v. MAUNG KAN

Where both husband and wife die one after the other, if it is not ascertainable who died first, the relations of both can claim the inheritance. Where the interval between the deaths is short, that the same rule applies. Held on the facts, an interval of 2 months and 14 days was not short to justify the application of the rule. Burmese Succession—Grandchildren.

Grandchildren whose parents are dead succeed to their grandparents or their own right and not as representing their parents. The division is per stirpes but not per capita. (Robinson, C. J.) May Oung and Beasly JJ. MAUNG PO THU DAW v. MAUNG PO THAN. 1 R. 316

Burmese—Succession—Half brothers and sisters—Grand parents.

Burmese—Succession—Letters of administration—Wife living apart from husband for 8 years

The mere fact that a wife has lived apart from her husband by mutual consent on account of incompatibility of temperament does not constitute misconduct or unfaithfulness entitling the husband to a divorce. Consequently the wife is not deprived of her right to inherit her husband's estate and is entitled to grant of administration in preference to the grandson. (*Robinson, C. Burmese—Succession—Orasa daughter—Necessity for joint residence.

While on the death of the father the eldest son succeeds as Orasa, on the death of the mother the eldest daughter enjoys the same privilege. The rules regarding competency are not so definite, the Orasa must be legitimate and must have attained the age of majority, possibly, there must be no physical or moral incapacity. Conjoint residence is also demanded by some Dhammathats; Vide those set forth in ss. 30, 37, and 41 of the Digest, Volume 1. It is noticeable, however, that the Manugye does not appear in any of these sections. No doubt, in its origin, the rule regarding the Orasa's one-fourth depended to some extent on his or her residence with the family and performance of the duties of the deceased parents, but this requisite seems to have been dropped in most of the latest Dhammathats. At any rate, the modern disregard of separate residence as a disqualification for inheritance in the case of blood relatives is a circumstance which applies to the claim of the Orasa no less than to those of the children left surviving on the death of both parents, (May Oung, J.) MA HLA U. v. MAUNG SHWE YIN.

Chinese—Inheritance—Widow—Remarriage

When a man dies his property is equally divided among all his sons, daughters succeed only in the absence of sons and the widow in the absence of both sons and daughters. When a Chinese widow remarries a Burmese Buddhist and dies leaving both her first husband's property and subsequently acquired ones, the customary law of Chinese Buddhist will apply. The second husband would be entitled to all the property belonging to her at the time of the marriage, while the first husband's children would get the property which came from their father. A Chinese Buddhist widow has only a right of maintenance in her husband's estate and is not entitled to a share therein. (Lentaigne and Heald, JJ.) BOX KWI v. MA KYE YON. 2 Bur. L. J. 102; 1923 Rang. 236.

Divorce—Payin Property—Partition.

In connection with a partition on a divorce by mutual consent, payin property is to go to the party who brought it to the marriage and this rule is still to apply even though the property may have been changed in form provided it has not been merged entirely in the jointly acquired property and so changed its character. Change of form does not affect the rule so long as the payin can be identified. (Robinson and Macgregor, JJ.) MAUNG SHWE THA v. MA WAING. 70 I. C. 562.

Inheritance—Child of divorced wife living some time with mother and some time with father—No rupture of filial affection—Child entitled to inherit.

There is no provision in the Dhammathats enabling a father to disinherit his child except by giving him away in adoption to another, though a child who behaves as an enemy towards his parents is debarred from inheriting. A child who merely at his father's request lives separately from him is not included amongst the six classes of children who are not entitled to inherit. The Buddhist Code does not give any meritorious value to mere living together or make the opposite state of things a reason for exclusion, and there must be filial neglect to exclude. But if a child on the divorce of his mother accompanied by partition of property goes to live with her and ceases to be a member of his father's household he is debarred from inheriting from his father,

BUDDHIST LAW.

The plaintiff after her mother's divorce lived for a short time with her father and then went and lived with his sister. Later she returned and lived with her father and was doing so when he married his last wife. She continued to live with her father and her stepmother or some time and then was sent by her father to live with her mother and she continued to live with her mother until her father's death, but during that time she paid two or three visits to her father. Held, she was entitled to inherit. ———Ss. 6, 17 and 22—Transfer of lands by Collector—Limits of Collector's power—Lambardar—Powers of.

There is nothing in the Bundelkhand Land Alienation Act which authorizes the Collector to make a partition of the patti behind the backs of other co-sharers for the benefit of the mortgagee from a co-sharer. The Collector could only mortgage the right which the judgment-debtor has and except as regards the plots in the possession as khudkash that right was a right to receive his share on a distribution of the profits of the patti. The fact that he happened to be a lambardar at the time is irrelevant. The lambardar is the agent of the co-sharers for purposes

When a sale-deed executed by a husband in favour of his wife is challenged as a benami transaction, the onus is upon the person challenging it to prove by evidence that the apparent state of things is not the real state of things. Mere suspicion does not amount to proof.

The mere fact that the husband continued to live in the house or that he had some debts is insufficient.

The production of the sale-deed from one's custody is sufficient proof of his title unless and until some evidence is adduced by the other side to disprove it. (Mullik and Kulwant Sahay, J.J.) PURAN MALL v. MT. DILWA. 4 Pat L. T. 54 : 72 I. C. 1003 (2).

There is a presumption the owner of land is the owner of trees standing thereon. But this is not a strong one as in India ownership of trees is frequently divorced from ownership of land. The question of onus of proof only arises where there is a question of fact to be determined and there is no evidence one way or the other which will enable the Court to come to a conclusion. BURMA ANTI BOYCOTT ACT (V of 1922) Ss. 3 and 9—Offence under—Sanction—Nature of.

Before launching a prosecution under the Burma Boycott Act, S. 9 requires the sanction of the Government as under S. 196 Cr. P. Code. All the facts need not be stated in the sanction order.

—Ss. 7 and 10—General repute—Evidence of police and headman.

In order to satisfy himself that an accused's general repute is that of an habitual offender of one of the types mentioned, a Magistrate should require more evidence than that of policemen and village authorities. This was a counsel of prudence, and should, no doubt be followed in most cases. But it is not a rule of law and a Magistrate must, in each case, weigh the evidence and decide as to its sufficiency. Where there is a good deal of evidence, not only from the accused's village but also from other places, there may well be sufficient material to justify preventive action. — Ss. 408, 409 and 622—Municipal requisition—Non compliance by owner—Occupier of a portion of the property rendering compliance impossible—Action under S. 409.

It is unreasonable to construe S. 622 Cl. 3 of the Calcutta Municipal Act as meaning that an owner, who has not complied with a requisition for effecting improvements to any extent, is discharged from liability, merely, because the occupier of a portion of the land has rendered compliance impracticable only in part. Where though some of the tenants refused to afford facilities to the owner and thus rendered it impracticable for him to carry out completely all the improvements required by the Corporation, still the owner could have carried out some at least of the improvement, the owner is discharged from liability only to the extent that compliance is rendered impossible by the conduct of the occupier. Even though the general committee of the Corporation decides to take recourse to S. 409 of the Calcutta Municipal Act the owner is not forthwith absolved from the liability he has already incurred by reason of his failure to comply with the requisition under S. 401. If the requisite improvements are carried out by the general committee under S. 409, the default on the part of the owner vanishes but till the work is completed the default remains and with it the liability for prosecution. of huts standing on baste land belonging to the superior landlord, was rejected on the ground that the rooms forming portions of huts did not fall within the definition of "Premises" within S. 2 C. (e) of the Calcutta Rent Act. Held by the High Court that the decision of the Rent Controller was correct. (Hondroffe and Ghose, JJ.) RAM GOLAM KALWAR v. GUMTI SHAW. 69 I.C. 976.

—Ss. 2 (f) (ii) and 15—Portion of premises—Subletting—First letting—Standard rent how calculated.

The object of including in the definition of "landlord", a tenant and in the definition of a "tenant" a sub-tenant is to extend the benefit of the Rent Act to sub-tenants. Standard means a rule or model and can only be one. The whole object of the Act is to prevent tenants being made to pay rents which the legislature considers excessive or unreasonable. Standard rent means the rent of which the premises were originally let. Consequently if a tenant sub-lets a portion of the premises, the standard rent of the portion so sub-let is to be determined according to S. 15 (3) of the Act and not under S. 2 (f) (ii) of the Calcutta Rent Act. Under S. 15 (3), the part sub-let is taken to have been first let when the entire premises were let out to the tenant. (Chatterjee and Cuming, JJ.) ROBBINS v. ELIAS S. M. JACOB. 27 C. W. —Ss. 4 and 11—Monthly tenant under owner of premises—Statutory tenant—Standard rent—Agreement to pay increased rent to owner—Lease for two years—Illegality of object—Contract Act S. 23.

The defendant, a tenant, of a flat at a rent of rupees 65 a month, under the owner of the premises, was holding as a monthly tenant. The position of the defendant while the Calcutta Rent Act was in force, was that he was the statutory tenant of the flat liable to pay the standard rent defined in S. 2 cl. (f). The owner on 11-6-1921 wrote to the defendant refusing the defendant's tender of rent at the old rate and suggesting that the defendant should move the Rent Controller to fix the standard rent. In August the owner gave the defendant notice to quit by the end of September on the ground suggested by S. 11 Cl. 5 i.e., for arrears of rent. The defendant replied that he had deposited the rent with the Controller. On 26-1-1920 the owner granted to the plaintiff a lease of the flat for a term of 2 years at a monthly rent of rupees 100 for the first year and rupees 110 for the second year. The owner gave the defendant notice of the lease, requested him to attorn to the plaintiff as landlord till the end of October, and thereafter, in pursuance of a notice to quit already served upon him, to give vacant possession to the plaintiff. The defendant replied claiming the protection of the Rent Act and refusing to vacate. Subsequently however, he attorned to the plaintiff to the extent of depositing with the Controller rent at the old rate for payment to the plaintiff and of applying to the Controller to fix the standard rent as between the plaintiff and himself. The application was made in March 1921, and by an order, dated 30-5-1921, the Controller fixed the standard rent at rupees 85. After the order on the 31st May, the plaintiff's solicitors wrote to the defendant giving him a fresh notice to quit by the end of June 1921. It was asserted that the plaintiff required the premises for his own occupation. This notice was also ineffectual and in July 1921, the plaintiff filed his suit claiming vacant possession of the flat and mesne profits at the rate of rupees 100 per mensem. Held that the object of the lease by the owner in favour of the plaintiff was clearly to avoid the provisions of the Rent Act and to get a higher rent than was allowed by the Act and that the agreement of lease was void as being opposed to public policy and the provisions of the Rent Act. —S. 11 (5)—Ejectment suit—Benefit of Act when claimable—Failure to pay in time—Effect—Agreement to extend time.

When in a suit in ejectment, the benefit of the Rent Act is claimed, the defendant must show that he was paid arrears within 8 months of the Rent Act coming into force, and subsequently paid his rent regularly within the time fixed in the contract with his landlord, or in the absence of any such contract, by the 15th day of the following month, or in the event of the landlord refusing to accept rent, by depositing it with the Rent Controller within a fortnight of its becoming due.

Where there is an agreement to extend time for payment before the rent actually becomes due under the lease, then the time within which rent has to be paid under S. 11 (5) may be the extended date, but where default has already taken place subsequent acceptance of rent by the landlord does not take the matter out of S. 11 (5). The period allowed for a suit for the profits of the agricultural year which ended on 30th April 1917 by S. 160 of the C. P. Land Revenue Act, 1917, is complete only at the end of 1st May 1920. (Hullifax, A. J. C.) NARAYAN PATEL v. ABDUL GANI. 69 I. C. 527.

—S. 160 (2)—Suit filed after—Limitation.

The period of limitation for a suit filed after the coming into force of Act II of 1917 is that provided by the Limitation Act. (Hullifax, A. J. C.) SHANKARGIRI v. CHINNUJI.

6 N. L. J. 1; 71 I. C. 140; 1923 Nag. 164.

—S. 169 (1) (a)—Suit under—Limitation.

The order of a Revenue Officer declining to make a partition or to proceed therewith until the question of partition has been decided does not amount to an order to any of the parties to file a civil suit and does not confer on a civil court jurisdiction which it did not previously possess. A civil Court can enquire into the question as to whether the Khudkhast or sir lands are or are not the sole property of a person or whether they are joint property though it cannot decide whether there should be a partition or not; the question of title may have to be decided for other purposes than for the purposes of partition. A suit for ascertaining what the titles of the parties respectively are over the lands in the Mahal, is not barred by time merely because the Revenue Officer declined more than six years before the institution of the suit, to proceed with a partition until the question of title had been decided in a Civil Court. (Batten, J. C.) DONGAR SINGH v. VISHWANATH SINGH, 19 N. L. R. 11: 71 I. C. 205 : 1923 Nag. 86.

S. 188—Partition—Appointment of Lambardar—Unit of area.

Where a mahal has been divided the unit for the appointment of the lambardar is the patti and not the mahal.

S. 188 (2) (A) of the Land Revenue Act embodies the case law on the subject as it existed prior to the enactment of that Act. In other words, that clause simply enacts a rule in regard to burden of proof. It does not clothe the lambardar with higher rights than those already possessed by him. It simply gives statutory recognition to his status as the accredited agent of the proprietary body in the absence of the evidence in regard to revocation of his authority generally or with respect to a particular transaction. (Hallifax, A. J. C.) RAMAKRISHNA PURI v. TANBA, 6 N. L. J. 85 : 71 I. C. 777 : 19 N. L. R. 69 : 1923 Nag. 153.

S. 188 (2) (a)—Consent of one landlord—Effect.

When the entire Proprietary body is in law the landlord, the consent of one does not bind the rest, though he may if he has received consideration be bound by his own consent. (Hallifax, A. J. C.) LACHMANSINGH v. BALWANTSINGH, 6 N. L. J. 231.

(1917), S. 188 (2) (a)—Construction.

Before 1917 the custom of appointing the lambardar as the agent of the whole of the proprietary body was so general that it was held that he must be deemed to have been so appointed unless and until the contrary was proved, and the enactment in S. 188 (2) (a) of the Act of 1917 can only have been intended to give the legislative sanction and confirmation to this view, which after all is only an inference of fact drawn in each particular case from the known facts of that case and the judge's knowledge of the common course of human conduct and public and private business. 13 C. P. L. R. 45 : 8 N. L. R. 29 Disc. (Hallifax, A. J. C.) LACHMAN v. THAKUR BALWANT SINGH, 1923 Nag. 286.

S. 188 (2) (b)—Consent of every co-sharer in every case not necessary.

Where under the wajib ul arz of the village the Lambardar was to manage the village with the consent of the co-sharers.

Held, that the Lambardar need not obtain the consent of every individual co-sharer, especially in petty cases such as allowing a cow to graze in the village. (Baker, J. C.) PARASRAM v. KANHAIYA, 1923 Nag. 336.

S. 188 (2) (c) and S. 160—Suit within six months.

C. P. MUNICIPAL ACT, S. 2.

A suit within six months of the end of the year by co-sharers against lambardar mentioned in S. 188 (2) (c) is not premature in view of S. 160. (Prideaux, A. J. C.) SARJE RAO v. HARAKCHAND, 6 N. L. J. 234 : 1923 Nag. 287.

S. 188 (2) (c)—Trading partnership—Tenants in common of a village—Suit for profits.

Where divided members of a Hindu family being tenants-in-common put their profits into a common chest and meet expenses from the chest and this arrangement subsequently fell through and a lambardar, a member of the family, managed the village, Held that a suit lay for village profits against the lambardar without bringing a general suit for accounts. (Batten, J. C.) MAKUNDAAM v. SHRIKRISHNA, 19 N. L. R. 24 : 73 I. C. 142 : 1923 Nag. 197.

S. 212—Ryotwari lands in possession of one heir—Right of other heirs to share therein.

Where Ryotwari lands are in the possession of one heir, and they are entered in his name in the Rev. papers, the right of other heirs to a share therein is not lost by such entry. They can sue for a share in the produce or for partition. 8 C. P. L. R. 11 Dist. (Baker, O. J. C.) RAHMAT BI v. BHURI BI, 6 N. L. J. 161 : 73 I. C. 959 : 1923 Nag. 307.

S. 212—Ryotwari land—Rights of holder.

S. 212 of the Land Revenue Code makes it clear that the right of a Raryat to hold Ryotwari land devolves as if it were land. (Baker, O. J. C.) RAHMAT BI v. BHURI BI, 6 N. L. J. 161 : 73 I. C. 959.

S. 219—Deputy Commissioner can eject but cannot decide rights.

The right to exclude a trespasser on communal land permanently is not a matter which the Deputy Commissioner can determine under section 219; he can only eject him summarily and the section itself expressly saves the jurisdiction of the Civil Court to decide the question of the right of permanent exclusion. (Hallifax, A. J. C.) SAKHARAM v. RAMCHANDRA, 1923 Nag. 326.

C. P. MUNICIPAL ACT (XVI OF 1903) Ss. 2 (f) and 44—Tax—Rent for municipal building if a tax—Mode of Recovery of tax.

The essential quality of a tax and of those similar imposts mentioned in S. 2 (f) of the C. P. Municipal Act seems to be that the amounts or rates of payment are fixed by the levying authority without reference to the payer; in regard to some of them there is option of making no payment if no benefit is taken but in none of them has the payer any option as to the amount to be paid. That essential quality is absent in a case where the amount to be paid was fixed by agreement between the two parties.

A tax recoverable under S. 46 of the Act is a tax imposed under S. 35; that is to say, a tax imposed with the previous sanction of the Local Government or in special cases with that of the Governor-General in Council as well, "in the manner required by S. 39." That section requires a proposition of the tax at a special meeting, publication of details of its incidence, consideration at another special meeting of any objections made, sanction of the Local Government after consideration of those objections and notification in the official Gazette of the date of the imposition of the tax. Whether, therefore, the payment to be exacted from the applicant was a "market due" or not, and it certainly was a "due" or debt for using a market or exposing goods for sale in a place belonging to the Municipal Committee, it was certainly not a "market due" or tax of the kind mentioned in S. 35 of the Municipal Act, as it was never imposed in the manner prescribed by that section. It cannot therefore be recovered by the summary procedure provided by S. 44. (Hallifax, A. J. C.) YESH WANT RAO PANDE v. SECRETARY, MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE. 19 N. L. R. 122 : 73 I. C. 52 : 24 Cr. L. J. 516 : 1923 Nag. 264.

—Ss 66 and 139—Encroachment—Conviction—Imposition of daily fine.

The accused was convicted under S. 139 read with S. 66 (1) of the C. P. Municipal Act and sentenced to pay a fine of Rs. 5 in addition to Rs. 1 per day from 14th August 1922, onwards, in case he did not remove the encroachment or obtain the sanction of the Municipal Committee to its continuance. Held that the order imposing a daily fine in the future could not stand. No person can be sentenced to punishment for a thing which he has not done but may possibly do in the future or even is likely to do in the future. (Hallifax, A. J. C.) BABU RAO v. MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE NAGPORE, 72 I. C. 78 : 24 Cr. L. J. 318.

C.P. TENANCY ACT (XI OF 1898) S. 35—Surrender by Hindu widow—Binding on reversioners.

A surrender by a Hindu widow if not impeachable for fraud or on other like ground, is binding on the widow's husband's reversioners. (Prideaux, A. C. J.) MUKUND v. DIWAKAR, 73 I. C. 126.

—Ss. 45, 46 and 49—Sir land—Alienation of—Effect of.

The sir right is made up of two parts, one the proprietary, and the other the occupancy and it can accrue sympathetically by union of these two parts in the same person. But it must be in the same person. Where a proprietor alienates his ownership of land, the sir right in the land is a constituent part of his ownership of the sir land. (Hallifax, A. J. C.) SHEORAM v. TISARAM, 19 N. L. R. 26 : 71 I. C. 129 : 1923 Nag. 93.

—S. 46—Transfer—Gift in favour of daughter

S. 46 of the Tenancy Act of 1898 does not make it obligatory that the transfer should be in favour of the nearest existing heir of the transferor at the time it is made. (Hallifax, A. J. C.) MT. KRISHNA BAI v. DEBI SINGH, 71 I. C. 409 : 1923 Nag. 195.

—S. 47—Exchange not affected.

About 1903 the defendant started to cultivate an absolute occupancy holding belonging to another and allowed him to cultivate an occupancy holding of his own in exchange, each finding the land of the other more conveniently situated than his own. The record remained unchanged and each paid rent for the land he cultivated but in the name of the other till in 1917-18 the Settlement

C. P. TENANCY ACT, S. 35.

Officer recorded each of them as the occupancy tenant of the land he was actually cultivating. Held if the arrangement of 1903 was an out and out exchange he lost his right to set it aside many years before he filed his suit. If it was only an arrangement by each tenant for the cultivation of land by the other, which it undoubtedly was, he has no right whatever to interfere with it. (Hallifax, A. J. C.) CHIMNA PATIL v. INDRA RAJ SINGH, 1923 Nag. 144.

—S. 63—Remission of rent.

The respondent claimed the right to hold his tenancy held free of rent on the ground that in 1874 the then landlord agreed to allow his father to hold the field free of rent and executed an agreement to that effect. In the patnas of both the settlements i.e. 1897 and 1913 a note was made to the effect that the landlord would pay the rent. Held that the Settlement Officer in 1913 has not decided as he is supposed to have decided, that the terms of the original agreement would be binding on the successors of the parties, and S. 63 of the Tenancy Act, 1898, plainly enacts that no agreement for reduction or remission of rent can prevail for more than one settlement. 15 C. P. L. R. 9 Rel. (Batten, J. C.) MAHILAL v. BINDRABAN, 1923 Nag. 247.

C. P. TENANCY ACT, (I of 1920)—Ejectment—Who is entitled to

Nobody but a landlord can eject a tenant for arrears of rent. Any other person who obtains a decree for arrears of rent cannot execute the decree by the special process or ejecting him. (Hallifax, A. J. C.) GANPAT TELI v. DAJI, 1923 Nag. 35.

—Malguzari share in village—Testamentary disposition—Sanction of Revenue authority.

Occupancy rights in sir land can be devised by will along with the malguzari share to which they appertain without the sanction of the Revenue Authority. 62 I. C. 246 referred to. (Hallifax, A. J. C.) GATI v. GOVINDA, 71 I. C. 207 : 1923 Nag. 141.

—Ss. 6 and 10—Absolute occupancy holding—Transfer under the old Act—Rights of landlord.

Where there was a transfer of an absolute occupancy holding while the Act of 1898 was in force the rights of the landlord to sue for ejectment or for pre-emption are not taken away by the new C. P. Ten. Act. (Prideaux, A. J. C.) VINAYAK v. MAHEBULLA KHAN, 1923 Nag. 33.

—Ss. 13 and 105—Surrender of tenancy—Effect on sub-tenancy—Jurisdiction of Civil Court.

Where a tenant surrenders his holding the sub-tenancy also is determined and a suit to eject the sub-tenant thereafter is one between a landlord and a trespasser. 8 N. L. R., 22 dist. (Batten, J. C.) GOPALA v. SAKHARAM, 6 N. L. J. 224 : 73 I. C. 15 : 1923 Nag. 261.

Under S. 10 of Act 14 of 1920 the defendant has the option either to deposit money or to furnish security. The Court can order him to do one of these two things but cannot specify which he is to do. The security furnished under S. 10 of Act XIV of 1920, however relates to the expenditure actually incurred or likely to be incurred by the plaintiff which is quite a different matter from the costs of the suit. The Court cannot direct payment of this expenditure otherwise than in accordance with that section, and when security has been furnished the court is incompetent to order execution against the surety. Where a pattah grants something more than the mere right to cultivate, in fact, where it grants all the rights save and except the right to receive the rent payable to the superior landlord, the grantee comes within the definition of tenure holder under S. 5 of the Chota Nagpur Ten. —S. 46—Zurpeshgi lease—Surrender to Landlord—Validity—B. T. Act. S. 86 (a).

The provisions contained in S. 72 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act are similar to those contained in S. 86 of the Bengal Tenancy Act with this difference that the provisions contained in clause (6) of the Bengal Tenancy Act do not find place in S. 72 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act.

A mortgage, as distinguished from a sale, is an incumbrance, and where the mortgage as in the present case was secured by a registered instrument, if the Bengal Tenancy Act applied a surrender would have been invalid, unless it was made with the consent of the landlord and the mortgagee. That clause has been omitted from the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act and the reason probably is that the legislature did not consider it desirable in the peculiar circumstances of the tenancy of the Chota Nagpur to recognise the right of transfer in the tenants with respect to their holdings. This intention is also to be gathered from the restrictions imposed upon the tenants under Chapter VIII of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act, namely, S. 46. A raiyyat is not permitted to transfer his holding or a portion thereof by a mortgage or lease for a longer period than five years to sell or make a gift of his holding by any contract or agreement. Be that as it may, the absence of a provision similar to clause (6) of S. 86 of the Bengal Tenancy Act from S. 72 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act leaves no power of surrender conferred by the section unhampered by the existence of any incumbrance over the property. It, therefore, logically follows that in spite of a prior sale or mortgage by a raiyyat he is free to exercise his right of surrender of the holding in favour of the landlord, for under clause (2) of S. 46 no transfer by a raiyyat of his right in his holding or any portion thereof is binding on the landlord unless it is made with his consent in writing. A fraudulent surrender confers no right on the landlord (Jwala Prasad and Ross, JJ.) RAM ORAON v. DOMAN KALAL. 2 Pat. 898 : 4 Pat. L. T. 562 : 75 I. C. 209.

The presumption of correctness about the entries in a Record of Rights arises only with the finally published record of rights, but to rebut the presumption the proceedings which resulted in the final record such as a draft record on what took place at the attestation stage are admissible in evidence. —Ss. 2 (2) and 97—Preliminary decree—Finding as to status of agriculturist—Appeal—Drawing up of decree.

A finding on a preliminary issue as to the status of a person under the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act should be regarded as a preliminary decree, when that finding at once necessarily involves the result that accounts should be taken under the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act. The right of appeal under S. 97 of the Civil Procedure Code only arises when a preliminary decree is drawn up. It is also there pointed out that it is the duty of the Court and not of the parties, to see that a decree is actually drawn up in the suit, when this should properly be done.

The drawing up of a decree, or the omission to do so, must be taken as conclusive on the question whether the Court has in fact passed or not passed a preliminary decree, and that this is the only proper test to apply in considering whether the provisions of Sec. 97 are, or are not, applicable. —S. 2 (2)—Suit for accounts—Preliminary decree—If there can be more than one—Appeal.

Where in a suit for accounts, the court after passing a preliminary decree for accounts, passed a further order fixing the mode of taking accounts and the period for which it should be done, the latter is also a preliminary decree and hence an appeal lies therefrom. The legislature contemplated ordinarily only one preliminary decree in a case but there is nothing illegal in passing more than one in appropriate cases. Case Law Reviewed (Mookerjee and Rankin, JJ.) A decree for specific performance is capable of being executed by the defendants as well as by the plaintiff. If this were not so, it will follow that if a plaintiff who has obtained a decree for specific performance, refuses to take the sale-deed and pay the consideration money, the debt is left with no remedy whatever, while, owing to the decree passed against him he would still be debarred in any way from dealing with the suit property. The properties in suit belonged absolutely to the testatrix who by her will dated 23-3-1872, appointed her sons J and N as trustees and directed them to maintain the relations of the testatrix and gave them during their lifetime the income from the estate after meeting all the charges. On the death of J and N their sons were to be equally entitled to, and divide the properties. They had power to mortgage the estate for necessary purposes. J having died issueless probate of the will was granted to N who in 1889 mortgaged the estate for necessity N died intestate in 1891 and letters of administration of the estate were granted to his daughter. The mortgagee instituted a suit on his mortgage and obtained a decree, in 1892 impleading the daughter of N as representing the estate. In execution of the decree the property was sold and purchased by the defendants. In a suit by the daughter's son of the testatrix, held that J and N having taken only a life estate in the properties of the testatrix, there was an intestacy on their death without male issue. Consequently on the death of N the plaintiff became the heir to the properties and decree passed against the daughter of N did not bind the estate in his hands. In calculating mesne profits the real question is what is the loss sustained by the plaintiff on account of the infringement of his right by the defendant for which he is to be compensated. In other words what is the benefit which the plaintiff would have derived from the possession of his land during the period of his dispossession by the defendant.

This benefit may be according to the circumstances either the letting in value or the cultivation profits of the land. If it is a case where cultivation profits are to be awarded they have to be ascertained according to the definition in the Code. The principle upon which the question whether letting value or cultivation profits are to be awarded depends is as follows :—

The loss of the party wrongfully kept out of possession must generally be measured by the actual usufruct of the land during that time on occupation of the same character as that of the party wrongfully kept out of possession at the Plaintiff brought a subsequent suit to the effect that this sale should not affect his reversionary rights. This was dismissed in 1913. —S. 11—Competent Court—Decision of Revenue Court—Existence of relationship between landlord and tenant

The present suit was brought by the plaintiffs to eject the defendant from the holding in suit, the plaintiffs' case being that the tenants who held the land under them had no transferable interest in the same and had abandoned the holding after selling it to the defendant and that the latter, therefore had acquired under his purchase no right to the holding but was merely a trespasser. The defence was that the defendant was a tenant and could not be ejected as a trespasser. Another thing was the defendant relied upon a decision in a proceeding under S. 106 of the B. T. Act in his favour. The defendant was entered in the Record of Rights as tenant of the lands after purchasing the holding. Plaintiffs thereupon brought a suit under S. 106 of the B. T. Act for the correction of the entry, on the ground that the defendant was not a tenant. The Revenue Officer, under S. 106, decided that the defendant was a tenant and that the entry in the Record of Rights was correct. Held that the question whether the defendant was tenant or not was directly raised and decided in the proceedings under S. 106 of the B. T. Act and that it was res judicata in the present case, (Chatterjee and Panton, JJ.) ROY, JATINDRA NATH CHOUDHURY v. AZIZAR RAHMAN SHANA. 71 I. C. 307.

—S. 11—Competent Court—Jurisdiction want of, in former case.

The original mortgagors from whom plaintiff purchased the property subject to mortgage had sued the original mortgagees for redemption in 1896. That case had been tried by a Munsif, second class, who holding that the interest was a charge on the property decreed redemption on payment of Rs. 873. This decree had been varied on appeal by the Divisional Court, but the Trial Court's decree was restored by the Chief Court. Plaintiff in appeal against the decree of the Trial Court contended that the decision of the former suit by the Munsif who had power up to Rs. 500 could not be res judicata or estop him from urging that according to the terms of the mortgage deed itself, the interest was not a charge on the property as held by the Trial Court. Held, the Munsif of the second class, in the former case had no jurisdiction in law to try the case. Therefore, the former suit does not operate as a bar to the consideration of the question relating to interest. 6 C. L. J. 621 : 14 C. L. J. 220 and 7 I. C. 781 Dist. 54 P. R. 1912 Fol.

—S. 11—Compromise—Effect of—How far decision on compromise res judicata.In a suit to contest a notice of ejectment the plaintiff claimed shankalap rights and subsequently filed an application stating that he had given up some land and received a perpetual lease for the rest. The case was then struck on in the absence of the defendants in a subsequent suit to contest notice of ejectment. Held Per BURN S. M. (Fremantle J. M. dissenting) that the prior suit and its decision finally disposed of the claim to proprietary rights against the plaintiff and he could raise it in a subsequent suit to contest a fresh notice of ejectment. (Fremantle, S. M. and Burn, J. M.) RAGHUNATH SINGH v. SITA RAM. L. R. 4 A. 113 (Rev.).—S. 11—Connected suits—Appeal against one—Bar by res judicata.The doctrine of res judicata applies to all the stages of a suit till it is finally terminated and the doctrine is not confined to the Court of first instance. It applies equally to the procedure on a first as well as second appeal. The expression former suit means a previously decided suit and the same rule applies to appeals. It is not the priority in the commencement of one action that renders the judgment obtained therein a bar to the recovery of a second judgment in another, but because the first judgment, when given whether in the action commenced first or last, it extinguishes the original cause of action and gives to the plaintiff in lieu thereof one of the higher nature. Where there were two suits in the primary court, decided by a common judgment and an appeal is preferred only in the first suit, while none is preferred from the decree in the second suit, the decree made in the latter becomes final and operates as res judicata. fund set apart at the time of partition between brothers which was not disposed of. Both the suits were dismissed on the ground of estoppel in virtue of a deed of relinquishment executed by the plaintiff in favour of his brothers. Plaintiff appealed only in the case in which he claimed a share in the property left by his deceased brother. It was objected that as he did not appeal from the case in which he claimed a share in the charity fund, the question of estoppel was res judicata. Held this objection is untenable, as the decision in the other case that the plaintiff was estopped by the deed of release from claiming a share in the charity fund does not affect the question whether he is estopped from claiming a share in the estate of one of his brothers, who died subsequently to the execution of that deed. (Mauriceau and Campbell, JJ.) SETH YUSAF ALI MAMUNJI v. SETH ALI BHOY. 1923 Lah. 8.—S. 11—Constructive res judicata—Alternative defence—Omission to put forward—Effect of.

If the effect of the decision in a former suit is necessarily inconsistent with the defence that ought to have been raised but has not been raised that defence must under the section be deemed to have been finally decided against the person who ought to have raised it."

In the present case, it was open to the plaintiffs in their defence in the former suit to claim in the alternative, that they had a vested right in half the property in suit. They were content, however, to plead partition whereby they became owners of the whole. In the result their defence failed and it was held that the property belonged to the plff. Held the decision was necessarily inconsistent with the alternative defence that might and ought to have been raised.

A party who has lost a suit in one Court may not by the simple expedient of adding to the claim re-agitate the same question in a fresh suit instituted in a higher Court. Obviously, the Legislature could not have contemplated such an absurdity. (May Oung, J.) MAUNG NO v. MAUNG PO THEIN. 1 Rang 363 : 2 Bur. L. J. 109 : 1923 Rang 239.

—S. 11—Decision in a previous suit.

When the taluqdars had brought their suit for resumption of muafi they had made plaintiffs and defendants 2 and 3 parties to it. Defendant No. 1 however had put in an application claiming as he claimed in this suit to be partner with plaintiffs and defendants 2 and 3. He was made a party but ultimately the decree was given only against plaintiffs and defendants 2 and 3. As regards the defendant No. 1 it was said that his name was not entered in the papers where he was recorded as a sub-tenant only. The question whether he was a partner was pronounced to be one for a Civil Court and he was discharged from the suit.

Held, in plaintiff's suit, there is no res judicata here. What was decided by the Revenue Court was that the taluqdars were entitled to get the relief they sought from the plaintiffs whom they themselves had named, and who were the only ones entered in the revenue papers. There was a decision that Def. No. 1 had no independent rights in these plots, but the Court refused to decide whether or not he had any partnership rights (Simpson, A. J. C.) KHALIL v. —S. 11—Directly and substantially in issue.

The real point at issue in a previous suit was whether the mortgage was for necessity or not. It was found as a fact that the mortgage was for necessity and therefore, there was no necessity to arrive at any decision upon the question whether M was the lawfully adopted son of A. Held, it is doubtful whether it can be said that the question of adoption was directly and substantially in issue in that suit within the meaning of S. 11 C. Where in a case under S. 105 B. T. Act the only point decided was what additional rent was to be allowed for the excess area, it does not constitute res judicata as to the rate of rent. A rent decree in a prior suit may not be res judicata in the sense that it finally decided the rate of rent between the parties. But it is res judicata that for the years for which that suit was brought the rent was the amount then found. (Newbould, J.) BROJENDRA KISHORE ROY CHOWDHURY v. —S. 11—Directly in issue—Pro-note—Set off.

Where a pro-note was the subject-matter of the former suit and no set off was formally claimed in the previous suit and the defendants' liability for the sums now in suit could only have been asserted and tried if there had been a formal set off.

—S. 11—Directly and substantially in issue—Decision on validity of sale deed

Where the question whether a particular sale deed was a valid document arose directly and substantially in the previous suit and the prior suit could not be determined without a decision of the issue, the decision operates as res judicata in a subsequent suit even though the property involved in the subsequent suit is different from the one which was the subject of the prior suit. 13 B. 25; 7 I. Plaintiffs sued defendants for an injunction restraining them from building on the disputed land alleging it to be the common property of the parties. The plea of the defendants was that the land was exclusively their own. A subsequent suit was instituted by defts. against plffs. in which defts. inter alia claimed an injunction against plffs restraining them from allowing water to flow on the disputed land to which the plaintiffs answered that they were joint owners of the land with plaintiffs and that they had a right of easement. There is nothing to prevent a succession of applications directed against persons who are ascertained to be, or believed to be partners in the particular venture out of which the decree has arisen. The limitation however that is imposed on all these applications, is that if there has been a previous application in which there has been a definite decision affecting a particular piece of property or particular person, and from that decision nothing has been done by way of appeal or institution of suit, if neither of these methods were available that decision is a final decision between the parties and if in any subsequent proceedings, the point again becomes material, the parties are bound by that previous decision, and the matter cannot be re-opened. To that extent, and that extent only, is there limitation on the successive applications in execution. (Mears, C. J. and Piggott, J.) KAPUR OHAND v. KANHAIYA LAL, 45 A. 735 : L. Where in a previous execution application the judgment-debtor did not take objection to executability of the decree and execution was ordered it is not open to him to object that the decree is inexecutable when a subsequent application for execution is made. — S. 11—Execution proceedings—Order that application is not time barred—Res judicata.

Where an execution application was rejected on the ground that it was not in accordance with law and the decree holder acquiesced in this order and did not appeal held that the order was final and could not be questioned in further proceedings. Though orders in execution proceedings do not come directly within the language of what is now S. 11 of the Civil Procedure Code yet such orders if not appealed from, are binding on the parties in subsequent proceedings on principles analogous to those of res judicata strictly so called.

When a competent Court has decided, even though wrongly, that an execution application was not time barred, that order could not be questioned in subsequent execution proceedings (Batten, J. C.) JAGANNATH v. BFHARI LAL.

— S. 11—Execution proceedings—Prior decision—When operates as res judicata—Issue of law.

S. 11—of the C. P. Code applies to suits and an execution case is not a suit; but it is firmly established that the principle of law underlying S. 11 applies to proceedings in execution of decrees. The section draws no distinction between an issue of fact and an issue of law; and an issue of law operates as res judicata in the same way as an issue of fact. Consequently a decision of a question of law in an execution case is res judicata in a subsequent application for execution of the same decree even though the view of law enunciated in the prior execution case has been since disapproved by a full bench.

S. 11 of the Code of Civil Procedure takes no note of the fact whether the cause of action is the same or is different. The only matter for investigation is whether the matter directly and substantially in issue has been directly in issue in a former suit between the same parties or between parties under whom they or any of them claim; and it is upon this investigation that the question of res judicata must, in each case be decided. —Erroneous view of law—Pre-emption suit.

In a previous suit a decision was given in favour of plaintiff pre-emptor, though a descendant of a remote ancestor of vendor, that he was entitled to inherit vendor's property. When the vendor again sold another property, plaintiff and another pre-emptor filed suits. The suit of the latter was decreed and upheld in appeal and in view of the decision the trial Court dismissed plaintiff's suit and the appellate Court decided on merits that the previous judgment was not of binding effect in determining plaintiff's status as a pre-emptor as it held the decision was wrong. Held, on the one hand plaintiff and vendor pro forma defendant in the first case and on the other plaintiff and the present vendees in this suit, both suits being pre-empt on suits, cannot be said to be parties litigating under the same title. As the vendees did not claim under the vendor, plaintiff did not and could not challenge vendee's right to own and possess the land in suit and his claim would therefore amount to asking the vendees to re-transfer in his favour the land in suit in virtue of the decision in the previous suit. The previous decision was based on the wrong view of law that a person descended from a remote ancestor of the vendor of altogether unknown degree is a person entitled to inherit the vendor's property. 34 P. There is nothing in the Dekhan Agriculturists' Relief Act to prevent the operation of the above. Where an adjudication between the defendants is necessary to give the appropriate relief to the plaintiff, the adjudication will be res judicata between the defendants as well as between the plaintiff and defendants. But for this effect to arise, there must be a conflict of interests between the defendants and a judgment defining the real rights and obligations of the defendants inter se. Without necessity, a judgment will not be res judicata amongst debts, nor will it be res judicata amongst them by mere inference from the fact that they have been collectively defeated in resisting a claim to a share made against them as a group. The test is whether there was a necessity to decide the point, whether as a matter of fact it was ever raised between co-defendants and whether it was decided 11 Bom. 216 followed. Where in a partition suit none of the parties claimed or resisted partition except the plaintiff, any questions regarding partition which might thereafter arise between the defendants in that suit remain open to be decided. In order that a finding in a case be res judicata between co-defendants three things

In a suit for the recovery of arrears of rent on the basis of a kabuliat the kabuliat stipulated that arrears of rent should bear interest at the rate of 7½ per cent. per annum. Both courts below enforced this stipulation and decreed the plaintiff's claim. As it appeared that the respondent had twice before obtained decrees for the arrears of rent on basis of this kabuliat with interest at the rate stipulated in 1911 and in 1915,

Held, that the liability of the defendant-appellant to pay interest on arrears of rent at the rate provided for in the kabuliat is res judicata between the parties. 39 Cal 818 and 32 Cal. 49 dist. (Cuming and Panton, JJ.) HAMID ALI v. MAHOMED NUKERJAMA MEAH.

If a plaintiff sets up a title as a proprietor and if he has two alternate capacities upon which to rest such a title he must disclose both these two capacities provided that they might and ought to have been made grounds of attack. The question as to whether a plaintiff can or cannot bring a second suit depends upon whether (1) he could have based his former suit upon the same cause of action and (2) whether he ought to have so based it. In the first case he can escape from the operation of S. 11 and from O. 2, R. 2, if he can show that he was, when he instituted the first suit, actually unaware of his second cause of action. In the second case he can similarly escape from the operation of those sections if he can show that he could not unite his two causes of action in a single suit without inconsistency and confusion. Held that the court had to determine three points (a) whether the plaintiff in the first suit did actually put forward his alleged claim as a heir as a basis for his suit (b) whether, if he did not, he was unaware at the time that he could also claim as an heir and (c) whether, although he knew of this second cause of action as an heir he was nevertheless unable to combine it with his cause of action as a vendee without inconsistency and confusion. The point for determination in the case was whether the present suit was res judicata by reason of a former suit. In the former suit the plaintiff claimed title to three pieces of land as having been given to him by his father who at the time of that suit was dead. It was held that the gift was not valid. In the present suit he sued as the aurasa son of his father and mother, claiming a half share in the same three pieces of land. Held, that the plaintiff should in the former suit have made in the alternative, the claim which he made in the present suit and that by reason of his omission to do so the present suit was barred by res judicata (Muang Aun, J.) *MAUNG BA THAW v. In a suit filed on the Original Side of the High Court against the defendant for rents collected by him on behalf of the plaintiffs, the defendant set up a counter-claim in which he prayed for a declaration that he was a monthly tenant of pllt. at Rs. 185 per mensem and for an injunction restraining the plaintiffs from preventing the defendant's sub-tenants from paying rent to him. The High Court dismissed the plaintiff's suit and granted the declaration and injunction prayed for by the defendant. Plaintiffs subsequently filed a suit claiming arrears of rent at the rate of Rs. 185 per mensem and the defendant pleaded that he was liable to pay only the standard rent of Rs. 150 per mensem under the Bombay Rent Act.

Held, that the defendant having waived the benefit of the Rent Act in the previous counter claim and given up his right and obtained a declaration on that footing was barred by res judicata from setting up the plea under the Rent Act (Shah, A. Was it a ground personal to the female heir that was taken in a previous suit? Was it a claim by or against the widow personally or the inheritance which she represented? To decide these questions the Court must examine the averments the issues and the findings in the previous suit. Reading Ss. 20 and 21 of the C. P. Code together with S. 144 of the B. T. Act a suit for rent may be instituted in the court within the local limits of the jurisdiction of which lies the property in respect of which a suit for possession may have been brought. This however does not exhaust all the provisions of S. 20, C. P. Code, Cls. (a) and (b), of

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 20.

S. 20 C. P. Code allow a landlord to institute a suit for rent where the tenant resides. This must obviously be limited to cases where the landlord seeks a decree for money. Where, however, the landlord seeks a decree for rent as also ejectment under S. 66 of the B. T. Act the suit must be treated as one for the recovery of immoveable property within the meaning of S. 16 (4) C. P. Code and can consequently be instituted in the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the property is situate. A suit for the recovery of rents of lands situate in one District may be brought in another district where the defendant is residing, although in such suits the plaintiff's title to the land in respect of which the rent is sought to be recovered may incidentally come in question.

Where a court has no jurisdiction over immoveable property it cannot validly sell it in execution of a decree except in the one case provided by O. 21, R. 3, C. P. Code. Where a court sells immoveable property entirely outside its jurisdiction, the sale is a nullity. It is an elementary principle of law that if a court has no jurisdiction over the subject matter its judgments and orders are mere nullities and may not only be set aside at any time by the court in which they are rendered but declared void by every court in which they are presented. If a Court has no jurisdiction, its judgment is not merely voidable but void and it is wholly unimportant how precisely certain and technically correct its proceedings and decisions may have been; if it has no power to hear and determine the cause, its authority is wholly usurped and its judgments and orders are the exercise of arbitrary powers under the forms but without the sanction of law. These principles apply not only to original courts but also to Courts of Appeal. Accordingly where an appellate court does not possess jurisdiction to review the action of the court below, jurisdiction cannot be conferred upon it by consent of the parties; and any waiver on their part cannot make up for the lack or defect of jurisdiction. 38 C. 639; 9 All. 191; 11 M. 26 Ref.

The provisions of S. 21 C. P. Code are an exception to the well established rule that where the Court has no inherent jurisdiction over the subject matter of a suit its decree is a nullity even though the parties may have consented to the jurisdiction of the court. This exception cannot be so interpreted as to have a wider application than what is justified by its terms. When the Judge has no inherent jurisdiction over the subject matter of a suit, the parties cannot, by their mutual consent, convert it into a proper judicial process, although they may constitute the Judge their arbitrator and be bound by his decision on the merits when these are submitted to him. This however can be accomplished only when the parties have expressly consented to such a procedure. (Mookerjee and Chozner, JJ) KUNJA MOHAN CHAKRAVARTHY v. MANINDRA CHANDRA ROY CHOWDHURY.

—Ss. 20, 115—Question of jurisdiction.

No hard and fast rule as to revision can be laid down in cases of decisions as to jurisdiction under S. 20 and each must be decided on its own merits. Ordinarily, interference in revision is inadvisable in such cases and should only be exercised in exceptional cases to remedy an injustice. Where the defendant is by law entitled to have the case tried at Patna, it will be a grave injustice to him to insist on its trial in Jagraon in the Punjab which will put him to a very great expense merely because the trial Court has erroneously held that the Jagraon Court has jurisdiction. Code, the words "cause of action" so far as suits on contract are concerned include the making of the contract and the performance or completion of performance of the contract and the payment of money under the contract. In cases based on a policy of insurance, they do not include the loss or damage of the property insured which is merely a cause of the Cause of action.

The English definition of 'Cause of action' is not to be applied in all cases to India—Case law and the difference in legislative enactments pointed out. (Heald and Lentaigue, JJ.) JUPITER GENERAL INSURANCE COMPANY v. ABDUL AZIZ. 1 Rang. 231 : 1924 Rang. 2.

—S. 20, CL (c)—Jurisdiction—Breach of contract for sale of goods—Place of delivery—Suit instituted in.

The plaintiff—firm residing in Gujranwalla arranged with defendant firm residing in Calcutta to purchase certain goods and send them to Gujranwalla; the plaintiff—firm was to send the money to Calcutta to the defendant. The plaintiff remitted Rs. 800 to the defendant and the latter consigned the goods to itself in Gujranwalla sending the railway receipt by value payable note for the balance of the price. The plaintiff refused to take delivery of the railway receipt through the value payable note and it was returned to the defendant. Subsequently it turned out that the goods were lost and the plaintiff sent the balance of the purchase price and asked for the delivery of goods. The defendants could not comply with the plaintiff's request. In a suit for damages instituted by the plaintiff at the Gujranwalla Court held that the goods had to be delivered under the contract at Gujranwalla, that the non-delivery formed a part of the cause of action and that the plaintiff's suit was maintainable in the Gujranwalla Court. 39 M. 195 ; 77 P. ## —S. 21 and O. 41, R. 23—Remand by appellate Court—Jurisdiction to try.

The jurisdiction of the Court trying a remanded case depends entirely on the order of remand.

Where, therefore, the High Court remanded a case for trial by the Munsif's Court of Madura Town, held, that the Court of Madura Taluk, which was a different Court altogether had no jurisdiction to deal with it or pass any orders in it. Neither S. 21, C. P. C. in terms nor any principle underlying it is applicable to the case. (Krishnan, J.) UTHUMAN AMMAL v. NAINA MAHOMED ROWTHER. 44 M. L. J. 238 :

—Ss. 22, 23 and 24—Transfer of case—Grounds for—Transfer to Original side of the High Court.

The right of a plaintiff to institute a suit in a court in which the law permits him to sue should not be interfered with by the High Court in the exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction unless the suit is brought in bad faith for the purpose of working injustice to which the defendant would not be subjected if the suit were brought in another competent court. The mere fact that it would be more convenient to the defendant to have the suit tried in another forum is no ground for the transfer. Ss. 22 and 23 C. P. Code do not provide for the transfer of a case from a court subordinate to one High Court to the Original side of another High Court. 12 C. W. N. 446 dist. 1 Pat. L. T. 389 Ref. 27 M. L. —SS. 22, 23—Transfer of case—Principle guiding.

The plaintiff has always a right to choose his forum with this right. The jurisdiction conferred by S 22 and 23 C. P. C. is of an exceptional character and should be exercised very cautiously and only when a clear cause has been shown. The mere fact that it would add to the defendant's convenience to have a transfer is no ground for transferring a case (Shadi Lal, C. J.) —Ss. 22 and 23—Transfer of suit—Choice of forum.

It is only when a suit may be brought in one or other of two courts, both of which have jurisdiction that an application can be made under Ss. 22 and 23 of the C. P. C. A transfer of a case ought generally to be made only on strong grounds.

Where it was established that almost all the evidence would be available only at the place to which a transfer is applied for, the convenience and interest of both parties would be secured by ordering a transfer. Such applications should be made as early as possible. (Abdul Raoof, J.)

—S. 41—Applicability—What amounts to information.

S. 41 C. P. Code does not prescribe any particular way in which the court to which a decree is sent for execution should inform the court as regards the result of the same. Where a court has both small cause powers and original jurisdiction and a decree passed under the former is executed under the latter and an entry of satisfaction is made in the Small Cause Register, the section has been complied with.

Per Crump, J.:—S. 41 contemplates two different courts and cannot be applied strictly to such a case. (Macleod, C. J. and Crump, J.) MANIRAM PEERCHAND MARWADI v. VITHU RAMJI PATIL PANDE. 1923 Bom. 371

—S. 41—Execution of decree—Decree sent to another court for execution—Certificate

It does not follow that because one application for execution fails in a Court to which the decree has been sent for execution, that Court is bound to send a certificate to the Court in which the decree was passed. The judgment creditor might still be anxious to execute his decree in the former court, and it is only when the Court to which the decree is sent has executed it or has failed to execute it that the Court is bound to send a certificate under S. 41. It was intended that there should be complete failure such as would result in no benefit to the judgment creditor for one reason or another and not merely a partial failure. (*Macleod, C. —S. 47 and O. 21 Br 15 and 16—Appeal—Joint-decree—Transfer by one of the decree-holders—Adjustment—Effect of Disputes among co-decree-holders as to the right of one to execute a joint decree to the exclusion of the other are not questions arising between parties to a suit. Disputes between judgment-debtors inter se as to the possession of the property after satisfaction of a decree would not come under S. 47. To come within the category of S. 47 they must be questions arising between persons opposed in interest in the suit and not between a party to a suit and his own representative. 25 Bom. 631 : 31 M. L. J. 44 referred to. Persons may be parties opposed to each other without necessarily being arrayed as plaintiff and defendant respectively in the suit. No appeal is provided against an order under O. 21, R. 15 or R. 16 C. P. C. 23 Bom. 623 Referred to.

It is only such orders as determine questions arising between parties to the suit or their representatives that become appealable as decrees passed under S. 47 C. P. C. 17 Mad. 394 : 1918 M. W. N. 507 referred to. A question whether a decree has been discharged is one relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree and to allow one of several joint decree holders who have already received payment to come in and apply for execution after the other decree-holders have certified discharge of the debt would open the door to fraud and defeat the object of O. 21, R. 15. A joint decree was transferred after adjustment to the other decree holders to one of the decree holders. The transfer was recognised after notice to the decree-holders who had satisfied the decree, but there was nothing in the notice sent to them that there was any question raised as regards the validity of the transfer. On a subsequent application for execution of the decree by the transferee held that it was open to the other decree-holders to object to the execution on the ground that the decree had been paid off by themselves and that the transferee took the decree with the knowledge thereof. The judgment-debtor applied under S. 47 for an order that the properties could not be sold subject to encumbrances. The objection was allowed and the decree-holders appealed. On a question arising as to whether the order of the court was appealable held that the application of the judgment-debtor did not raise any question as to the terms on which the sale proclamation should be settled but it raised the question whether the Court could sell the property subject to the encumbrances and that the question was one relating to the execution of the decree and that the order was therefore appealable. Where property is sold in execution of a decree, but the judgment debtor has no interest in the property sold, a suit will lie against the auction purchaser for the recovery of the same. (Kanhaya Lal, J.) BALWANT SINGH v. MT. LAIGA BEGAM. L. B. 4 A. 526 : 75 I. C. 238.

—S. 47 and O. 21, Rr. 90 and 92—Execution sale—Absence of attachment—Suit to set aside—Limitation.

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 47.

An objection as to the defect or absence of the necessary attachment before an execution sale involves a substantial question as to the absence of proper notice to the judgment-debtor as to the property attached which does not come within O. 21, R. 90 C. P. Code but comes within S. 47. Consequently where an application is made to set aside an execution sale on the ground of want of attachment, a second appeal lies. An application to set aside an execution sale on the ground of the absence of a proper attachment is governed by Art. 166 of the Limitation Act. The absence of attachment though an irregularity does not render the sale a nullity. (Lentaigne, J.) MA PWA v MAHOMED TAMB 1 Rang 533

—S. 47 and O. 21, R. 90—Execution sale—Setting aside—Fraud—Plea of purchaser without notice.

Judicial sales fraudulently procured will not give a good title to a purchaser who does not take in good faith and without notice. The fact that the Court has been successfully deceived is one which, upon the issue as to the purchaser's good faith, must be of a very different value in different circumstances. In all cases the burden of proving that he acted in good faith and without notice of the fraud is in the first instance upon the purchaser. This is an essential feature of the equitable rule. The rule is not that there is a special favour or every one until he is shown to have been dishonest or a volunteer, but that equity where it can will favour those who show that in innocence they have given value. Per Mookerjee, J. The protection given to the bona fide purchaser had its origin exclusively in equity and is based entirely upon the conception that a Court of equity acts solely upon the conscience of litigant parties, by compelling the defendant to do what, and only what, in foro conscientiae, he is bound to do. If the relation between the two contestants standing before the Court are such that, in equity and good conscience, the plaintiff ought to obtain the aid which he asks, and the defendant ought to do or suffer what is demanded of him, then the Court will interfere and grant the relief, if the relations are not of this character then the Court will withhold its hand and will leave the parties where they stand. The protection given to the bona fide purchaser, therefore, simply means that from the relations subsisting between the two parties, specially that which is involved in the innocent position of the purchaser, equity refuses to interfere and to aid the plaintiff in what he is seeking to obtain, because it would be unconscientious and inequitable to do so; the Court will not, in such an event, aid either party against the other. The doctrine of bona fide purchase is thus not a rule of property. It does not determine the question of title between parties. It is in most cases available only by way of defence. It is a shield in the hands of a defendant, to protect him against the claim of his adversary. It means that equity will refuse to interfere to aid the plaintiff in his suit, because under the circumstances of the case, it would be unreasonable that the plaintiff should have what he seeks to obtain. It enforces no right, but simply refuses to interfere in the plaintiff's behalf.

C. P. CODE, (1908) S. 47.

An execution sale which has been brought about by the fraud of the decree-holder is liable to be set aside on that ground by application to the executing Court, even though it is not proved that the auction-purchaser, a stranger, has participated in or been cognisant of the fraud. Subject to the conditions prescribed by O. 21, R. 90 C. P. Code an execution sale may be set aside on the ground of fraud precisely in the same manner as on the ground of irregularity and exercise of this power by the Court is not excluded in cases where the purchaser falls within the category of bona fide purchaser for value without notice 6 C. ## C. P. CODE (1908), S. 47.

Plaintiff obtained a decree for possession of the property in dispute in the suit. An appeal was filed by the defendant who remained in possession. The appeal was eventually dismissed and the plaintiff thereafter discovered that the defendants while in possession of the property pending the appeal, committed waste by cutting trees. The plaintiff decree holder thereupon applied in execution for ascertaining the damages alleged to have been committed by the respondents. Held that the question raised was one relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree and that it must be determined in execution and not by separate suit. (Macleod, C. J. and Crump, J.) HARI SHRIDHAR v. SAKHARAM. 25 Bom. L. R. 449; 73 I. C. 443; 1923 Bom. 391.

A mortgagee of certain property belonging to a joint Hindu family instituted a suit against the father only to enforce the mortgage. The mortgagee obtained a decree and at a court sale in execution of the decree himself purchased the property. The decreeholder purchaser died before obtaining possession of the property and his surviving brother sued for recovery of possession of the property impleading the judgment-debtor and his sons as parties. The defendants pleaded that a separate suit was barred under S. 47 C. P. Code. Held that the suit was maintainable and that so far as the sons were concerned they were not parties to the prior suit and could not be proceeded against in execution proceedings. 35 B. 452 dist. The first defendant in a suit against whom no decree had been passed filed an application under S. 47 C. P. C. claiming that certain properties in his hands should not be attached in execution. There was no application by the decree-holder for attachment of the property. Held that the application was premature. It was only when his property was actually attached that the first defendant could prefer a claim petition and in such a case S. 47 C. P. Code would be applicable to him. The enquiry should be full as to the trial of a suit and not confined to affidavits.

—S. 47—Question relating to execution—
Order for delivery of possession to auction purchaser.

It may be disputed whether an order for delivery of possession to an auction purchaser is an order relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of a decree for so far as the decree holder is concerned his decree is satisfied, and whether the auction purchaser gets the property or not is a matter with which he is not concerned.

Per Cumming, J.—The delivery of possession is not a part of the satisfaction of the decree. So far as the decree holder is concerned the decree is satisfied when the property is sold and the money paid to decree-holder. Obviously he is not concerned with the property being delivered to the purchaser. The question of the delivery of possession to the auction-purchaser is not one relating to the execution of the decree or between the parties to the suit or their representatives. It is immaterial that the auction-purchaser is also the decree-holder. As an auction purchaser he is in an entirely different capacity. (Woodroffe and Cumming, JJ.) LAKHI PRIA GUHA v. NANDA KUMAR
BASU. 1923 Cal. 640.

—S. 47—Question relating to execution of decree—Suit for accounts—Compromise—Not embodied in decree.

In a suit for accounts the parties entered into a compromise under which they agreed to a preliminary decree in accordance with the terms of the compromise. Under the compromise one of the parties was given a share of the profits of a certain contract, the profits to be determined by competent accountants. It was also provided that any dispute relating to the share was to be referred to arbitration. On a question arising between the parties to the suit as to the share of profits, Held that the proceedings did not relate to the execution of a decree within S. 47, C. P. Code and the decree in the suit did not relate to the amount now in dispute. (Broadway and Abdul Qadir

—S. 47—Question relating to execution—

On an appeal against an order passed by the Subordinate Judge's Court, Chingleput, on a petition presented to it under Cl. 10 of a scheme sanctioned by a decree for the management of a Hindu temple it was found that the petition was presented on the assumption that a vacancy had occurred among the trustees under the scheme and that, as it had not been filled by either of the two agencies primarily responsible for filling it the Lower Court must in accordance with the scheme do so. The lower court held after enquiry that, the point disputed before it, a vacancy had occurred and directed that it should be filled in the manner provided by the rules framed by the High Court.
Held, that though the Court was in this matter acting judicially, it was still, necessary to see whether its order was one, against which under the ordinary law an appeal will lie, and that, dependent on whether its order was a decree within the meaning of S. 2 (2) of the Code of Civil Procedure, or more particularly whether it was the determination under S. 47 of a question relating to the execution of a decree. Held that it did not satisfy the above requirements and there was no appeal against the order. (Oldfield of original decree—Limitation.

Plaintiff obtained a money decree in 1907
March against debts 1 to 4 but the trial Court did not pass a decree against the 5th debt, who was impleaded as a surety. On appeal by the plffs. the High Court seeking to make the 5th debt liable the High Court dismissed the appeal in 1909. The plaintiffs made several attempts to execute the decree against the defendants 1 to 4.
In November 1919 the plaintiffs sought to amend a prior execution application by seeking attachment of certain properties. In 1920 the plaintiffs applied for attachment of another house belonging to debts 1 to 4. Held that the applications were barred by time. As no relief was asked for against defendants Nos. 1 to 4 in the appeal to the High Court, the decree which was being executed was the decree of the trial Court and limitation began to run from the date of the decree of the trial Court and not of the High Court on appeal. (Macleod, C. J. and Crump, J.)

within 6 months of the decree occurs from the date when default in making the payment occurs.

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 48.

In order to entitle a decree-holder to claim that an application should be regarded as a continuation of the previous application two conditions must be satisfied, first that the previous application was dismissed for no fault or default on his part and secondly that the present application is similar in scope and character to the previous application. If these conditions are satisfied there is no reason why the court should not regard the present application as a continuation of the previous one. (Das and Adami, JJ.)

—S. 48, O. 20 R. 11—Order for payment by instalments upon compromise—Limitation—Extension.

The parties agreed that the decretal amount should be paid by instalments, and it appeared that the Court accepted the compromise and consequently passed an order striking off the execution proceedings. Held the Court, when accepting the request of the parties, intended that the decretal amount should be payable by instalments; and the order which was passed was in essence and substance one made under section 210 of the Civil Pro. Code, which extended the period of limitation. (Shadi Lal, C. J. and Fforde, J.)

To render S. 48 (1) (b) of the C. P. Code applicable there must be an order of court directing the payment of money on a certain date. Where there was a decree for money in a lump sum, the fact that the parties come to some arrangement out of Court for payment in instalments would not attract the operation of this clause or prolong the period of limitation. —S. 64 and O. 21, R. 57—Execution petition Attachment—Dismissal of application—Alienation by judgment-debtor—Subsequent application for execution—Dismissal for omission to furnish particulars of property to be attached and sold Effect of.

The default of the decree holder contemplated by O. 21, R. 57 C. P. Code as a ground for dismissal of an execution application must be default in the discharge of some obligation laid on him by the Code or the rules framed under it. The omission of the decree-holder to attend the sale and his failure to bid at the sale does not constitute such default as covered by O. 21, R. 57 C. P. Code and where an application for execution is dismissed on that ground, it does not terminate the attachment. Under a mistaken impression that an attachment of property had ceased by reason of dismissal of a prior execution application the decree holder put in a fresh execution application and the Court ordered him to pay batta and file a schedule of the immoveable properties required to be attached. Owing to his default in furnishing the said schedule the execution application was dismissed. Held that the dismissal of the execution was not one under O. 21, R. 57, C. P. Code and that the attachment already subsisting on the property did not cease. (Oldfield and Devadoss, JJ.) VENKATESWARAYAN v ASWATHA NARAYANAN 45 M. L. J. 315 : (1923) M. W. N. 529 : 75 I. —S. 64 and O. 21, Rr. 57 and 63—Transfer pending attachment—Cessation of attachment on dismissal of execution petition—Effect of.

S. 64, C. P. Code avoids an alienation made which was made while an attachment remained subsisting and enforceable and not one which might have been enforced under an attachment which has since come to an end. Consequently where an attachment ceases to exist consequent on the dismissal of an execution application for default, a mortgage which was made pending such attachment cannot be impeached by the attaching creditor when he attaches the property on a fresh execution application. N obtained a decree on 19-4-1917 and on 7-6-1917 he applied in S's suit for payment out to him of the money in Court. While this application was pending S got a decree on 2-7-1917 and on the next day applied for payment out to him. In the meantime one R had brought a suit in the same Court against the same defendant, obtained a decree and applied for payment of the money in Court on 29-6-1917. On a question arising as to which of the plaintiffs, S, N. and R. was entitled to be paid the sum in Court, held that under S. 73, C. P. —§ 73 and O. 21, B. 83 and O. 34 B. 6—Sale of property free from mortgage—Sale postponed to enable judgment-debtor to raise money by private alienation.

Under Section 73 of the Civil Procedure Code where any property liable to be sold in execution of a decree is subject to a mortgage or charge, the

C. P. CODE (1908), §. 80.

Court may with the consent of the mortgagee or incumbrancer, order that the property be sold free from the mortgage or charge, giving to the mortgagee or incumbrancer the same interest in the proceeds of the sale as he had in the property sold. But it is not so in the case of a private alienation where there is absolutely no necessity to refer to the prior incumbrancer. For a private alienation all that is necessary under O. 21 R. 83 Civil Procedure Code, is that the Court should be satisfied that the application is made in good faith and that the decree amount may be raised by the mortgage or sale of a part or whole of the attached property. In the present case it was represented to the Court that the decretal amount could be raised by private alienation. The decree holder consented to time being given to the judgment-debtors for raising money by private alienation. The plaintiff was not asked to give up his mortgage lien, nor did he or his agent make any statement in court to the effect that he would give up his mortgage lien if the judgment debtors would satisfy the decree by private alienation. Held that the absence of any express consent on the part of the plaintiff it could not be held that plaintiffs had given up his mortgage security and that his rights as a mortgagee had come to an end. It is not permissible to read the words in S. 80, C. P. Code as if they were "in respect of any act purporting to be done by such public officer bona fide in his official capacity." It is not legitimate to construe the section by importing into the section words which do not appear in the section, "A public officer is entitled to notice of suit under section 80 of the Civil Procedure Code, even if in the discharge of his duty he has acted mala fide. —S. 92—"Interest"—Meaning of.

It is impossible to define with any degree of accuracy what exactly constitutes an interest as contemplated in S. 92 of the Civil Procedure Code. It need not be a direct interest in the sense that only a beneficiary can institute a suit but it must be a real substantial and existing interest. Where a trust provided for the maintenance of the widow and orphans of a certain caste and dedicated a building for the use of pilgrims as a Dharam Sala. Held a suit by some members of the caste living in the Mohalla in which the institution was situate could maintain a suit. (Broadway and Harrison, JJ.) MURLIDHAR v. SULTAN SINGH. 73 I. If the suit as filed is simply one by an idol in its juristic capacity against persons who are interfering unlawfully with its property or with its income, such a suit has nothing to do with S. 92, C. P. C.

The fact that a person is not the manager or trustee under the particular deed of endowment which he desires to set up for the benefit of the idol, would not prevent him from having a right to act on behalf of the idol in the litigation, if he occupied a position of manager or trustee qua the performance of those ceremonies of worship or charities for the benefit of which the trust monies were directed to be applied. A suit by a trustee for recovery of possession of trust properties against trespassers does not fall under S. 92 C. P. Code. (Le Rossignol and Martineau, JJ.) GANGA PURI v. MOHAN LAL. 4 Lah. 295 : 73 I. C. 645.

—S. 92—Applicability of—Suit for declaration that defendants are not trustees of a temple—Suit outside section.

S. 92 restricts the powers of an individual to bring suit of a particular nature without observing certain formalities, and therefore, when a point is taken that a particular suit is of a nature coming within the provisions of that section, before the Court can bar the suit for want of necessary sanction, the Court must be satisfied that the suit comes within the actual corners of the section. That section provides very distinctly that only in two cases does the section apply; either there must be an alleged breach of any express or constructive trust created for public purposes of a charitable or religious nature, or the direction of the Court must be deemed necessary for the administration of any such trust. Unless a suit falls clearly within the scope of S. 92 the mere fact that it resembles in certain respects a suit which may properly be brought under S. 92, can afford no good ground for holding that S. 92 should apply. ## C. P. CODE (1908), S. 92.

A constructive trustee within the meaning of S. 92 of the C. P. Code would include a person holding a particular fiduciary position whose obligation as such can be enforced in a court of law. Held on the evidence that the Acharya of the Swaminarayan temple at Vadval was a trustee to whom S. 92 of the C. P. Code would apply. It is true that the maintainer or manager of a math is not a trustee in the strict sense of the term when used of an express or declared trust. It would be more accurate to describe him as occupying a fiduciary position. This fiduciary relationship is commonly called an implied trust but the implied trustee is subject to the same obligations as the express or declared trustee. In the case of a math as in the case of a temple the ownership is an ideal person. In the one case it is the idol; in the other case it is the office of spiritual head. The individual who holds the office is trustee for the office the gadi or math or the institution. The succession to the property follows the succession to the office. This is the general law as to trusts. In the case of maths the corpus as well as the income belonging to the institution though a she-bait or head of a math has a higher position than a Dharmakarta, 22 Bom. L. R. 457; 11 M. I. Collector of Karachi, in the names of two persons as plaintiffs against J and A sons of M who are referred to as his heirs and legal representatives. By their written statement defendants alleged that the property in question originally belonged to M and that on his death it became the absolute property not only of his sons, the two defendants, but of his other heirs, who were not specifically named in the written statement but their names were supplied later to the plaintiffs' pleader who consented to their being brought on the record as co-defendants and applied for amendment of his plaint which was granted. Beyond this, the plaintiff underwrote no alteration in any shape or form. The sanction of the Collector was however not obtained prior to the application for this amendment. Summonses were issued to the newly added defendants who appeared and adopted the same written statement as filed by the original defendants. When the suit came on for hearing the defendants contended as a preliminary point, that as the sanction of the Collector had not been obtained prior to the amendment of the plaint by the addition of the eight defendants referred to above the suit should stand dismissed, as not being a suit sanctioned by the Collector.

Held, that the original sanction given by the Collector to the institution of the suit substantially authorised the plaintiffs to sue for a declaration that certain immoveable property was wakf and for an injunction against all that claimed an interest therein, and the mere absence of names of some of those interested in the property does not invalidate the sanction already granted or necessitate a fresh sanction before the interested parties could be brought on the record. 36 Bom. 168 Dist. Where a court has sanctioned a scheme for the administration of a religious or charitable trust it is competent to the Court to vary the scheme from time to time according to the exigencies of the case. A clause in a decree settling a scheme giving liberty to the persons interested to apply from time to time for modification of the scheme if necessary does not entitle the Court to vary the rules of succession to the office of high priest which had been determined in the suit according to ancient usage and custom. There is no warrant for the proposition that the Court in framing a scheme under S. 92 C. P. C. had no power to depart from the arrangement contemplated by the author of the trust. The institution of a suit under S. 92 C. P. C. attracts the jurisdiction of the Court and the Court has complete power to make such appointment as it considers proper in the circumstances, even though such appointment may involve a departure from the arrangement contemplated by the author of the original constitution of the trust. There is no legal restriction in the power of the Court; but, although there is no restriction the Court ought not to depart from the arrangement contemplated by the settlor except for a very strong reason. The mere fact that the trust deed does not contemplate a scheme does not mean that a scheme should not be framed in the case if the Court thinks that one is necessary. In a suit for the administration of a public trust it is necessary that the decree should give liberty to the parties to apply. The effect of making such a provision is that the suit is kept alive and it is possible for the parties to take the direction of the Court from time to time and so often as may be necessary. Where in a scheme suit it was found that the majority of worshippers were of a certain denomination, it is fair that a majority of the trustees also are from that denomination. (Robertson, C.J., and Lefontaine, J.) FAZAL RAHMAN v. GULAM HOSSAIN ACHA, 2 Bur. L. J. 208.

— S. 92—Scheme suit—Kattalais—Management—Right to frame a scheme.

A scheme should be framed where there has been gross mismanagement of the affairs of the temple and some scheme for the co-ordination of the various Kattalais and for some control over the various Kattalais in so far as it may ensure the harmonious working of the Kattalais, wherever they have to co-operate, is necessary.

It cannot be said that the income of the various Kattalais belonging to a temple could be mixed up and utilised for all the purposes of the temple indiscriminately. These trusts are somewhat analogous to temple service inams. Just as the latter are different from inam properties belonging to a temple, being granted to office holders on condition of rendering services in a temple and do not belong to the idol, though the idol may be interested in the rendering of the services. Similarly the incomes of the Kattalais do not belong to the idol though the idol is interested in the proper performance of the distinct duties attached to each Kattalai.

A Kattalai is a distinct endowment "under a separate trustee to which specific items of expenditure are assigned as legitimate charges to be paid therefrom."

Where there are numerous Kattalais a scheme has to be framed which will ensure the harmonious working of the Kattalais, when they have to co-operate in the Pagoda Service, and prevent the embezzlement of the funds of the Kattalai or their diversion by the trustees contracting debts.

It is very necessary that the scheme should contain stringent prohibitions against the borrowing or lending of money by the trustees from or to the trust or funds, or from one Kattalai to another Kattalai.

The preparation of a budget, the proper keeping of accounts in which the income and expenditure of the Kattalais may be separately shown and the periodical audit of those accounts are matters most essentially to be provided for in the regulations in order to fix the trustees with responsibility for the due performance of their trusts and to avoid waste and indebtedness. The need for supervision and co-ordination by a controlling and inspecting body is also apparent. (Spencer and Ramesam, JJ.) MANIKKAVACHAKA DESIKA GNANA SAMBANDA PANDARA SANNADI v. —S. 98—Letters Patent, S. 36—Applicability—Judges differing in opinion.

The natural place to find the rules governing the exercise of the appellate civil jurisdiction over the other Judges of the High Court would be the Letters Patent, while the natural place to find the rules governing the exercise of the appellate civil jurisdiction over the civil Courts of the mofussal subject to the High Court would be the Civil Procedure Code. The Code makes no provision for an appeal within the High Court, that is to say, from a single Judge of the High Court. This right of appeal depends on clause
15 of the Charter. Appeals under the Letters Patent are governed by the Letters Patent, and appeals under the Code are governed by the Code. Further the Code only deals with appeals from certain Courts and does not deal with appeals within the High Court from the decision of one Judge of the Court to another. Therefore when a Bench of two Judges is hearing an appeal from the decision of a single Judge of the same High Court whether on the original side or the appellate, and they differ in opinion, the opinion of the senior Judge would prevail 26 All 10

It is not proper in the second appeal generally to consider whether or not the lower courts have taken a right view of evidence in coming to findings of fact, but the construction of Kabuliya upon which the courts below mainly based their view, that a custom was shown, can certainly be considered by the High Court in order to see whether their meaning has been rightly interpreted. ## —S. 100—Finding of fact—Documentary evidence—Misconstruction

The date, at which a particular holding first began to be held as a definite holding, is essentially a question of fact, and must depend on evidence. That evidence may be, and naturally is, documentary, but the documents admitted in evidence upon that question are really historical materials, and although they have to be construed, and if possible understood, they are not to be treated as involving issues of law merely because they have to be construed. It is not as though they were being construed, as instruments of title or mere contracts or statutes, or otherwise the direct foundation of rights. (Lord Sumner) THE MIDNAPUR ZAMINDARY CO. LTD., v. ## —S. 100—O 41, R. 23 and O 43, R. 1 (a)—Finding of fact—First appellate Court misunderstanding the whole case.

In an appeal from an order of remand findings of fact cannot be examined by High Court sitting as a Court of second appeal but where the finding of the lower appellate Court appears to have been based on a misappreciation of the true controversy between the parties, a rehearing of the appeal by the lower appellate Court may be directed, 13 I. C. 445 Foll. (Broadway, J.) QADIR BAKSH v. SHAMAS DIN. 73 I. C. 758 : 1923 Lah. 206.

C. P. CODE (1908), s. 100.

—S. 100—Finding of fact—General issue but evidence led in a particular point—Effect.

When a particular point of dispute was covered only by a general issue but evidence was led in on the point, the finding of fact will be accepted in second appeal (Fremantle S. M.) SAYED MD JAWAD v. SHERO NANDAN 4 L. R. 4 All. 394 (Rev.).

—S. 100—Finding of fact—Inadmissible evidence—Consideration of—Effect of.

Where a finding of fact is materially based on inadmissible evidence, the High Court will not accept it in second appeal (Halifax, A. J. C.) RAOJI v. WARLU. 1923 Nag 107.

—S. 100—Finding of fact—Inadmissible evidence—Finding based on—Open to attack in second appeal.

Finding of a lower appellate Court based on inadmissible evidence can be impeached in Second appeal. 2 W. R. 74 21 C. L. J. 45 Ref. (Mookerjee and Chotzner, JJ.) TARAKMAR GHOSH v. KUMARA ARUN CHANDRA SINGH. 74 I. C. 383 : 1923 Cal. 261.

—S. 100—Finding of fact—Inference from fact.

Where more than one inference is legally open from the evidence, the High Court cannot in second appeal refuse to be bound by that inference drawn in the Court below, (Broadway, J.) ABDUL GHANI v. ISHAR SINGH. 1923 Lah. 239 (1).

—S. 100—Finding of fact—Inference from facts found—Interpretation of documents—Custom or usage. See (1922) DIG. COL. 200. KRISHNA RAO v. NILKANTH. 69 I. C. 800.

—S. 100—Finding of fact—Insufficiency of evidence.

A finding of fact cannot be attacked in second appeal on the ground of the insufficiency of evidence (Newbould and Pantou, JJ.) PROSANTA KUMAR BEDANTA v. MADHU BADYA. 1923 Cal. 279.

—S. 100—Finding of fact—Marriage.

A finding as regards the factum of marriage between the parties is a finding of fact with which the High Court will not interfere in Second Appeal. (Broadway and Martineau, JJ.) RAM DAS v. MT. PANNA DEVI. 5 Lah. L. J. 117.

—S. 100—Finding of fact—Misconstruction of evidence.

A finding of fact to the effect that the defendant was co-sharing with the last tenant, based on a misconstruction of the settlement entries, can be set aside in second appeal (Fremantle S. M. & Burn, J.M.) RAJA SINGH v. SALIK SINGH. L. R. 4 A. 270 (Rev.).

—S. 100—Finding of fact—Misreading of evidence.

A finding of fact based on a misreading of evidence can be attacked in second appeal. (Mol. Sagar, J.) THE FIRM, JOWAL DAS, PARMANUND v. UTTAM CHAND. 1923 Lah. 585.

—S. 100—Finding of fact—Mistake of fact.

C. P. CODE (1908), s. 100.

Where the finding of the lower appellate court is based on a mistake of fact it does not bind the High Court on second appeal. (Ryves and Gokul Prasad, JJ.) HABIBKHAN v. FIDA HUSAIN KHAN. L. R. 4 A. 138 (Rev.). 71 I. C. 1017.

—S. 100—Finding of fact—Negligence. See (1922) DIG. COL. 201 SYED SADAQ v. KHOSHMOHINI DASL. 71 I. C. 846.

—S. 100—Finding of fact—Not based on evidence but on conjecture.

Where the lower Appellate Court's finding that the common ancestor of the parties occupied the land in suit was not based on any evidence but was merely conjectural, it is liable to be set aside in Second Appeal. (Martineau, J.) KISHEN LAL v. KANHAYA. 5 Lah. L. J. 106

—S. 100—Finding of fact—Not supported by evidence.

A finding of fact unsupported by any evidence is no finding at all and it can be set aside. (Burn, S. M.) GANGADHAR v. JASWANT SINGH. L. R. 4 A. 36 (Rev.).

—S. 100—Finding of fact—Partnership not one. See (1922) DIG. COL. 201 MOULA BUX v. MUHAMMAD AFZAL. 69 I. C. 781.

—S. 100—Finding of fact—Second appeal—Interference in.

The question of acquiescence from the facts found by the lower Court is one of law and not a question of fact. 21 A. 496 followed. (Hallifax, A. J. C.) SHANKER v. RANGUBAI. 71 I. C. 942.

—S. 100—Finding of fact when not binding on the court of second appeal. See (1922) DIG. COL. 196 RAM SINGH v. GANGA RAM. 70 I. C. 202.

—S. 100—Findings of fact—When interfered with.

In second appeal a finding of fact will not be interfered with unless in arriving at it, the court below has gone wrong on a question of law or there is no evidence to support it. (Dawson Miller, C. J. and Mullick, J.) AJTI CHAUDHURI v. JANAK LAL CHAUDHURI. 1923 Pat. 332.

—S. 100—Finding of fact—Whole evidence not considered—Effect. (See) (1922) DIG. COL. 200. LALA GIRJA PRASAD v. JUGAL KISHORE. 70 I. C. 853.

—S. 100—Finding of legal necessity.

A finding as to legal necessity cannot be questioned in second appeal. When the amount of consideration for a sale which is found to be without necessity represents only a small portion of the entire consideration it is not necessary to convert the sale into a mortgage. (Motisagar, J.) BALBIR SINGH v. GOBIND. 1923 Lah. 532.

—S. 100—Improper admission of evidence in lower Court.

Although an erroneous omission in the trial court to object to an admission which was irrelevant did not make it relevant and admissible in evidence, an objection that a document that per se is not admissible in evidence, has been improperly admitted in evidence cannot be entertained in second appeal. (Mookerjee and Rankin, JJ.) SAYERUDDIN AKONDA v. SAMIRUDDIN AKONDA. 72 I. C. 985 : 1923 Cal. 378.

—S. 100—Inference from documents—If a question of law.

Inferences drawn from documentary evidence are not questions of law and cannot be challenged in second appeal. (Dalal, A. J. C.) BINDESHRI PANDE v. SHEO RATAN PANDE. 90 & A. L. R. 443 : 74 I. C. 811.

—S. 100—Genuineness of signature—Evidence Act, S. 45—Comparison of handwriting.

Comparison of signatures is one of the modes of proving hand writing and although, where there is no other evidence such proof would be regarded as hazardous and inconclusive, it cannot be regarded as an error in law to base the conclusion on such proof alone, and a Court of second appeal would have no power to set aside a finding based on such comparison. 14 I. C. 741, Foll. (Broadway and Moti Sgar, JJ.) BATAK RAM MAHOMED SAID. 1923 Lah. 695.

—S. 100—Inferences from facts admitted—If a question of law.

Where the facts are not in dispute, the legal inference to be drawn therefrom is a question of law. (Chatterjee and Cumming, JJ.) LAKSHMI NARAIN BAIJINATH v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA. 27 C. W. N. 1017 : 1924 Cal. 92.

—S. 100—Inference from facts—Interference.

An inference drawn from facts by the lower appellate court is a finding of fact and cannot be interfered with in second appeal. (Miller, C. J. and Kulwant Sahay, JJ.) BION v. SHEOGULAM LAL. 74 I. C. 843.

—S. 100—Judgment based on opinions of experts open to challenge in second appeal.

Where the findings of the Courts below are based on an examination and balancing of opinions and view of experts to sufficiency of the facts observed and of the inferences drawn can always be examined. Where there is a material difference of opinion, their value and sufficiency even when accepted by one court or any other can be attacked in second appeal. (Kanhaya Lal, J.) ALTAFAN v. IBRAHIM. 21 A. L. J. 811 : L. R. 4 A. 561 : 75 I. C. 502 (2).

—S. 100—Judgment of reversal.

In a judgment of reversal it is absolutely necessary that good grounds should be shown for coming to any finding of fact. There must be sufficient material in the judgment of Appellate Court to show the High Court that Lower Appellate Court has considered the evidence and duly considered the reasons given by the trial Court in its judgment for coming to a contrary decision. (Adami, J.) BHIKHU MANDAL v. BHIKHU HAKAR DUTTA. 1923 P. 275.

—S. 100—Limitation—Facts not decided—If can be raised for first time in second appeal.

Where for the decision of a question of limitation, the ascertainment of facts is necessary, the point cannot be allowed to be raised for the first time

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 100.

—S. 100—Maintainability of second appeal—Order not appealable—Objection to jurisdiction.

Where there is no appeal provided against a certain order, but the appellate court erroneously admits the appeal and passes a decree in the same, the decree is subject to a second appeal. But the objection to the maintainability of the appeal in the Court below can be raised there for the first time. (Kanhariya Lal, J.) BHAGWAN DAS v. MT. MAHOMED BANO, L. R. 4 All. 447.

—S. 100—Misconstruction of document—Misreading of documentary evidence.

Misreading of the documentary evidence is not a question of law which justifies a second appeal (Das, J.) MAHABIR MISSEER v. MT. ASOKLER. 1923 P. 154.

—S. 100—Misconstruction of record.

Misconstruction of records is a ground for second appeal. (Fremantle S.M. and Burn, J.M.) RAMBALI SAHAI v. RAM RAO KUSHNA JATAR. L. R. 4 A. 178 (Rev.)

—S. 100—Mixed question of fact and law—Duty of Court—Conclusion on facts found.

In second appeal, the court can legally decide a mixed question of fact and law, but it is undesirable to dispose of the question in the absence of findings of fact by the lower appellate Court.

Where a right conclusion has been drawn on the facts found can be gone into in second appeal. (Batten, J. C.) PONDUSA v. BAHENABAI. 69 I. C. 193 : 1923 Nag. 124.

—S. 100—Negligence—Mixed question of law and fact whether can be reviewed in second appeal. See (1922) DIG. COL. 201. ASAD ALI v. FAIZAZ ALI 70 I. C. 591.

—S. 100—New plea.

Where there is no reference to a plea in the judgments of the Courts below or in the pleadings of the parties, the point cannot be allowed to be raised in second appeal. A decree for a sum cannot be granted in second appeal, when no such relief was asked for in the Courts below. (Shadi Lal, C. J. and Abdul Qadir, J.) FIRM RAM DYAL SHEO PERSHAD v. FIRM GHAMANDI LAL NARAIN DAS 1923 Lah. 56.

—S. 100—New plea—Raising for first time.

A point which was not raised in either of the Courts below cannot be entertained in the High Court. (Broadway and Brasher, JJ.) CHHAJU MAL v. KUNDAN LAL. 70 I. C. 838 : (1923) Lah. 53.

Though questions of limitation being questions of law are not excluded from being heard in Second Appeal, when they have not been raised in the lower Court, it has always been maintained that where a question of law depends on a finding of fact on evidence and that evidence has not been led in the Trial Court, then the High Court in second appeal will not deal with the question of law. (Macleod, C. J. and Crump, J.) DIGAMBAR v. LAHYADEO. 25 Bom. L. R. 245 : 72 I. C. 326 : 1923 Bom. 254.

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 100.

—S. 100—New point—Question involving consideration of evidence.

Where a point of fact was not raised in the courts below nor had any issue been framed with reference to it, cannot be raised for the first time on second appeal. (Greaves, J.) NAYAJAN ALI v. MIDNAPORE ZAMINDARI COMPANY. 1923 Cal. 285.

—S. 100—New point—When allowed to be raised for the first time in appeal or second appeal.

The court will allow a party to raise a new point of law on second appeal when no further investigation of facts is necessary and when there is no surprise to the other side. If however the new plea raises a question of fact or mixed question of fact and law, the court will not allow it to be raised 35 A. 273 : 10 M. 1 Ret. (Mookerjee and Cuming, JJ.) SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA v. UPENDRA NARAIN ROY. 71 I. C. 849 : 1923 Cal. 247.

—S. 100—Perverse finding not binding.

Ordinarily it is not possible on second appeal to go behind concurrent findings of fact, but where not only the findings are perverse in the sense that they were opposed to the weight of the oral evidence, but that was due to the fact that the trial Court wholly ignored the entry in certain documents whilst the first Appellate Court entirely failed to realise its probative value the High Court set aside the concurrent findings of fact. (Bratt, J.) MAUNG HLAING v. MAUNG CHIT SU. 1 R. 135 : 1923 Rang. 196.

—S. 100—Plea raised for the first time—When can be entertained.

A law point which is patent upon the record even if it has not been taken at all in either of the courts below could be raised for the first time in the second appeal and must be considered (Campbell, J.) SOHAN SINGH v. SANTA SINGH. 1923 Lah. 491.

—S. 100—Point of limitation not raised in court below—If to be allowed to be raised.

Points under the Limitation Act not taken in the court below should not ordinarily be allowed to be raised in the High Court. (Schwabe, C. J. and Wallace, J.) PARA DEKKAN v. AMEERUDDIN SAHIB. 72 I. C. 131 : 17 L. W. 169 : 1923 Mad. 306.

The question whether a certain place is a town for the purposes of the Punjab Pre-emption Act is a question of fact and cannot be raised in second appeal. It cannot be denied that whenever such a question arises it is to be denied upon the evidence and the particular circumstances of each case. It is therefore, difficult to hold that it is a question of law. It is not necessary that a custom prevailing in the town should apply to the mohallas or suburbs. (Abdul Raoof, J.) —S. 100—Question of law—Documentary evidence—Inference from—Not a question for second appeal.

A second appeal does not lie, because some portion of the evidence may be in writing and the Judge makes a mistake as to the meaning of it. For instance, a writing supposed to contain an admission may be put in as part of the evidence, but a mistake in its meaning is not a misconstruction of a document upon which a special appeal will lie if it is connected with other evidence affecting its construction. The misconstruction of a document which is the foundation of the suit, which is in the nature of a contract or a document of title, is allowed to be a ground for second appeal. —S. 104 (1) (i) and Sch. II para 21 (2)—Decision as to filing of award—Right of appeal—Distinction between the two provisions

The effect of section 104 (1) (i) seems to give a right of appeal against the decision of the Court on the question whether the award should be filed or not. Paragraph 21 (2) of the Second Schedule allows an appeal also if the decree of the Court does not correctly interpret the award and on an appeal under this provision the decree can be corrected so as to bring it in accordance with the award. But when the decree does correctly interpret the award then there is no appeal against the decree, in other words when an award has lawfully been made there is no appeal against the decision of the arbitrators. —S. 109—Final order—Order for a personal decree in mortgage suit—Appeal to Privy Council.

In an execution appeal arising out of a mortgage decree, the decree holders were the appellants in the High Court. They had obtained execution of their mortgage decree in a somewhat unusual but perfectly lawful, manner. They had exhausted the whole of the property covered by the decree, and they alleged that a very considerable portion of the decree still remained unsatisfied. They applied to the Court below for the preparation of a decree covering this unsatisfied balance, under the provisions of Order 34, rule 6 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The office report prepared at the time the application was made showed that the amount due under the decree on the date of the said report, namely, the 23rd of May, 1918, was Rs 32,119-7-6, and that the total amount realised by the sale of the mortgaged property was only Rs. 18,600. The judgment-debtors objected that the application for a decree under Order 34, rule 6 was statute-barred under appropriate article of the Indian Limitation Act. The execution Court upheld this contention and dismissed the application of the decree-holders. On appeal, a Bench of the High Court, held that the application was within time. The order of the Court below, was then set aside and the execution Court was ordered to re-admit the application of the decree holders on to its file of pending applications and to dispose of it according to law.

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 109.

Held that under the circumstances this amounted to a direction that a decree under Order 34, rule 6 should be prepared, the details of which were left for the Execution Court to settle, and that the order of the High Court was a final order against which leave to appeal to the Privy Council should be granted. The substantial portion of the order which the applicants complained of in their petition for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council was really passed on the Civil Extraordinary application, but it did not finally dispose of the rights of the parties and the suit was left at practically the stage at which it was when filed.

Held, it cannot be said that this is a final order within the meaning of S. 109 (a) or that it is a final judgment within the meaning of Cl. 39 of the Letters Patent (Shah and Crump, JJ.) SHRI NIWAS v. HANMAT, 1923 Bom. 39.

Ss. 97 and 105 of the C. P. Code do not regulate the right of appeal to His Majesty in Council for an order which the Code declares to be final may yet be open to an appeal to His Majesty in Council, if the effect of the order is to negative the right of a party to continue the suit. Such an order would have the effect of finally determining the rights of the parties. The nature of the order in each case would determine whether it was final or interlocutory. If the order finally disposes of the rights of the parties, it ought to be treated as a final order, but if it did not it is an interlocutory order from which no appeal could be entertained. Where the order in question did not finally determine the rights of the parties but merely disposed of a subsidiary issue, the determination of which would require the continuation of the trial held that if the suit ultimately failed on the merits an appeal to the Privy Council might become wholly necessary and that leave to appeal to the Privy Council could not be granted. To determine whether special leave should be given it must be borne in mind that what is contemplated in S. 109 (c) of the C. P. C. is a class of cases in which there may be involved question of public importance, or which may be important precedents governing numerous other cases, or in which, while the right in dispute is not exactly measureable in money, it is of great public or private importance. Held, that consolidation could not be ordered under O. 45, R. 4 of the Civil Procedure Code, as the judgments which decided the suits were different in the first Court and on appeal.

The fact that leave to appeal was given in the other case does not bring the latter case within the terms of S. 109 (c) of the Code 5 I. C. 583 not followed.

Where the point in issue appears to be of general importance to the appellant but not of sufficient importance to the proposed respondent to warrant the High Court in putting him to the expense of an appeal to the highest tribunal, the High Court must refuse leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council.

The High Court has no power, in granting leave to appeal, to impose a condition that the appellant should, in any event, pay all the costs of the other party. (*Schwabe C. A person who had obtained a decree on a mortgage sued for rectification of that decree on the ground that a share of the property which had been purchased by the 8th defendant in the suit had by mistake been omitted from the decree owing to a mis-description in the mortgage deed. The Court below as well as the High Court decreed the suit as brought. On an application by the 8th defendant for leave to appeal to the Privy Council by the 8th defendant the plaintiff objected that the value of the subject-matter on appeal to His Majesty in Council was the market value of the share of the property claimed by the 8th defendant which was less than Rs. 10,000. It was also objected that there was no question of law in the case. Held that the claim of the plaintiff against the 8th defendant was part and parcel of the mortgage transaction and as there was no claim by title paramount set up by the 8th defendant, the value of the appeal to His Majesty in Council was not the value of the share of the 8th defendant but was the entire value of the mortgage suit which was about the appealable value. Held further that the question whether the plaintiff was entitled to have the decree rectified was a substantial question of Law. 18 L. W. 655 : 75 I. C. 604.

S. 113, and O. 46 B. 1—"Reasonable doubt"

Where it was perhaps somewhat difficult to hold that the judge making the reference entertained any reasonable doubt as to whether a decision was correct, but the respondent withdrew any objection on this ground, as he said the questions that arose would affect a very large number of cases and must affect a very large amount of money reference was entertained. 1923 Lah. 505.

S. 115—Appeal—Conversion into revision—Interference.

Where it would amount to a denial of justice to the appellant to refuse relief and it appears that no appeal lies against the decision of the Court below, the High Court would convert the appeal into a revision petition and interfere. Where the lower court had erroneously and without jurisdiction purported to amend a final decree, the High Court set aside the order in revision. (Ghose and Panton, JJ.) *NAWABKHAJEH HABIBULLA v. ## S. 115—Appeal—Incompetent appeal entertained by Appellate Court—Revision.

Where a lower appellate Court erroneously entertains an appeal against an order under O. 21, R. 101 C. P. Code the High Court can interfere in revision and set aside the decision of the lower appellate Court. (Macleod, C. J. and Crump, J.) BAI MANI v. RANCHODLAL.

the arbitrators its order is not open to revision under S. 115, C. P. Code, 26 B. 551 foll. (Macleod, C. J. and Crump, J.) CHIMANBHAI v. KESHVLAL. 25 Bom. L. R. 443; 47 Bom. 721. 73 I. C. 464; 1923 Bom. 402.

—S. 115—Board of Revenue—Proceedings under S. 169 Madras Estates Land Act—Nature of—Power of High Court to revise

An appeal preferred to the Board of Revenue in a matter referring to Recording of Rights was dismissed without hearing the party in person or by pleader. Held the High Court would not interfere in revision (1) because the petitioner had a remedy by suit in a Civil Court under S. 170 of the Estates Land Act and (2). The order of the Board is not that of a Court exercising judicial functions and subject to the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court (Spencer and Devadoss, JJ.) BURLA APPANNA v. ANALA LATCHAYYA. 18 L. W. 649; 33 M. L. T. 92 (H. C.). 45 M. L. J. 725.

—S. 115—Case—Application for leave to amend—Order refusing—Revision.

An application for leave to amend the pleadings is not a case, and an order therein refusing leave will be revisable either under S. 115 C. P. Code or S. 25 Pro. SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT (Wazir Hasain, A. J. C.) BADRI PRASAD v. MURLI DHAR. 9 O. & A. L. R. 846.

—S. 115—Case decided—Decision as to jurisdiction of the Court.

Where on the objection of the defendant that the Court has no jurisdiction to enter in the suit the Court decides it has jurisdiction, the order of the Court does not amount to a decision of a case and no revision lies against it. 40 P. —Ss. 115 and 144—Case decided—Decision as to payment of court-fee.

An order of the appellate court directing the appellant to pay ad valorem court fee is a case decided within the meaning of S. 115, C. P. Code and the High Court can revise the order. (Oldfield, J.) SUDALAI MUTHU PILLAI v. SUDALAI MUTHU PILLAI. 17 L. W. 623; 71 I. C. 173; 1923 Mad. 270.

—S. 115—Case decided—Meaning of—Order under S. 10 of Act, 14 of 1920.

The expression "Case" in S. 115 of the C. P. Code does not necessarily mean the whole case and includes a particular branch of the case which is quite distinct. An order directing the defendant to deposit money under S. 10 of the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act, is open to revision by the High Court. (Brasher, J.) MAHANT KIRPAL SINGH v. C. P. CODE (1908), S. 115.

—S. 115—Case decided—Refusal to adjourn.

The refusal by a court to adjourn the hearing of a suit in order to enable the applicant to pay the court is not an order which should be revised by the High Court. (Piggott and Walsh JJ.) CHAKHAN LAL v. KANHAIYA LAL. 45 A. 218; 9 O. and A. L. R. 146; 69 I. C. 921; 1923 A. 118.

—S. 115—Case decided—Refusal to issue interrogatories.

The refusal to issue interrogatories for the examination of witnesses does not amount to "a case decided" within the meaning of S. 115 C. P. Code and hence the order is not revisable. (Scott-Smith, J.) ROOP CHAND v. THE CHURCH MISSIONARY TRUST ASSOCIATION. 69 I. C. 417; 1923 Lah. 282 (2).

—S. 115—Case decided—Refusal to sue in forma pauperis.

Where a court refuses permission to leave in forma pauperis, the order is capable of being raised, as it is "a case decided" within S. 115 C. P. Code. (Baker, O. J. C. and Halliday, A. J. C.) ACHAL SINGH v. SETH JIWANDAS. 19 N. L. R. 165.

—S. 115—Case decided—What is—Interlocutory order—Powers of interference—Bombay Regulation II of 1827, S. 5.

In a suit relating to a municipal election two first preliminary issues were raised and decided whether the Government was a party and secondly if the Court had jurisdiction to hear the suit. Held, the decision amounted to the decision of a case and could be raised both under S. 115 and under S. 5 of Regulation II of 1827. ## —S. 115 and O. 22, R. 2—Delay in bringing legal representative—Revision.

Where an application to bring on record the legal representative of a deceased defendant is presented out of time on the ground of ignorance of the death on the part of the applicant and the Court below excused the delay. Held, that the Court ought to have considered whether the applicant's ignorance of the death was justified and afforded sufficient cause for the delayed application. ## —S. 115—Dismissal for default—Restoration—Interference.

When the general policy of the legislature is to provide an appeal when a court refuses to restore an application dismissed for default, while none is provided in cases where the trial court itself restores the application, here restoration jurisdiction should be sparingly exercised. (Asanworth and Simpson, A.J.C.) BABU RAM v. MR. RAM DULAN DEBI. 20 O. C. 194. 1922 Cal. 30.

—S. 115 and O. 9, R. 13—Dismissal for default—Setting aside—Improper refusal—Revision.

Where a court dismissed an application to set aside an order of dismissal of a suit for default without considering the existence of sufficient cause for non-appearance of the plaintiff the order is open to revision under S. 115 C. ## —S. 115—Erroneous decision of lower appellate Court as to jurisdiction of trial Court.

The High Court has jurisdiction to interfere under section 115(c) when a lower appellate Court erroneously decides in the exercise of its admitted jurisdiction as an appellate court that the court of first instance has or has not jurisdiction to entertain a suit. In any case the High Court can take up under section 115 (b) both orders of the court below read together on the question whether the first court has failed to exercise a jurisdiction vested in it. (Campbell, J.) DALIPA v. BARKET ALI. (1923) Lah. 412.

—S. 115—Erroneous decision on point of limitation—Interference.

An erroneous decision on a question of limitation can be revised, if the order results in an improper refusal to exercise jurisdiction e.g. to execute a decree. (Kahaiyya Lal, J.) SURAJMAN CHAUBE v. ANORE SHUKUL. 21 A. L. J. 861 : L. R. 4 A. 591 : 9 O. and A. L. R. 989.

—S. 115 Error of law—Failure to note a promise to section—Powers of interference.

An error of law, such as construing a section by overlooking a material proviso to the same, is not an illegality justifying interference in revision. (Carr, J.) MAUNG NYAN v. MAUNG SHWE NI. 2. Bur. L. J. 275.

—S. 115—Error of law—Interference. See (1921) Dig. Col. 216. HARI CHARAN ROY CHAUDHURI v. BIRENDRA NATH SAHA. 70 I. C. 541.

—S. 115—Error of law—No ground for revision.

Where the Judge in the Court below has applied his mind to the question of law arising in the case but had decided it wrongly there is nothing to attract the interference of the High Court under S. 115, C. P. C. (Daniels, J.) BHOLA NATH v. RAM SAHA. 71 I. C. 472 : 1923 A. 465 (2).

—S. 115—Error of law—No ground for revision.

Even if the Court below has taken an erroneous view of the law, it is no ground for interference in revision. (Batten, J. C.) MR. BARI BAHU v. KUNDAN SINGH. 71 I. C. 31.

—S. 115—Error of law—No Ground for revision.

A mere error of law does not justify the court in interfering under S. 115 C. P. Code. (Greaves, J.) GOLAM SOBIAN v. ALI HOSSAIN BAKADUR. 1923 Cal. 322 (1).

—S. 115—Error of law—Not a ground of revision.

Where a matter is entirely within the jurisdiction of the lower court, a mere error of law in arriving at a finding is no ground for revision by the High Court. 41 C. 32 Rst. (Newbould and Panton, JJ.) RAJENDRA NATH ROY v. SHEIKH ABDOL. 1923 Cal. 260.

—S. 115—Error of law—Limitation—No ground for revision.

Where the Court below took a wholly erroneous view of the law of limitation, but at the same time its decision was one arrived at with jurisdiction, it cannot be revised under section 115 C. P. —S. 115—Exercise of wrong jurisdiction—Evidence of title under O. 33, R. 6.

The Court is not entitled to take evidence from the parties upon the question of the plaintiff's title before coming to the conclusion whether it would grant or refuse the application under rules 5 and 6 of O. 33. If it takes evidence on the question of title it exercises a jurisdiction not vested in it by law within S. 115. (Banerji and Gokul Prasad, JJ.) MT. SHAUHAN BIBI v. ABDUS SAMAD. 1923 A. 577.

—S. 115—Interlocutory order—Refusal to frame issue—Revision—Interference—Government of India Act, S. 107.

As a general rule, except upon proof of irreparable injury the High Court will not interfere in revision under S. 115 of the Code of Civil Procedure, when there is another remedy open to the applicant. Interlocutory orders are not exempted. Where the Court below refused to raise an issue clearly arising from the pleading of the party, without assigning any reason whatever, the High Court interfered under S. 107 of the Government of India Act. (Mullick and Ross, JJ.) SHEO PRASAD SINGH v. SHUKHU MAHTO. 4 Pat. L. T. 401; 72 I. C. 148; 1923 P. 518.

—S. 115—Interlocutory order—Refusal to issue commission—Interference.

In a case where a Court refused to examine a witness on commission, when it had no discretion to refuse it, the High Court will interfere in interlocutory proceedings rather than permit a trial to go on, on an illegal course which will entail unnecessary expenditure and waste of time. (Wallace, J.) JAGANATHA SASTRY v. SARATHAMBAL AMMAL. 46 Mad 574; 17 L. W. 251; 71 I. C. 530; 1923 M. W. N. 157; 1923 Mad. 321; 44 M. L. J. 202.

—S. 115—Interlocutory order—Revision—Appeal.

The High Court refused to interfere in revision with an interlocutory order of the lower court directing a commissioner to ascertain mesne profits as the applicant had a remedy by way of appeal from the final decree. (Spencer, J.) HUSSAIN SAHIB v. HAMMAD SAHIB. 1923 Mad. 43.

—S. 115—Interlocutory order—Revision—Other remedy open.

It is no doubt the practice of this Court not to interfere in revision, when another remedy is available, but the High Court may interfere in exceptional cases especially where it is not clear that there is in fact another remedy. (Oldfield, J.) HARI KRISHNA PILLAI v. ARUR PANDITHAR. 18 L. W. 105; (1923) M. W. N. 354; 72 I. C. 688; 1923 Mad. 663.

On a mere question of the interpretation of particular words in a document, where the words were clearly susceptible of more than one interpretation, the High Court would decline to interfere in revision. (Piggott, J.) KRISHNA DATT v. BRIJ LAL. 1923 All. 269.

—S. 115.—Jurisdiction—Adjournment on payment of costs.

Where a court grants an adjournment on condition costs are paid, and on failure to pay the same decided the suit ex-parte, it had ample jurisdiction to do so and the order is not revisable. (Das and Macpherson, JJ.) CHOTU MIAN v. PALTO GOPE. 1 Pat. L. R. 270.

—S. 115.—Jurisdiction—Declining of—Dismissal of execution petition as not sustainable

Where the lower appellate Court erroneously holds that the District Munsif had no jurisdiction to execute a decree and dismisses the execution petition as having been referred to a Court not having jurisdiction, the lower appellate Court must be held to have declined to exercise a jurisdiction within the meaning of S. 115 C. P. Code. (Oldfield and Venkatasubba Rao, JJ.) MUTHUKARUPPA CHETTY v. PAIYA KAVUNDAN. 18 L. W. 17 : 45 M. L. J. 210 : 1923 M. W. N. 406 : 73 I. C. 956 (2) : 1924 Mad. 32.

—S. 115.—Jurisdiction—Erroneous decision on point of law—Revision.

Where a Court assumes jurisdiction to pass an order for an erroneous view of the law, in a matter where it has in fact no jurisdiction, it is a case for interference of the High Court under S. 115, C. P. Code. (Krishnan and Venkatasubba Rao, JJ.) RAMASWAMI GOUNDAN v. MUTHU VELAPPA GOUNDAN. 46 Mad. 536 : 44 M. L. J. 1 : 1923 M. W. N. 183 : 71 I. C. 1039 : 1923 Mad. 192.

—S. 115.—Jurisdiction—Failure to entertain plea of illegality suo motu.

Where a court fails to entertain plea of illegality suo motu i.e. that that a certain contract is opposed to public policy, and even refuses to allow the defendant to raise it, must be deemed to have declined a jurisdiction vested in it and to have acted with material irregularity in the exercise of jurisdiction. —S. 115.—Leave to sue in forma pauperis—Refusal—Interference in revision

Where the Court below refuses to grant leave to sue in forma pauperis, it is open to the High Court to interfere in revision. The order on an application for permission to sue in forma pauperis is a case decided within the meaning of S. 115 C. P. Code. 12 O. C. 381 followed, 43 A. 564 : 44 A. 248 distinguished. —S. 115.—Material irregularity—Decision on imaginary facts—Perversity.

Where the decision of the court below was based not merely on a forced and impossible construction of the facts that were before the court, but on the importation of facts which were admitted by both parties not to exist this is clearly a material irregularity in the exercise of jurisdiction of the sort contemplated by S. 115 (c) C. When a court of law has taken up a point of fact or law for decision and has decided that point wrongly it has acted with full jurisdiction and regularly and legally and no revision lies unless, that decision itself affects the court's own jurisdiction but when having jurisdiction, the court has failed or refused to take up the point for decision, it has exercised jurisdiction irregularly and the more the failure or refusal affects the exercise of its jurisdiction, the greater the irregularity will be. An order staying a suit under section 10 of the Civil Procedure Code is not "a decision of a case" within the meaning of section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code any more than a decision by a Subordinate Court in a case in which the only question is whether it has or has not jurisdiction to go on with a suit.

In order to come to a finding as to whether the requirements of section 10 C.P. Code have or have not been fulfilled, the Court is bound to determine certain matters mentioned in the section, and if it does, it cannot be said that the Court has acted illegally in the exercise of its jurisdiction which was vested in it by law. —S. 145—Principal and surety—Debt extinguished by merger—Liability of surety.

The liability of a surety for a debt ceases to exist when his principal's debt is extinguished by an act which causes the merger of the estate of the debtor and the creditor.

The plaintiffs obtained a decree for mesne profits against a person and the defendant stood surety for him under an order for stay of execution pending a Second Appeal against the decree. The judgment-debtor died and his estate became vested in the plaintiffs. On an application by plaintiffs to recover the amount from the surety held under the circumstances the plaintiffs were not entitled to recover.

—Ss. 149, 151—Execution—Setting aside decree—Condition of deposit—Failure to deposit.

Defts. judgment-debtors failed to comply with their contract and plaintiff decree holder got a decree for specific performance on condition of deposit within a certain period. He made the payment 4 days after, but, before the expiry of the period allowed, he applied for correction of the decree by the insertion of certain directions as to what was to happen in the event of his making the deposit. The Court on 20th March allowed the amendment, but in the same order stated that plaintiff decree holder had failed to make the deposit and was not entitled to any extension of time. Two months before this order, the plaintiff decree-holder had applied for execution and was given possession of the property, the failure to make deposit not having been brought to the notice of the Court. The judgment-debtor in connection with proceedings which culminated in the order of 20th March, applied to be restored to possession and her application was granted. Held, in revision, where a definite time is fixed by the decree, the Court has no power to extend it; but in any case no extension having been granted plaintiff decree holder was not entitled to any relief (*Daniels, J. — S. 151—Inherent power—Reconstruction of lost records—Procedure.

Where owing to accident or other cause the records of a Court of justice have been destroyed or lost, the Court has an inherent power to reconstruct its records. An appellate Court has the same power to reconstruct the records of the Court from which an appeal lies to it. In reconstructing the record the court may have to go very near to rehearing but the Court will always apply its mind to ascertain not what the rights of the parties were, but what the destroyed record of the suit was and on that record, when reconstructed, it will have to act on the ordinary principles on which it would have acted if the original record had been before it. Affidavits counter, affidavits the hearing of witnesses and the admission of copies are all methods by which the Court may reconstruct the record and an appellate Court may also send the case back to the lower Court for a finding as to the state of record. The best evidence of what took place in the Trial Court would be found in the judgment of that Court if it is available. 7 W. R. : 18 Ref. (Schwab, C. J. Oldfield and Ramesam, JJ.)

Suits for possession of landed property usually include a prayer for mesne profits. Although the plaintiff has often a reasonable fear that if he gets a decree he will fail to realise the mesne profits (because the money would be spent up by the party in possession who may not possess any other property), yet the Code has made no express provision for an order requiring the defendant to furnish security for mesne profits in a suit for ejectment. ———S. 151—Stay of suit—Inherent power—Vexatious and oppressive Suit—Natural forum avoided by plaintiff—Evidence accessible outside Jurisdiction.

Appeals to the inherent jurisdiction of the Court have to be regarded with great caution. But after exercising such caution, the court is clearly of opinion that the jurisdiction ought to be exercised, it should not be intimidated from so doing, because no case on all fours is forthcoming from the reported decisions of the High Courts. The Court will interfere to prevent vexatious proceedings which would have the effect of preventing the due administration of justice. The Court will stay an action brought within the jurisdiction, in respect of a cause of action arising out of the jurisdiction, if satisfied that no injustice will be done thereby to the plaintiff, and that the defendant would be subject to such injustice in defending the action as would amount to vexation and oppression, to which he would not be subjected if an action were brought in another and accessible Court where the cause of action arose. Where the dealings between the parties were at Rangoon and where the evidence was wholly procurable there and the trouble and expense involved in bringing all the evidence to Bombay were great and where the object of the plaintiff in bringing the suit in Bombay was probably to harass and annoy the defendant and coerce him into a compromise. Held that the High Court was justified in staying the action if the plaintiff did not withdraw the action within a time prescribed. ———S. 152—Amendment of decree—Discretion—Principles guiding—Intervention of rights of third parties action in good faith—Effect—Sale in execution of decree—Subsequent application for its amendment—parties—Purchaser of necessary party.

The exercise of the power of amendment under S. 152, C.P.C. is discretionary, and an application for amendment of a decree should be rejected as too late if the rights of third parties acting in good faith have intervened. A purchaser at a sale held in execution of a decree which is subsequently sought to be amended is a necessary party to the application for its amendment on the general principle that persons, whom it is desired to bind by proceedings can and must be impleaded in them and the order allowing the amendment is not binding on him, if they are not so impleaded. To pass a decree against the legal representative of the deceased defendant so as to make him personally liable is not competent to a Court to direct. Though an appeal can lie against an amended decree in the same way as against any other decree, there can be no appeal against an order amending a decree. S. 153 C. P. Code allows the Court to give leave for amendment at any time in any proceeding in a suit, and Order VI, Rule 17, says that the Court may allow such amendments at any stage of the proceedings. Prima facie this limits the Court to allowing amendments in pleadings during the actual pendency of the suit and not after the decree has been actually drawn up and sealed.

But when a decree has actually been passed, if it is final, the original Court is, generally speaking, functus officio and the occasion for an amendment of pleadings cannot really arise. (Fawcett, J.) KISHEN PRASAD AND CO. LTD v. FULLMAL HIRALAL.

A beneficiary of a trust in respect of a Muhammadan waqf interested in the maintenance of a mosque or other charitable institution may, without having recourse to the provisions of Rule 8, Order 1, Civil Procedure Code and without suing in a representative capacity on behalf of the other beneficiaries, sue for recovery of possession of property wrongfully alienated by the trustee and for the incidental declaration that the subject of the trust cannot be alienated.

The trust property vests in God and the right of a Muhammadan who is entitled to use a mosque to bring a suit for the recovery of property belonging to it is comparable to a right of suit in respect of a private road which many persons have a right to use. against that party is entitled to be impleaded under O. 1, R. 10, Cl. (2), C. P. Code to protect his interests.

The plaintiff, claiming to be the son of an adopted son of S, the last male owner of the suit property, sued for the recovery of possession of the same from 1st defendant, the widow of the last male owner. Plaintiff's case was that his father had been adopted by the 1st defendant, and that he (plaintiff) had been unlawfully excluded from the plaint properties by the 1st defendant on account of an invalid agreement between her and the 2nd defendant. Certain persons, claiming to be the nearest reversioners to the last male owner, applied to be made defendants in the suit and were made defendants by the Court below. One question, and probably the most important question, in the suit was whether the plaintiff's father's adoption to the last male owner was true and valid.

Held, that the presence of the nearest reversioners to the last male owner before the Court was necessary in order to enable the Court effectually and completely to adjudicate upon and settle all the questions involved in the suit, and that the Court below was competent to make them defendants. The mortgagee instituted a suit in 1908 for the interest then due reserving the right to sue for the principal and future interest. The suit was decreed. — O. 2, R. 2—Causes of action—Splitting of—Different Cause of action—No bar.

O. 2, R. 2, C. P. C. requires that every suit shall include the whole of the claim arising from the one and the same cause of action and not that every suit shall include every claim and every cause of action which the plaintiff may have against the defendant. Consequently if the cause of action in the subsequent suit is different from that in the first suit the subsequent suit is not barred. The whole question for investigation, therefore is, whether the cause of action in the subsequent suit is the same as that in the first suit. (Coutts and Das, JJ.) MT. BHAGJOGNI v. SAKHI MAHTON. 1923 Pat. 234 : 1923 P. 575.

Under a mortgage executed in 1902 the principal sum borrowed was Rs. 1,200 and the sum was payable in annual instalments of 100 Rupees each. On default of payment of any one instalment the whole or the balance was to be paid at once. In the years 1903 and 1904 the mortgagors paid Rs. 44 only. In 1905 the plaintiffs filed a suit to recover the amount of the first two instalments and obtained a decree. In 1917 plaintiffs (mortgagees) filed a suit for recovery of the remaining instalments with interest. Held that the suit was barred by O. 2, R. 2, C. P. Code. 20 Bom. L. So long as a tenancy in common continues it is open to one tenant to file a suit for partition irrespective of any suit or suits which had been filed between them for a share or the profits during the continuance of the tenancy in common. Plf's. suit for specific performance of a contract of sale of immoveable property in his favour was dismissed and he subsequently brought a suit for recovery of earnest money from the defendant. Held that the claim for the recovery of the earnest money was based on a different cause of action from the claim for specific performance and that O. 2, R. 2, C. P. — O. 2, R. 2—Distinct Causes of action—Contract for sale of Goods—Delivery by insolvents—Effect of—Distinct contracts.

Prima facie each order and delivery of goods is a separate transaction and a separate cause of action, unless they are successive claims arising under the same obligation within the explanation at the end of O. 2, R. 2, C. P. Code. The question is really dependent on the contract between the parties. If all the goods were delivered under a single contract it would be within the explanation unless there was an express stipulation that each delivery or each month's deliveries should be deemed to be a separate contract. The validity of such a clause has been recognised. There are numerous definitions of the expression "Cause of action" and courts have held that the meaning of the expression as used in S. 20 C. P. C. must be gathered from the previous legislation in India and not from the definitions of the expression adopted in certain English decisions. Likewise the meaning of the expression as used in O. 2, R. 2. should be gathered from that rule and the authorities on that rule or on the sections of the previous Codes replaced by that Rule, and it should not be assumed that the expression has the same meaning in that rule as it has either in English decisions or in decisions on questions relating to the law of Limitation. ———O. 2, R. 2—Mortgage with possession and lease in favour of mortgagor executed on the same day—Interest equal to rent—Prior suit for rent—Subsequent suit for mortgage money not barred.

The defendants executed a usufructuary mortgage and a lease of the same property on the same day and in the lease it was stated that the defendants took the mortgaged property from the plaintiffs on a rent of Rs. 187-8-0 per mensem for six months. Plaintiff first sued for rent and then for mortgage money and it was contended that the second suit was barred by O. 2, R. 2.

Held, that although the mortgage-deed and the lease were executed on the same day and rent was equal to the amount of interest yet in view of the facts that the mortgage-deed contained no reference to the lease and that the mortgagees were not restricted in their choice of tenants the mortgage and the lease were two distinct transactions and the institution of the former suit, which was based on the lease, is therefore no bar to the subsequent mortgage suit. 3 Lah. 1 Full (Martineau and Campbell, JJ.) RALIA RAM v. ———O. 2, R. 2—Prior suit for possession—Subsequent suit for redemption.

Where mortgagors have obtained a decree for redemption and have failed to execute it, another suit to redeem will lie for the same reason that the cause of action is not the same.

In 1904 the plaintiffs sued for possession ignoring a mortgage to which the plaintiffs objected ab initio. In that suit they were attempting to avoid it and had they prayed for redemption they would have ipso facto admitted their liability to redeem the mortgage ; in other words, such a prayer would have cut at the roots of their claim. Subsequently they sued for redemption. Held that the cause of action in the present suit was the mortgage now admitted as binding on the plaintiffs plus a refusal of the mortgagees to accept redemption on the terms offered by the plaintiffs. —O. 3, R. 4—Pleader—Vakalat—Acceptance—Omission of pleader's name in vakalat—Effect of—Presentation of plaint if proper.

Where a vakalatnama executed without the pleader's name appearing upon it is accepted by the particular pleader who was engaged by the party and a plaint was presented by that pleader Held that the provisions of O. 3, R. 5 of C. P. C. were sufficiently complied with and that the presentation of the plaint was proper. Once the party has delivered the vakalatnama to a pleader without putting a name on it he must be deemed to have impliedly authorised the pleader to fill up the necessary details and to appear for him. Even where a court returns a plaint for presentation to a proper court the original vakalatnama will continue to be in force even after the return of the plaint. O. 3, R. 4 provides that the authorisation must be in writing not that it must be in any particular form, nor that it must show the pleader's name in the main body of the document. As long as it is a writing which states that the party authorises the pleader to act for him and is signed by the party and the pleader, there is no relaxation of the provisions of the rule in accepting it. Even if there is any defect in the vakalatnama by reason of the omission to mention the name of the particular pleader authorised to appear, such defects can be cured by amendment. (*Halifax, A. J. A pardanashin lady executed a power of attorney in favour of her husband but there was no power given to accept service of summons on her behalf. The summons was served on the husband.

Held, that there was no proper service under O. 5 R 12 as the husband was not an agent duly authorised to accept service of summons. As a pardanashin lady is not able to accept service personally, she comes under the expression "cannot be found" under O. 5, Rr 14 and 17, and service of summons can be effected by serving it on any adult male member of the family, or affixing it on the outer door of the house in which the lady ordinarily resides. —O. 5, R. 17—Service by affixure—Temporary absence of defendant—Duty of Court.

Mere temporary absence of the deft. does not justify the serving officer in affixing a copy of the summons on the door of his house. —O. 5, R. 17—Service by affixure—Temporary absence—Only one attempt—Effect.

Service by affixure should not be made the very first time notice is sought to be served. If it is done and a decree is passed ex parte, it is sufficient cause within the meaning of O. 9, R 13 to set aside the decree. Temporary absence at the time of the process server's call does not mean he cannot be found within the meaning of O. 5, R 17 (Dalal J. C.) MATHURA SINGH v. SHEO MOHAN PRASAD, 9 O. and A. L. Under O. 5 R 20 substituted service should be ordered only when the court is satisfied that the defendant is evading service or that summons cannot be served in the ordinary way. Where the plaintiff knew all along that deft had left a certain place two or three years before suit it cannot be said he was evading service at that place. (Chevis J.) RAM KISHAN v. MULA.

69 I. C. 467.

—O. 6, R. 4—Fraud—Particulars—Duty to disclose—Procedure.

Where the defendant pleads fraud in his defence in a vague position it is the duty of the pleader for the plaintiff to apply to the Court to order the defendant to deliver further and better particulars of the charge of fraud. When settling issues it is the duty of the Judge himself to require the defendant to specify with particularity the nature of the fraud alleged. Subordinate Judges should be watchful to see that in all cases the parties have pleaded their cases so plainly, fully and clearly that each side knows the nature of the case which has to be met, and this rule is one of general application. Frequently the result of ordinary particulars of nebulous claims and defences will be to make it manifest that the claim or defence has no substance. A subordinate judge should, when ordering particulars to be given, order the party in default to pay a specified sum of costs to the other side for the costs occasioned by the application; such payment to be made on or before the delivery of the particulars. If the order is disobeyed and if the plaintiff is in default he should have his action stayed; and if the defendant is in default, his defence should be struck out.

Particulars having been furnished the Judge should be careful at the trial to exclude all evidence which is not fairly covered by the original paragraph and particularly should give that as his reason. — O. 6, R. 17—Appellate court—Powers of—Bona fide mistake—Effect.

Ordinarily an appellate court will not allow amendment if the plaintiff has elected to go to trial on an issue whether the frame of the suit is correct notwithstanding the objection of the defendant that it offends S. 42, Specific Relief Act. But where it is framed bona fide believing consequential relief is not open to him, the appellate court can allow an amendment of the plaint. It is not an inflexible rule that no amendment can be allowed if plaintiff had notice in the trial court of the objection to the frame of the suit. (Mullick and Bucknill, JJ.) SHEJPURJAN RAI v. MAHARAJA BHADUR KESHO PRASAD SINGH. 2 Pat 919.

— O. 6, R. 17—Change in cause of action—No amendment to withdrawal—Effect.

The plaintiff sued for money on a promissory note, which he alleged had been executed by the defendant in consideration of certain sums due. The defendants denied having executed the promissory note, but he was suspected to have substituted a forged promissory note for the one which he had written. The Finger Print Bureau at Allahabad were of the opinion that the finger printed in the document did not agree with those of the defendant. The trial Court held that the plaintiff is entitled to sue on the oral settlement made before the promissory note was given, and on the basis of that settlement it had given the plaintiff a decree for the full amount claimed. On appeal by defendant, the plaintiff had nowhere stated that he wished to change the basis of his suit and fall back on the oral settlement, nor had he asked to be allowed to amend his plaint. The suit had been passed through solely on the promissory note. Held, when it has been found that the promissory note sued upon is a forgery, the claim must necessarily fail. Held the Court below acted quite rightly in refusing the amendment 9 S. L. R. 174; 26 C. 845 Foll. The plaintiffs came into Court on the allegation that the negotiation with the debts culminated in a contract on the 26th September 1917 and that such contract was made by an agent on behalf of the first defendant. No doubt, the document was not annexed to the plaint. But it was produced at the trial and was made the foundation of the case for the plaintiffs. That case completely broke down. Held that the plaintiffs cannot, in such circumstances, be permitted to abandon the case they made in the plaint and invite the Court to examine whether a completed agreement may or may not be spelt out of the antecedent correspondence. The Court would not in a case of this description, permit the plffs. to depart from the case made in the plaint, as the Court discourages, as a rule, variance between pleading and proof. The test applied in such cases is, whether if the variance were permitted in favour of the plffs., debts would be taken by surprise and be prejudiced thereby. ———O. 8, R. 5—Ex parte procedure—Proof of claim—Duty of Court—C. P. Code O. 9, R. 5.

O. 9, R. 6, C. P. Code lays down when the Court may proceed ex parte but there appears to be no explanation in the Code what ex parte procedure is. In respect of the issues, it is the accepted practice that none are framed, though the plaintiff is always called upon, expressly or impliedly but in quite general terms to prove his case. Under O. 8, R. 5 where the defendant does not appear at all he must be taken to have admitted all the allegations in the plaint. Therefore ordinarily in an ex parte case no issue arises at all and there is nothing for the plaintiff to prove. But by the proviso to O. 8, R. 5 it is left to the discretion of the Court to select some of the facts which under the rule itself must be regarded as admitted and to say that the plaintiff must prove them in spite of the implied admission. The Courts do in practice almost invariably, though often tacitly, direct that the main points alleged in the plaint are to be proved otherwise than by the implied admission of the defendants and only the minor points are to be taken as proved by that admission. But when the Court accepts certain allegations in the plaint as proved by the implied admission of the defendant and selects others as requiring proof by the plaintiff it is bound to tell the plaintiff clearly what the points are that have been so selected and the only way to do this is to state them as issues. In the majority of ex parte cases it is so clear to everybody what the points selected as requiring proof otherwise than by the implied admission are that it is unnecessary to state them at all, and this would seem to be the state of things for which the last paragraph of rule 1 of O. XIV provides. But if there is any room for doubt about the matter, then the Court is bound to inform the plaintiff specifically which points he has to prove and which can be taken as proved

———O. 8, R. 6—Set-off—Counter claim—Equitable-off—Difference between—Suit for dividend—Right to set off damages.

A set-off and counter claim are governed by rules of procedure, and a person can only plead by way of set-off or counter claim that which is permitted by those rules. A set-off can be pleaded as a defence and can only be raised where the claim to set off one against the other whether by plaintiff or defendant exists in the same right. A set-off can also be the subject matter of a separate action or a counter claim. In a suit by a share holder for recovery of dividends declared by the company it is not open to the directors to claim by way of set off damages due from plaintiff in respect of alleged breaches of contract. ———O. 8, R. 6—Set off—Counter claim—Distinction—Claim for unliquidated damages—Omission to plead—Amendment.

Under O. 8, R. 6, C. P. C., it is not open to a defendant to claim a set-off in respect of unliquidated damages for alleged breaches of contracts. But the C. P. Code does not exclude what is called an equitable set-off provided the defendant's cross-demand arises out of the same transaction as the plaintiff's claim. 2 M. H. C. R. 296, 303 foll.

Under R. 118 of the Bom. High Court Rules a defendant may set up by way of set-off or counter claim, against the claims of the plaintiff any right or claim whether such set-off or counter claim sounds in damages or not. Nothing which was not a good set off before the passing of the said rule can be a good set off under the said rule the set-off must still be for an ascertained sum or it must arise out of the same transaction as the plaintiff's claim. A counter claim, however, need not arise out of the same transaction. Set off is a ground of defence and it should be pleaded in the written statement. Counter claim does not afford any defence to the plaintiff's claim : it is a weapon of offence which enables a defendant to enforce a claim against the plaintiff as effectually as in an independent action. The above distinction between a set off and counter claim has an important bearing on the question of limitation, for if the statute of limitations is pleaded to a defence or set off, the plaintiff, in order to establish his plea, must prove that the set-off was barred when the plaintiff commenced his action ; it is not enough to prove that it was barred at the time when it was pleaded. In the case of a counter-claim, it is enough for the plaintiff to prove that the counter claim was barred when it was pleaded. (Walker v. Clemen's (1850) 15 Q. B. 104 ; *McGowan v. —O. 9, R. 8 and O. 17, R. 2 and 3—Scope of—Failure to appear—Procedure.

O. 17, C. P. Code deals generally with adjournments. Under O. 17, R. 2 where on any day to which the hearing of the suit is adjourned, the parties, or any of them fail to appear, the Court may dispose of the suit under O. 9, C. P. Code. In all the cases which come under O. 9, C. P. Code the party against whom a decree or order is passed in default or his appearance, can apply to the court to have the ex parte decree or order set aside on the ground that he can show sufficient cause for his non-appearance. Ordinarily if a case appears on the board on an adjourned date for hearing and there is default of appearance on the part of both or either of the parties, the court must refer to O. 9, C. P. Code so as to ascertain the proper procedure to be followed and there is no necessity whatever to have any recourse to O. 17, R. 3.

Where the hearing of a suit had not commenced and the plff. did not appear on the adjourned date, the suit should be dismissed under O. 9, R. 8 C. P. Code and not under O. 17, R. 3 C. P. Code. In the case of a dismissal under O. 17, R. 3 C. P. Code the remedy is by way of appeal or review and in the case of a dismissal under O. 17, R. 2 the party can apply to set aside the dismissal under O. R. 9 or R. 13, C. P. Code.

C. P. CODE (1908), O. 9, R. 9.

Courts should exercise extreme caution when on an adjourned date the parties or any of them fail to appear. They should in the first place have recourse to O. 17, R. 2 rather than O. 17, R. 3, and even in cases where O. 17, R. 3 can be considered to apply, that is to say where the case has been part heard and an adjournment granted, it would not be in accordance with Justice to refuse a party who had failed to appear on the adjourned date at the time fixed, the chance of having the suit restored. 20 B. 730, 743 foll. (Macleod, C. J. and Shah, J.) RATANBAI SHIVLAL v. SHANKAR DEOCHAND LOHAR. 1923 Bom. 27.

—O. 9, R. 9—Applicability—Application for final decree for foreclosure

An application for a final decree in a foreclosure suit which is dismissed for default, can be restored under O. 9, R. 9 if sufficient cause is shown for the absence of the party. The application is not a proceeding in execution and O. 9, R. 9 applies. An order restoring the application will rarely be interfered with in revision (Ashworth and Simpson, A. J. C.) BABU RAM v. An application lies to restore a former application which is dismissed for default. At the same time when that application is rejected, no appeal lies from the order of rejection. O. 43, R. 1 (c) shows that an appeal lies from an order under O. 9, R. 9, rejecting an application from an order to set aside the dismissal of a suit. This cannot be interpreted to mean that an appeal lies from an Order under R. 9, O. 9 rejecting an application for an order to set aside the —O. 9, R. 9—Dismissal for default—Restoration—Grounds for.

When a suit was called for hearing the plaintiff who was present in Court left the Court precincts to fetch his pleader who was engaged in another Court. In the meantime the case was called and the names of the parties were called out by the Court peon. The plaintiff who was present and who must therefore have appeared went away to fetch his pleader. When the plaintiff and his pleader both arrived it was three quarters of an hour after the case had been called and dismissed for default. Held that in the circumstances of the case the suit should be restored for re-hearing on condition of the plaintiff paying into the Court the costs of the defendant within a prescribed time failing which his application should stand dismissed. ———O. 9, R. 13—Ex parte decree—Application to set aside—Sufficient cause for non-appearance.

On an application to set aside an ex parte decree the question to be considered is whether the defendant honestly intended to be present at the hearing of the suit and did his best to do so. Once the court is satisfied that he did try to be present in court in time and would have got there in time but for the intervention of an accident for which he was in no way responsible, it is the duty of the court to set aside the ex parte decree, mulcting in proper cases the defendant in costs. The fact that by some human possibility the defendant could have been present in time does not affect his right to have the ex parte decree set aside. (*Sir Walter Schwabe, C. —O. 9, R. 13—Summons not duly served.

It is not legally necessary to give the defendant notice of an application by the plaintiff for a final decree in a mortgage suit. The summons mentioned in rule 13 of Order 9 is the first summons issued to the defendant giving him notice of the suit filed and the failure to appear mentioned in the same rules means failure to appear at any time during the suit and not absence at some of the hearings, even if they are all the hearings after the first at which the plaintiff may have made a number of applications of various sorts. That rule does not therefore apply to the case of a defendant who is merely not served with notice of some application made in the course of the suit. (*Batten, J. C. and Halifax, A. J. The plaintiffs declined, and sued to recover the value of the goods according to the indent prices. Plaintiffs in the plaint incidentally referred to the invoices received from England for the purpose of showing that they had received advice of the goods they had purchased and that they would make out their own invoices and send the same to the defendants. The defendants without filing their written statements took out a summons asking for an order against the plaintiffs for inspection of the original invoices.

Held, the defendants had not made out a case for inspection of the invoices, as under their contract with the plaintiffs they had nothing to do with the prices which the plaintiffs paid in England, the said invoices not being necessary for either the plaintiffs' or the defendants' case. *Quilter v. Adjournment of a suit was granted to plaintiffs for producing witnesses; but on the adjourned date they were absent and their pleader applied for permission to withdraw the suit with liberty to file a fresh suit which was refused. A further adjournment was then asked for and being refused, the pleader said he had no instructions to do anything further in the case, and left the court. An order was made dismissing the suit and on an application for restoration being made the question arose whether the dismissal was under O. 17, R. 2 or O. 17, R. 3.

Held, per Walsh, J.:—Under whatever form, the Judge may make an order disposing of a case or however he may misunderstand what he is doing or whatever mistaken language he may use in disposing of the case, the court has to look at the actual facts as things were at the time and decide under which rule the order was made.

Where a party does not personally appear even though his counsel originally instructed is there, if he has failed to supply his counsel with materials or funds, and the counsel states he has no further instructions, although the situation may be drawn into the express words of O. 17, R. 3, it ought to be treated as a default by the plaintiff for want of appearance under O. 17, R. 2, for the counsel no longer represents him and in that sense the Counsel is not present, while the plaintiff himself is absent. Held on the facts of the case, the dismissal was under O. 17, R. 3.

Per Piggott, J.—The plaintiffs not being present and the pleader having said he had no instructions to do anything further in the case left the court, a point had been reached at which it was literally true that the plaintiffs were absent neither appearing in person nor by counsel authorised to act on their behalf. The dismissal was under O. 17, R. 2 and an application for restoration lay. (Walsh and Piggott, JJ.) LALA JANGPAL SINGH v. RAJA KUSHALPAL SINGH. 70 I. C. 942; 1923 A. 153.

—O. 17, R. 2—Applicability of.

O. 17, R. 2 applies to the case where the hearing of a suit has been adjourned and on the adjourned date the parties or any of them fail to appear. In such a case, O. 17, R. 2 enables the court if it so chooses to deal with the case as being one under O. 9 or to make such other order as it thinks fit (Lindsay and Sulaiman, JJ.) RAM CHARAN LAL v. RAGHUBIR SINGH. 45 A. 618; 21 A. L. J. 495; L. R. 4 A. 294; 75 I. C. 387; 1923 A. 551.

—O. 17, R. 2—Dismissal—Effect of.

O. 17 R. 2 applies to adjourned hearings and under it the court can proceed under O. 9, R. 8 to dismiss the case. In such a case a fresh suit is barred. (Fremantle, M.) GUPTAR MURAO v. BHAIYA MAHADEO PRASAD SINGH. L. R. 4 A. 177 (Rev.)

—O. 17, Rr. 2, 3—Instructions only to ask for adjournment—Dismissal—If can be set aside.

Where on the day fixed for hearing the vakil of the plaintiff had duly instructions to ask for an adjournment and not to go on with the case, but the same was not granted and the suit dismissed, the order was one passed under O. 17, R. 2 and not under O. 17, R. 3. An application for restoration under O. 9, R. 9 is maintainable. (Mullick and Macpherson, JJ.) SYED SHAH MUHAMMAD MAUDOOD v. MAHARAJAH SIR RAMESHWAR SINGH. 1 Pat. L. R. 281; 74 I. —O. 17, R. 3—Absence of defendant—Decision on evidence—Rights of parties.

Where the defendants and his witnesses fail to appear on an adjourned hearing date and a decree is passed against him on the basis of the evidence on record, the court acts under O. 17 R. 3. The remedy of the defendant is by way of appeal and not to apply for restoration. (Fremantle, S. M. and Burn, J. M.) MAHOMED AHMAD v. MD ASHFAQ HUSAIN. L. R. 4 A. 377 (Rev.)

—O. 17, R. 3—Adjournment of suit—Procedure.

Held following 51 P. R. 1915 that where a party to a suit has paid the process fee for summoning witnesses the Court and its officers are responsible for effecting service, and an adjournment caused by the non-attendance of witnesses for want of service is an adjournment in the ordinary course and does not amount to time granted to one party within the meaning of O. 17, R. 3, C. P. Code. O. 17, R. 3 merely authorises the Court to proceed to decide the suit forthwith and it does not authorise its dismissal summarily. (Scott-Smith and Campbell, JJ.) KARAM CHAND v. JINDA RAM 71 I. C. 862.

C. P. CODE (1908), O. 17, R. 3.

—O. 17, R. 3—Applicability of—Process fee paid within adjourned day—Omission to serve witnesses—Procedure.

The hearing of a case was adjourned for a fortnight to enable plaintiff to summon his witnesses. Within a week of the hearing the plaintiff paid process fee but the officer of the Court finding the time to be short did not take out the summonses. On the day fixed for the hearing the Court dismissed the suit under O. 17, R. 3, C. P. Code. Held that having regard to the negligence of the officer of the Court there was no room for the application of the stringent provisions of O. 17, R. 3 C. P. Code. (Shadi Lal, C. J. and Brasher, J.) LILA RAM v. RAMZAN. 69 I. C. 665.

—O. 17, R. 3—Scope—Ex parte decree.

Where time was not granted to the appellant at his request for the production of evidence, O. 17, R. 3, has no application. An ex parte decree may be passed even in a case in which the court acts under O. XVII, R. 3. (Abdul Raoof, J.) MURLI DHAR v. DUNI CHAND AND GOKAL CHAND. 69 I. C. 368 : 1923 Lah. 281 (1).

—O. 17 R. 3—Witnesses—Failure to attend.

Where a party fails to get his witnesses attend on the date of hearing, the case should be decided under O. 17, R. 3 and not dismissed summarily. (Chandrasekhara Aiyar, C. J. and Ramaswamy Iyengar, J.) MUNNOH RAO v. MUNINANJAPPA. 1 Mys. L. J. 46.

—O. 18, R. 2—Written arguments—Judgment.

A case was adjourned to a certain date for arguments, but the parties were not ready and the judge gave them liberty to put in written arguments. By that time a new Judge came in and after a local inspection, he delivered judgment. Held, the parties had sufficient opportunity to argue the case and the judgment was not vitiated. —O. 20, R. 3—Judgment dictated to shorthand writer—Amendment.

O. 20 R. 3 of the C. P. Code, as amended by the Madras Rules does not authorise the judge to revise the transcript and to substitute fresh words for the words, which fell from his mouth to any extent he may deem necessary. Where a judgment is dictated to a shorthand writer the revision contemplated cannot be of the effective part of the judgment and must be of the nature referred to in S 152, and one relating to "clerical and arithmetical mistakes arising from any accidental slip or omission" (Oldfield, J.) HARI KRISHNA PILLAI v. Where a judicial officer decides a dispute solely on knowledge gained by him on personal inspection and without any reference to the evidence in the case, the judgment is liable to be set aside in revision. (Woodroffe and Ghose, JJ.) ABDUL HUG v. MAHOMED DIN. 1923 Cal 311.

—O. 20, R. 4—Judgment of Small cause—Courts—Reasons for—Practice.

As a matter of practice, however, it is usual, except in comparatively unimportant cases of every day occurrence such as those for the recovery of petty debts, to set out the particulars of the suit and to give reasons for the decisions arrived at, thus enabling the High Court, in revision, to satisfy itself that the decree or order was according to law without the necessity of perusing the whole record. This practice should be followed. The words "need not" were not meant to be read as "shall not" in O. 20, R. 4 C. P. Code. The matter is largely within the discretion of judges of Small Cause Courts, but their discretion should be exercised with due regard to the circumstances of each case. (May Oung, J.) MAUNG SA v. —O. 20, R. 4—Judgment of Small Cause Court—What to contain.

A judgment of a Court of Small Causes should contain the points for determination and the decisions thereon. (Dalal, J. C.) BHUDAR SINGH v. SHAIKH SAHAMAT. 9 O. & A. L. R. 414.

—O. 20, R. 7—Date of decree—Judgment written and signed—Not delivered in open Court—Effect of.

A judgment written and signed on a particular date but not delivered in open Court till some time later must be deemed to have been delivered on the day on which it was pronounced in open Court. The decree should bear the date on which the judgment was actually pronounced in open Court and not when it was written and signed.

C. P. CODE (1908), O. 20, R. 11.

For purposes of limitation for appeal time should be calculated from the date on which the judgment was actually pronounced in Court (Miller, C. J. and Mullick, J.) SAGARMAL MARWARI v. LACHMISARAN MISIR. 1 Pat. 771 : 1923 P. 129.

—O. 20 R. 11—Decree for instalment—Grounds for lenient treatment.

The burden of proving that the defendant is entitled to the indulgence of a decree in instalments rests upon him. Where he has resisted the suit on frivolous grounds and has subsequently to the institution fraudulently disposed of the property and the interest agreed upon between the parties was moderate held that there was no ground for passing a decree for payment of the amount by instalments, (Pipon, J. C.) GELA RAM v. JHANGI RAM. 71 I. C. 303.

—O. 20, R. 11—Ground.

The fact that the estate of the defendants has been brought under the management of the Court of Wards, is not a reason for allowing instalments. (Martineau and Moti Sagar, JJ.) WALI DAD KHAN v. MANI RAM. 73 I. C. 800 : 1923 Lah. 256.

—O. 20 R. 12 (1) (c)—Nature of application under—Limitation Art. 181—Applicability

An application for mesne profits to be ascertained under the inquiry under order XX rule 12 (1) (c) is not an application made under the Code of Civil Procedure nor an application in execution. It is an application to the Court to proceed from the stage of preliminary decree to a final decree and Art 181 of the Limitation Act does not apply (Pratt and Marten JJ.) THANA ZALAJI SHET MARWADI v. them. As soon as the plaintiff paid the pre-emption money he became the owner of the land with its legal incident, the crops attached to it (Kotwal, A. J. C.) BAPU v. VITHOBA. 1923 Nag. 327.

—O. 20, R. 14—Extension of time for payment.

A Court has discretion to extend the time for payment of pre-emption money in Court. —O. 20, R. 14—Failure to deposit money by mistake.

When the decree-holder in a pre-emption suit fails by mistake to deposit the full price in Court the judgment-debtor is entitled to apply for possession of the property by restitution if he is already dispossessed and the contention that the mistake was made by an official of the court is unsound where it cannot be said with certainty which of the officials of the Court had made the calculation and whether it was made under the authority of the Court. (Abdul Raoof, J.) MEHR DIN v. BRIJ LAL. 1923 Lah. 250.

—O. 20, R. 14—Pre-emption decree—Costs not directed to be deposited—Effect.

—O. 20, R. 18—Suit for partition—Preliminary and final decrees—Determination of mesne profits—Difference between old Code and new—Interlocutory order—Order ascertaining sharers and their rights—Appeal.

Under the C. P. Code of 1882 there was but one decree in a suit for partition, the decree passed after the report of the commissioners making the actual division. The order ascertaining the several parties interested in the property to be divided and their several rights therein, though treated as a decree in practice and styled as such, was not a preliminary decree but was only an interlocutory order. On an interlocutory application made by plaintiff in a suit for partition under the Code of 1882, for appointment of a commissioner and for the taking of other necessary steps in the suit in pursuance of the order ascertaining the several parties interested in the suit property and their several rights therein, the court passed an order negating the plaintiff's right to profits in his share of the properties on the ground that the preliminary decree did not award to him such profits though he had prayed for them in the plaint. Held that the order was not appealable, being an interlocutory order and that the plaintiff was not therefore precluded in his appeal from the final and only decree in the suit from contesting its validity. Whether attachment proceedings are already commenced at the instance of the decree holder or not the assignee or transferee of the decree cannot continue any proceedings previously commenced, nor can he institute any fresh proceeding's for the execution of the decree unless he makes an application under O. 21, R. 16 to the Court which passed the decree. That application will be heard by the Court not as a Court executing the decree, but as a Court which passed the decree, and until an order is made by the Court which passed the decree that execution may proceed at the instance of the transferee, it is not open to the transferee to execute the decree, nor is there any Court which is executing the decree. The provisions of O. 21, R. 2 (3) would not be applicable as that only enacts that a payment or adjustment, which has not been certified or recorded as aforesaid should not be recognized by any Court executing the decree. The provisions of clause 3 of R. 2 of O. XXI are not to be rendered nugatory by the application of the general provisions of S. 47 of the Code. The decree-holder is bound to certify an adjustment, and the judgment-debtor is also given a right to apply to the Court to certify an adjustment. If the adjustment be not certified, it is entirely the fault of the judgment-debtor, and he does not deserve the consideration of the Court if he fails to take the very ordinary precaution of seeing that payment or adjustment made by him is certified to the Court.

Even if it is established that the conduct of the decree holders is fraudulent, the judgment debtor is not entitled to obtain an extension of the time within which an application is to be made to the Court under Cl. 2 of R. 2 of O. —O. 21, Rr. 11 to 14, 17—Application for execution—Particulars to be stated in—Return for amendment and for payment of court fee—Application in accordance with law.

O. 21, Rr. 11 to 14 of the Civil Procedure Code gives the particulars which the law requires to be stated in an application for execution. If the application conforms with those rules and is presented upon a properly stamped paper, it must be taken to have been properly presented in accordance with law. O. 21, R. 17 prescribes the course which the Court shall take when the application does not conform to the requirements of Rr. 11-14 and provides that the Court shall ascertain whether such of the requirements of those rules as are applicable to the case have been complied with. If they have not been complied with, the Court is empowered either to reject the application or allow the defect to be remedied within a time to be fixed by it. It further provides that where an application is amended under the provisions mentioned, it shall be deemed to have been an application in accordance with law and presented on the date when it was first presented. It may be inferred from this that where the application is returned on the ground that the requirement of the rule have not been complied with and is not amended within the time fixed, it cannot be regarded as having been presented in accordance with law. It is nowhere stated, however, that where the application conforms with the prescribed requirements and is returned for some other reason it shall not be deemed to have been presented in accordance with law. No provision is found for the payment of any Court-fee on the amount claimed in excess of that covered by the Court-fee paid together with the plaint, or for supplying a copy of the record-of-rights, and assuming these were matters which the Court might require to be done, the failure to do them, cannot affect the validity of the application as such.

The authorities are not uniform on the question whether additional Court-fee is payable on interest which has accrued on the decretal amount since the date of the suit and for which no Court-fee has been paid with the plaint. But assuming, without deciding that it was within the competency of the Court to require payment of the additional Court-fee before it would order execution to proceed in respect of the additional amount claimed, such a fee was in no sense a Court-fee payable on an application for execution. It was, if payable at all, a Court-fee payable on the plaint in respect of a part of the subject-matter in dispute which could not be estimated at that time when the plaint was presented, and which it is not usual to exact at that time. The failure to pay this fee would, at the most, entitle the Court to hold its hand and refuse to allow execution to proceed or dismiss the application if the fee should not be paid within the time ordered, but its non-payment cannot invalidate an application for execution properly stamped in accordance with the requirements of the Court Fees Act and containing the particulars required by the provisions of O. 21, Rr. 11 to 14. O. 21, R. 11 of the C. P. Code is no bar to the maintenance of concurrent execution. —O. 21, R. 11—Execution application—Formalities for—Omission to mention date of prior application—Omission to state existence of cross decree.

Material defects would vitiate an application for execution. Where there had been two prior applications for execution but the date of disposal of the first application for execution was alone stated but not that of the second, though the numbers of execution cases were stated with regard to both the previous applications held that the omission of the date of the disposal of the second previous application for execution was not a material defect. The omission to mention the existence of cross-decrees however may be a material defect. (Chatterjee and Panton, JJ.) PROSANNA KUMAR CHAKRABUTTI v. JOTINDRA NATH BOSE. 71 I. C. 1054.

—O. 21, R. 11 (2)—Execution application—Joint decree holders—Verification—Mode of.

Where there are a number of decree-holders, some of whom are not acquainted with the facts of the case all the law requires is that the application should be verified by some person proved to the satisfaction of the Court to be acquainted with the facts of the case. It would be straining the language of the rule too far to say that where there are more applicants than one the verification should be signed even by those who are not acquainted with the facts of the case or that where one or more acquainted with the facts of the case verify their verification is not sufficient (*Miller, C. —O. 21, R. 15—Adjustment of rights of decree-holders—Discretion—Joint decree—Discharge given by one of the decree-holders.

C. P. CODE (1908), O. 21, R. 16.

O. 21, R. 15 of the C. P. Code allows a wide discretion to the Court, which has authority to make such adjustments of the rights of the decree holders inter se as it may think equitable and proper. A decree for costs passed in a partition suit in favour of several plaintiffs can only be executed by all the decree holders jointly or by some only of the decree-holders subject to the provisions of O. 21, R. 15, C. P. Code. It is not competent to one of several joint decree-holders to grant full discharge of the decree out of Court or to certify to the Court complete satisfaction of the decree without the concurrence of all the decree holders. O. 21, R. 16 C. P. Code is a bar to execution of a decree by a benamidar for one of the judgment-debtors. The expression "decree for money against several persons" is not restricted to a personal decree for money against two or more defendants. (Baker, O. J. C.) NANHELAL v. MANGILAL. 19 N. L. R. 151.

—O. 21, R. 16—Transfer of decree for execution to Revenue Court—Recognition of assignment—Power to execute.

Under O. 21, R. 16 of the C. P. C the heirs of a deceased decree holder may apply for execution to the Court that passed the decree, and under S. 42 of the C. P. C. they can do so equally to any Court to which that decree has been transferred for execution. It may also be that the right to apply for execution in these circumstances includes the right to carry on an execution already initiated by the deceased decree holder. But both these things can be done only in a Civil Court. The Thasildar as Revenue officer has certain powers in the execution of a decree by ejectment, but he cannot execute such a decree in favour of any one but the person named in it. When it is ordered to give possession of a holding to a certain person who is then alive, he has no more power to give possession to any body else whom he considers to be the heir of that person than a mazkuri would have in the same circumstances. Property mortgaged to plaintiff was attached and brought to sale in execution by the defendant. On the day fixed for the sale, the plaintiff preferred a claim petition that the sale proceeds should be kept in court deposit to satisfy his mortgage and not be paid over to the defendant. The Court dismissed the application holding that as the sale had taken place it had no jurisdiction to hear the petition. In a suit by the plaintiff to enforce his mortgage and recover the mortgage money from the defendant the latter pleaded that the suit was barred by Arts. 11 and 62 of the Lim. Act. Held, by the Chief Justice (agreeing with Spencer, J.) (1) that there was no order negating the claim of the plaintiff and his suit was not therefore barred by art. 11 of the Limitation Act and (2) that the suit was one to enforce a mortgage and was governed by art. 132 and not by art. 62 of the Lim. Act, though the mortgaged property had been converted into money as a result of the court sale. 41 M. 985 (F. B.) dist. 41 C. 654 (P. C.) Rel. (*Sir Walter Schwabe, C. Plaintiff preferred a claim to property attached in execution of a decree obtained against another stating that the judgment debtor was entitled only to a share in the said property and that he was entitled to the other moiety. The claim was disposed of by an order which, after reciting plaintiff's contention ran as follows: "Whatever right the defendant has will pass by the sale. The petition does not require any further investigation. The claim put forward by the petitioner will be noted in the sale proclamation."

The sale was held and the decree holder himself became the purchaser. In a suit brought by the plaintiff for the recovery of his half share of the property from the decree holder purchaser held (1) that the order on the claim petition was an improper one; (2) that it was not, however, an order against the claimant (plaintiff) within the meaning of O. 21, r. 63, C. P. C., and the suit instituted more than a year from the date thereof was not barred under Art. 11 of the Limitation

—O. 21 R. 89—Deposit—Legality of—Improper refusal to set aside sale—Interference in revision.

Two creditors A and B obtained a decree against a common debtor and A attached his properties, B applied for rateable distribution. A proclamation of sale was issued ordering the sale of the judgment debtor's property for the recovery of the decretal amount due to A. The judgment debtor paid A's decree in full and the appellate court stayed execution of the decree and sale. The court below in disregard of the order of the appellate court held the sale and the property was knocked down at a certain sum. The judgment debtor tendered to the Court within 30 days the amount due on B's decree with the addition of 5 per cent. The amount deposited was more than that specified in the sale proclamation but short of a few rupees so far as B's decree was concerned. Held that the deposit was good under O. 21 R. 89 and the sale should have been set aside. Order 21 Rule 92 C. P. C. nowhere speaks of the auction-purchaser being made a party. It provides that no sale can be confirmed or set aside unless notice of application has been given to all persons affected thereby, and the rule means that the Court is incompetent to make any order at all till such notice has been given. The duty of moving the Court to issue notices lies of course upon the applicant and all that the Court has to do is to give him reasonable opportunity for doing so. On default the Court may dismiss the application, and there is no obligation upon the Court to issue a notice of its own motion but without the assistance of the applicant. The law requires that the application to deposit should be made within 30 days of the sale. But it does not impose any period of limitation for the issue of notice. (Mullick and Bucknill, JJ.) MT. During the execution sale of a shrotriem village, objection was taken at one stage to absence of proclamation at the collector's office. When the auction sale was sought to be set aside under O. 21, R. 29 the Court without going into the question applied its prior decision. Held, the question was not res judicata and the Court ought to take evidence and decide afresh publication in the Collector's office being necessary in the case of shrotriem villages also. —O 21, R 90—Execution sale—Application to set aside—Deposit of decree amount—Deposit subject to condition subsequently withdrawn—Effect.

On the 22nd December 1920 a sale of a certain property took place in execution of a certain decree obtained by the opposite party as against the petitioners. On the 21st January 1921 the petitioners applied for setting aside the sale under the provisions of O. XXI, r. 90, Civil Procedure Code. On the 23rd January 1921 the parties entered into a compromise the terms of the compromise being that if the judgment debtor paid the sum of Rs. 2,695 to the decree-holders on or before the 23rd September 1921 the sale would be set aside, but that if the sum of Rs. 2,695 was not paid to the decree holders within the time allowed, the application for setting aside the sale would stand dismissed and the sale would be confirmed. On the 19th September 1921 the petitioners deposited the sum of Rs. 269 in Court and invited the Court to set aside the sale. The petitioners also applied to the Court that the money should not be paid to the decree holders until the decision of a regular suit which the judgment-debtors were about to institute against the decree holders. It appears that such a suit was in fact instituted on the 21st September 1921. On the 23rd September 1921 the decree holders filed a petition praying that the sale should not be set aside as the deposit made by the judgment-debtors was a conditional deposit which had in effect prevented them withdrawing the money from Court. Held the deposit was a conditional one. It is one thing to make that deposit subject to one condition; it is another to make the deposit and to apply to the Court that the party entitled to withdraw the money from Court should not withdraw it until a particular decision is reached in a particular case.

The judgment-debtors through their leaders intimated to the Court that they would not object to the money being withdrawn by the decree-holders, and, as a matter of fact, they took up that position before the decree-holders made any application for withdrawal of the money from Court. Consequently the deposit was valid. (Da. and Macpherson J.J.) SHAM SUNDAR SINGH v. MUSAHEB LAL

—O 21 R. 90—Execution sale—Objection to—Objections which could have been raised at an earlier stage—Defects in publishing or conducting a sale—Application to set aside sale.

Where the objections of a judgment debtor to a sale held in execution are such as had been or might have been taken in the proceedings for framing the proclamation of sale of which the judgment-debtor had notice, the Court will not set aside the sale on these grounds. Under O. 21, R. 67 read with O. 21, R. 54, C. P. Code, it is necessary that an execution sale of an enfranchised shrotriem village should be published at the Collector's Office.

The judgment-debtor applied to set aside an execution sale on the ground that the sale was not proclaimed in the village or published at the Collector's office. The Court dismissed the application holding that the same objections had been inquired into and decided against the petitioner at an earlier stage of the execution proceedings before the sale was concluded.

Held that there was no provision of law authorising the investigation of the objections in question before the conclusion of the sale and that the previous decision was not resjudicata.

The application was remanded for an enquiry on the merits (Oldfield and Devadoss JJ.) PAMIDIMARRI GANAMMA v. KETTIREDDI KRISHNA REDDI, 46 Mad. 736 : (1923) M. W. N. 463 : 75 I. C. 369 : 45 M. L. J. 263.

If a purchaser at an execution sale has bought a property the title to which is defective or if he has been misled on account of fraud or omission on the part of the decree holder it is open to him to seek his remedy as the law allows. But there is no reason why a Court should interfere on behalf of the auction-purchaser and set aside the sale simply because an auction-purchaser has bought a bad title. Every man buys at an auction sale with his eyes open and the general principle that an auction purchaser cannot attack his own purchase except on the ground that the judgment-debtor has no saleable interest in the property must apply. ———O. 21, R. 91—Execution sale—Setting aside—Suit at the instance of a third party—Revival of execution proceedings

In execution of a money-decree two lots of property were sold and lot No. 1 was purchased by the decree holder. Subsequently a third person brought a suit against the decree-holder who was also the auction-purchaser of lot No. 1 and the judgment-debtor for a declaration of title to lot No. 1 and possession and obtained a decree the effect of which to set aside the sale in respect of that lot. The sale of lot No. 2 was also set aside at the instance of the judgment-debtor under the provisions of O. 21 R. 90 C. P. C. Afterwards the decree holder executed his decree for the entire decretal amount. The judgment-debtor objected that the execution petition was barred by limitation and that the amount covered by the sale of lot No. 1 could not be recovered as the only remedy open to the auction purchaser was to apply under O. 21, r. 91, C. P. C. to have the sale set aside.

Held that the effect of the decree in the suit was to set aside the sale and no formal order to that effect was required. The decree holder and the judgment debtor were both parties to the suit and therefore they are bound by the order. It is not necessary that the execution Court should formally cancel the order of satisfaction which
